PLANE INDUSTRY OFFERS CHICAGO GOLDEN CHANCE

New Landing Field First Requirement.

This is the eighth of a series of stories concerned with the interests of this city. Its text is "Make Chicago the First City in the World."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Airplane building is one modern industry which civic leaders say Chicago should seek to encourage and attract—otherwise it may slip by as did the automobile industry.

Outside of flying circles, it may be news to a good many Chicagoans that E. M. [Matty] Laird, the pioneer who designed and built the first commercial planes after the war, is turning out custom built planes in a plant near the Chicago airport out Cicero way. His is the only airplane factory in Chicago, the hub of air transport.

A Boyhood Avocation.

No press agents have been trumpeting Mr. Laird's handiwork, but he has been gathering laurels from the air. He is a former Chicago bank teller who as a boy built winning model airplanes driven by rubber bands, later taught himself to fly in a plane he built himself, and, after teaching army cadets to fly during the war, embarked in the designing and manufacturing field.

One of his triumphs was in 1930, when he built in his Chicago factory a racing plane which won the Thompson trophy sweepstakes race, the chief event of the national air races that year. Piloting it was the late Charles W. [Speed] Holman.

Next year, in 1931, Laird built the speed plane in which Maj. James H. Doolittle won the Bendix trophy race, flying from Los Angeles to New York in 11½ hours, a record then. Before this, Laird planes had won a New York to Spokane speed race in 1927 and one from Los Angeles to Cincinnati in 1928. He has not entered racing planes since 1931.

Makes Custom Built Planes.

The great bulk of Laird's output has been custom built planes, made to order for particular customers. Mr. Laird is now concentrating on a new all metal cabin design, a six passenger job of the $25,000 class. He contents himself with building 15 to 20 planes a year and prides himself upon de luxe workmanship.

Plenty of prospective buyers are in sight, he declares, if Chicago would energize itself in trying to establish an airplane industry here.

"To encourage an airplane industry," says Mr. Laird, "it would help much if the city would get an airport in shape so that passengers would land closer to the downtown district.

"The present airport might well be used as a training field. If space were provided for airplane manufacturers at a reasonable rate it would help a lot. Capital on fair terms would be more interested. More orders would reduce prices and increase customers. Here is an industry of great possibilities which should be attracted to Chicago."

Mr. Laird's experiences as an airplane builder after the war throw illumination upon the chances which often determine the location of industries. After designing his pioneer commercial plane he sought a financial backer. No luck in Chicago.

Turns to Oil Fields.

Money was plentiful in the oil fields with gushers coming in, and oil men in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas were in the market for planes to fly them over the fields. Mr. Laird interested capital in Wichita, Kas. There he started his factory in 1919 and built the Laird Swallow, forerunner of modern commercial planes.

Other companies followed his footsteps and in a short time Wichita advertised itself as the "airplane capital." Selling out, Mr. Laird opened his Chicago factory. Many of his associates in the old pioneer group are prominent plane builders in other cities.

Mr. Laird reasons that if Chicago capital could have been interested in his models in 1919 this city today might be the seat of a flourishing airplane industry. It is rather reminiscent of the old story, apocryphal or otherwise, of Henry Ford years ago trying to interest La Salle street in a model of his gasoline engine, without success, while some one in Detroit seized opportunity by the forelock.

Paid Bruno $50,000, Condon Says

'JAFSIE' TELLS HOW LINDBERGH SORTED RANSOM

Denies Sharing in Kidnap Plot.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Back Page.)

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—For five tempestuous hours, Dr. John F. Condon today occupied the witness chair in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the murder of the infant child of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Condon positively identified Hauptmann as the "John" to whom he handed the $50,000 ransom, picturing in full detail for the first time that amazing scene in St. Raymond's cemetery on the night of April 2, 1932, when the money was paid.

After the money had changed hands, the kidnaper congratulated Condon for his "fine work." They shook hands heartily, Condon told the jury. Condon added he had warned "John" not to double-cross him.

Identifies Hauptmann Thrice.

Three times, in answer to the question by Attorney General David T. Wilentz concerning the identity of the man with whom he had the ransom negotiations, Condon said loudly:

"That was John."

"And who was John?" Wilentz asked.

Each time Condon paused dramatically, then almost shouted:

"John is Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

The theatrical effect was somewhat marred on the third reading when he substituted "Rudolph" for Richard as the defendant's second name.

Condon also revealed that he once glimpsed Hauptmann on the street in the Bronx, New York, in a locality adjacent to Hauptmann's home. This was in August, 1934, he said, three months before Hauptmann's capture.

"But I was on a bus going in the opposite direction," Condon remarked, regretfully. "I couldn't find him again."

Disappears in Woods.

At the point where he saw Hauptmann, Condon added, there are some woods and the man he was watching entered them and disappeared.

The attorney general took Condon on direct examination through the story of the first meeting with "John," the payment of the ransom, and the airplane hunt for the boat that didn't exist.

The defense then put him under severe cross-examination, starting out with his identifications of Hauptmann and descriptions of the man he called "John." Condon will be questioned further tomorrow by the defense.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly, Condon denied indignantly that he was "enjoying" his experience on the stand. He also denied he was being purposely dramatic.

Condon also denied questions by which Reilly tried to show that he knew the symbol on the various kidnaping notes before he had seen those reaching Col. Lindbergh and before getting any himself.

DEFENSE DEMANDS MISTRIAL

At one time during the day, Reilly demanded the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial after Wilentz made mention of a letter he had received which was not yet in evidence. The judge denied the motion, but instructed the jury to disregard the prosecutor's remark.

The defense had asked Condon if he had not expressed to a druggist the opinion that "John" had not been found. Condon denied that. Wilentz had said the druggist had written a letter explaining that statement. Reilly then demanded declaration of a mistrial. The author of the letter is Charles E. Dunnington of Brockton, Mass., who will be called as a witness.

Denies Sharing in Plot.

Condon denied repeatedly that he had told many persons that "Hauptmann is not the man." Many questions in the cross-examination by Attorney Reilly implied that the witness himself was one of the kidnaping gang, but all such implications were met with vigorous assertions from

U. S. Apology, $50,000, Dry Law Sequel

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Under a final decision today the United States must apologize to the Canadian government and pay $50,666.50 damages for the sinking, March 22, 1929, by the coast guard of the rum running schooner I'm Alone, a vessel of Canadian registry, in the Gulf of Mexico 200 miles off the Louisiana coast. Canada had claimed damages of $386,803.18. Thus one of the premier scandals of the dry era passes into history.

This decision was announced by Willis Van Devanter, associate justice of the United States Supreme court, and Sir Lyman Poore Duff, chief justice of Canada, who were the commissioners of arbitration under the ship liquor treaty of 1924 between the United States and Great Britain for controlling liquor smuggling.

$25,666.50 to Crew.

Of the damages awarded, $25,000 is to be paid as compensation to the Canadian government and $25,666.50 to the master and members of the crew of the I'm Alone or their families.

Included in the latter is $10,185 to the widow and children of Leon Mainguy, a French citizen of St. Pierre, Miquelon, who drowned when the schooner was sunk. Two other members of the crew since have died.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not parties to a liquor smuggling conspiracy and so awards were made to them for clothing and other effects lost in the sinking of the ship, and for their being arrested and placed in irons in New Orleans.

Captain Gets $7,906.

These compensations were to John Thomas Randell, captain of the I'm Alone, $7,906; heirs of John Williams, deceased, $1,250.50; Jens Jansen, $1,098; James Barrett, $1,032; heirs of William Wordsworth, deceased, $907; Eddie Young, $999.50; Chesley Hobbs, $1,323.50; Edward Fourchard, $965; Amanda Mainguy, widow of Leon Mainguy, and their children, $10,185.

The I'm Alone was spoken to by the coast guard cutter Wolcott when about 10.5 miles off Louisiana, but did not heed the call and headed to sea. The Wolcott and other revenue cutters took up the pursuit and two days later the schooner was sunk by gunfire from the cutter Dexter.

Five Associated Press wirephotos of yesterday's session of the Hauptmann trial at Flemington, N. J., are printed on the back page of this issue of The Tribune. They depict the latest developments in the sensational murder trial and were received in a short space of time, overcoming the obstacles of distance and bad weather which hampers regular photograph shipments by airplane. FOG LIFTING; AIR TRAFIC TO WEST COAST RESUMED

Air travel between Chicago and western points was resumed late last night as the paralyzing record breaking fog which had gripped the eastern half of the country since Sunday began lifting. A northwest wind broke the blanket of mist. A United Air Lines plane arrived from the west coast shortly before midnight, the first ship to reach the Chicago airport since early Sunday. The ship carried nine passengers.

Another plane bound for San Francisco with passengers left at midnight.

By daylight aviation company officials hoped to resume service between Chicago and Cleveland. But, with the fog still blanketing New York and the eastern seaboard from Newfoundland to Hatteras, further eastern travel was not expected until tomorrow.

While fogs of greater density have been experienced before, Forecaster W. P. Day said there had been none of such duration and such widespread effect. At one time the blanket of mist extended to Omaha, Neb.

Salesgirl Hugs Holdup Man Until Policeman Arrives

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Miss Dorothy Stein, 23 year old salesgirl, was alone tonight when a bandit entered the Corrine Dress shop. As he placed a metal object against her Miss Stein flung her arms about his neck, held on tightly, and screamed loudly until rescued by a policeman, who arrested the robber.

Boy Dies After Being Run Over by Train

Frank Szennrsnski, 11 years old, of 8433 Burley avenue, died last night in the Jackson Park hospital, after being run over by a train on the Illinois Central suburban tracks in front of 7120 Exchange avenue. Police said they believed the boy fell on the tracks while flipping rides.

Five Children Die in School Bus Collision

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A crash between a school bus and a truck on a narrow bridge late today killed five children and injured 14 others, three seriously.

The accident occurred on highway No. 16 near Piedmont, 25 miles southwest of Deadwood. Both vehicles were badly damaged and the dead and injured were covered with molasses from broken barrels on the truck.

The children were members of world war veterans' families stationed at a CCC camp at Calcite, recruited from over the state.

The dead:

DOUGLAS KITTERMAN, 9, of Wall.
MORRIS CLASSICK, 12, Hurley.
BRAMA STETLER, 8, Olivet.
MERLE CASSADY, 13, Miller.
TUILA TRUMBO, 14, Lead.

The three critically injured are Ruth Stetler, 12, of Olivet; Ruth Jones, 15, of Smithwick, and Alice Pearson, 12, of Troy. They were unconscious when brought to the hospital, and physicians said they might not live through the night.

Army medical officers from Fort Meade and American Red Cross workers from nearby towns hastened to the scene and assisted in removal of the dead and injured from the wreckage.

The fourteen injured children are at Rapid City.

En Route to Camp.

The bus was en route from a Piedmont school to the CCC camp when the collision occurred.

The children were crushed between the seats of the bus, which was virtually demolished.

Its driver, A. F. Lindahl, escaped with slight injury.

Lawmaker Says Daughter Will Be President in 1970

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Representative James W. Mott [Rep., Ore.] today predicted his daughter—born Monday—would become President of the United States in 1970. She will be the first woman President of the United States in that year, when she is 35, he added proudly. Mrs. Mott, however, hopes her third daughter will grow into a "normal American girl."

Justices Quiz Lawyers on Gold Clause

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Justices of the Supreme court subjected government counsel to a searching examination this afternoon during arguments in the 69 billion dollar gold clause cases. At least four of the justices—McReynolds, Butler, Sutherland, and Van Devanter—indicated impatience with the New Deal theory that congress, by declaring an emergency, can wipe out the gold clause in 100 billion dollars of contracts as being "against public policy."

The astute questions from the bench led to embarrassment and confusion on the part of the lawyers, and for the second time in the course of considering New Deal legislation the learned justices joined in the laughter of the spectators. The last time the justices laughed, an almost unprecedented thing for that august bench, was in the NRA "hot oil" case, which was decided against the government in an 8 to 1 opinion on Monday.

Vital to New Deal.

Administration leaders look upon this case as by far the most important on the New Deal program and are watching the arguments with the utmost concern. They had expected a unanimous decision in their favor, not believing the court would presume to question legislation of such vital importance on mere constitutional grounds.

The apparently hostile attitude of the conservative justices today, however, startled the administration leaders and revived the talk of packing the bench with new members who would go along. Senator Costigan of Colorado and other western radicals even talking of a bill to restrict the jurisdiction of the court on the constitutionality of emergency legislation.

Thus this crucial stage in the nation's history is not only concerned with the consequences of the court's decision, but with constitutional government and the integrity of the bench as well.

Holds Fate of Nation's Money.

The economic consequences of an adverse decision, as explained by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today, would be to increase 100 billion dollars in public and private obligations to 169 billions and to increase the national debt by 17 billion dollars. This, it is believed, would leave the government with the alternative of revaluing the dollar to its former gold content or resorting to the wildest inflation to pay off the national debt.

The small chamber of the Supreme court, soon to be abandoned for a new Greek temple, was again filled to capacity today as the distinguished array of government, railroad, and banking lawyers continued their arguments. In front row seats were Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, which is a railroad creditor and a party in the suits; Senators Connally of Texas, Wagner of New York, Gore of Oklahoma, Bulkley of Ohio, and Robinson of Arkansas, the latter being administration leader in the senate. White haired John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, was also an interested spectator. Hundreds were turned away at the door.

LAWYER'S PART IN FACE LIFTING IS TOLD TO JURY

Former Aid Testifies Against Attorney.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Attorney Louis Piquett, a 42d ward Thompson leader in the "good old days," and once a city prosecutor, was the brains of the conspiracy through which John Dillinger evaded the law for more than four months after his escape from the Crown Point jail last spring. This was the testimony given yesterday in Piquett's trial before Federal Judge William H. Holly on a government charge that the attorney harbored and protected his gangster client.

While Piquett was the leading figure in the living drama that was unfolded, the presence of the dead Dillinger seemed to pervade the crowded little courtroom in the United States courthouse.

Outlaw's Career Told.

Many of Dillinger's actions, from the time he came out of the Indiana jail so mysteriously on the morning of March 3 until he was slain by federal agents in Chicago on July 22 last, were described from the witness stand. His pictures, his fingerprints, his words were before the jury and spectators all day.

Arthur W. O'Leary, former investigator for Attorney Piquett and the go-between in the early connections with the hunted gangsters, was the principal witness for the government. He told of meeting Dillinger in various sections of the city and of how Piquett agreed to arrange, and did arrange, the surgical face lifting and fingerprint altering that for a time defeated the hunt for the murderer and robber.

Face Lifting Described.

Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy, one of Dillinger's face lifting surgeons who has entered a plea of guilty to the conspiracy charge, appeared as a witness for the court. He failed in one of the important points that the government had hoped to establish through him—the payment of money by Piquett for the operation—but his story as a whole tied Piquett closely into the conspiracy. Cassidy disclosed that Dillinger nearly died under anæsthetic while the facial operation was being performed.

O'Leary, a young, self possessed individual with a hard and assured manner, was examined by J. Albert Woll, special assistant to the United States attorney general. O'Leary said he first met Dillinger in February, 1934, in the Crown Point jail where the outlaw was awaiting trial for the murder of a policeman in an East Chicago bank holdup. He went to the jail with Piquett, who was Dillinger's lawyer, O'Leary said.

His next conversation with the desperado, he testified, was after the jail break—sometime in March, he thought.

Meets Dillinger and Girl.

Q.—[By Mr. Woll]—How did you happen to meet Dillinger that time?

A.—One afternoon a man called on the telephone and asked for Mr. Piquett, who was out. After learning who I was, the man told me to meet him in 15 minutes in front of the Wacker drive entrance of the building at 228 North La Salle street where we had our office. I met Dillinger and Evelyn Frechette who was with him in a car.

[Evelyn Frechette was Dillinger's girl at this time and is now in federal prison for helping to conceal him].

Q.—When did you see him again?

A.—A couple of weeks later. I answered the office telephone and Evelyn Frechette told me that Dillinger wanted to meet me at Madison street and Homan avenue in an hour. Piquett said for me to go. I met Dillinger and he told me to tell Piquett to get hold of a reliable doctor. He also told me to ask Piquett how much the doctor would charge for a good facial operation and instructed me to tell Piquett to locate a good hideout for him.

Enter James Probasco.

"About four days after that," O'Leary went on, "Piquett introduced me to James Probasco. Piquett told me he had known Probasco for some twenty odd years and that he had been discussing with him the feasibility of Dillinger hiding in his home. Piquett pointed out that Probasco lived alone in an out of the way place. Probasco told me he needed money badly to keep a tavern going."

[Probasco, who was 67 years old,

had been arrested several times since 1921 on charges of receiving stolen goods, but never had been convicted. He was killed last July 26 in a fall from a window of a federal agents' office on the 19th floor at 208 South Clark street, where he was a prisoner in the Dillinger investigation.]

Prosecutor Woll continued the questioning of O'Leary by asking when he first met Dr. Wilhelm Loeser. A.—About May 1, 1934, Piquett took me to Loeser's home at 536 Wrightwood avenue, and introduced him to me as a Dr. Ralph Robind. The doctor told me it would be a simple matter to alter Dillinger's features.

They Discuss the Fee.

Q.—Was there further conversation about the operation? A.—Yes, about the fee. Dr. Loeser also questioned the legality of the operation and Piquett stated that it was within the law.

Q.—How much was the fee? A.—They decided it should be $5,000. The name of Dr. Cassidy was mentioned as a possible assistant. It was decided his fee should be $600 and the balance of the $5,000 should be split between Loeser, Piquett, and myself.

Q.—After that did you hear from Dillinger? A.—One day, I don't remember the date, Dillinger called and arranged to meet me at Sacramento and Augusta boulevard. Piquett told me to tell Dillinger that the doctor to be used for the plastic work was a good surgeon and to be trusted implicitly. He also told me to tell Dillinger about Probasco; that his place was a good place to stay.

Dillinger Gets the Message.

Q.—Did you give Dillinger the message? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said: "I'll let you know shortly."

Q.—Did you hear from him again? A.—Yes. We arranged to meet on the street in front of Probasco's home [2509 North Crawford avenue] that night, May 27.

Q.—Did Piquett go with you? A.—Yes. He came to my home, then we left for Probasco's residence together.

Q.—Did you see Dillinger? A.—Yes, he was walking up and down on the sidewalk.

Q.—Did you join him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go in together? A.—Yes.

Q.—Whom did you see? A.—Probasco.

Q.—Did Piquett introduce Probasco to Dillinger? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did Piquett say? A.—He said: "Jimmy, this is my famous client, John Dillinger."

At this point court was adjourned. This morning O'Leary will finish his testimony. He will be followed to the stand by Dr. Loeser, who is another important government witness.

DR. CASSIDY'S STORY

Dr. Cassidy in his testimony told the story of his part in what went on at Probasco's home. Pale and nervous, constantly stroking his face with his hands, uncertain in his answers, this young doctor, who stands in relation to his profession much as the lawyer-criminal does in his group, testified under the constant prodding and reminders of Prosecutor Woll.

Dr. Cassidy is young but his face shows the ravages of dissipation. He said he had studied medicine at the University of Illinois and had practiced in Chicago. He lives at 1830 Lawrence avenue. He said he had known Piquett for five years, O'Leary for seven years, and Dr. Loeser since last May.

"On M.y 28 last," he said, "I received a telephone call from O'Leary. I dressed and went to his home in the Lincoln Park Arms hotel. He asked me to accompany him to supervise some work to be done by an unlicensed doctor."

"Did he say it was for a man who was hot?" asked Woll.

"I think he did."

Goes to Probasco's Home.

Cassidy continued: "I rented a car, picked up O'Leary and Loeser, and drove to 2509 North Crawford avenue. Loeser got out several blocks away. O'Leary and I went in. Loeser came in later. I was introduced to James Probasco and to another man called John."

Prosecutor Woll produced pictures of Dillinger and Cassidy was asked if this was the man he had met in the house.

"Yes, that is John," he said.

Q.—What was done next? A.—Loeser said he would examine the man. He asked him what identification marks he had that he wanted removed. Dillinger took off part of his clothes and lay down on a bed in the adjoining room. He was asked if he wanted a general or local anesthesia. He said a general. I prepared a makeshift mask out of a towel and administered ether. Suddenly he stopped breathing and Loeser and I had to give him artificial respiration to get him breathing again.

Quizzed About Operation.

Q.—What was done in the way of an operation on this day, May 28? A.—A mole was removed from his eyebrow, two incisions were made in the side of his face, one under the chin and one on the nose.

Q.—How long did you remain? A.—Until the following Saturday, about five days. Then I went to the Lincoln Park Arms and got a room. I had not slept much. The next day, Sunday, O'Leary came and said I had to go back, that the man was not satisfied with the work. I said I didn't want to go back any more.

Q.—Did you see Louis Piquett? A.—Yes, sir. That same day he came to my room. He woke me up, as far as I remember. I had been sleeping 8 or 10 hours and was confused. Piquett said to go back there.

Admits Receiving $600.

Q.—Was any money given to you on that day? A.—Yes, $600.

Q.—Was it given to you by Piquett? A.—I thought it was until O'Leary told me he gave it to me. I was confused from that time on.

Cassidy admitted that he told government investigators Piquett had given him the money.

Cassidy said he received $1,200 in all for his work. The second $600 was paid on June 3.

Q.—Did you go back to Probasco's house that Sunday night, June 3? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Piquett? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who else? A.—Probasco, a woman who cooked for him, John Dillinger, Homer Van Meter [Dillinger lieutenant who was later slain by police in St. Paul], and O'Leary.

Dillinger Surgery Done Over.

Q.—What was done? A.—The work on Dillinger's face was done over, facial work was done on Van Meter and also their fingers were treated. [This latter treatment was in an effort to thwart finger print records].

Q.—What other work was done on Dillinger? A.—The original incisions were reopened and there was additional work on the cleft of the chin.

Q.—After this operation how long did you stay at Probasco's house? A.—Until the following Saturday.

Q.—Did you see Piquett there. A.—Yes, one night during the week.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Edwin T. Peifer, Cassidy said that Piquett was not in the house during the operation.

OTHER WITNESSES

Mrs. Lillian Holley was the first witness for the government. She was sherif of Lake county, Ind., and thus in charge of the county jail at Crown Point when Dillinger escaped.

The county, Mrs. Holley testified, had bought her a Ford sedan which was equipped with a red light in front and a siren. This car was removed from a garage near the jail "by an unauthorized person" on March 3, and was later returned to her by the Chicago police, she said. She identified pictures of Dillinger as those of the "unauthorized person."

Lew Baker, warden of the Crown Point jail, testified that he first saw Piquett in the jail on Jan. 31, 1934. He was there four or five times, Baker said, the last time on Feb. 26 with a woman. On Feb. 16 he appeared with O'Leary.

Blunk Identifies Fingerprints.

Ernest S. Blunk, the young finger print expert of the jail, identified the card bearing Dillinger's finger prints which he took.

"I did all the finger prints," he said.

"Did you ever see the defendant, Piquett?" he was asked by Mr. Woll.

"I saw him in the Crown Point courtroom at the time of Dillinger's arraignment."

In describing Dillinger's famous wooden gun escape, Blunk said that on the morning of March 3, Dillinger, after he got out of jail, walked a block to a garage, entered by a side door, and told the mechanics he wanted the fastest car in the place.

Blunk Drives Dillinger Away.

"He had a Thompson submachine gun," said Blunk, "and menaced us all. He ordered me to get behind the wheel. He told Ed Saeger to get in and Herbert Youngblood, a colored prisoner who escaped with him."

"What happened?"

"He ordered me to drive north, then turn west, then south, then west, and we went in that direction until he dumped us out of the car at Peotone, Ill."

Edwin Saeger, garage mechanic, was the next witness.

"Dillinger and Blunk came walking up and wanted the fastest car," he said, describing the escape. "I saw a machine gun."

"Who had the gun?"

"Mr. Dillinger. He ordered the doors opened and the car went out."

OPENING STATEMENTS

At the opening of the day's court session Prosecutor Woll read the indictment to the jury, and also the section of the penal code under which Piquett is accused. As to the evidence, Mr. Woll said this in his opening statement:

"We will show that the relationship of the defendant with John Dillinger was not that of attorney and client. It was that of a fugitive with an individual who happens to be practicing law.

"This conspiracy was not confined to Dillinger and Piquett, but was also with Jimmy Probasco, Arthur O'Leary, and Wilhelm Loeser. There is no claim that they were clients. O'Leary was employed at Piquett's law office."

Defense Makes General Denial.

Attorney Edwin T. Peifer for the defense made this statement to the jury:

"We will prove that in January, 1934, Piquett had a communication from Crown Point to the effect that Dillinger wanted to consult him as a lawyer. We will show that Piquett made the trip there and consulted with Dillinger and arranged to represent him in the Indiana state cases.

"He filed his court appearance in January and in February consulted with Dillinger frequently. On March 3 he heard over the radio that Dillinger had broken jail.

"Their relationship was that of attorney and client. We deny each act in the indictment. If any of these acts was done it was without the knowledge of the defendant. They were the acts of other persons, independent of the acts of Piquett."

KIN OF HAMILTON TO BE TRIED IN MICHIGAN FOR HARBORING DILLINGER

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Steve, sister of John Hamilton, the government's No. 1 public enemy, will be tried on a charge of harboring John Dillinger when federal court convenes at Marquette in April. She was to have been tried here, but the case was continued in the local federal court today.

Mrs. Steve was indicted at the June term of court here on a charge that Hamilton and Dillinger visited for several hours at her home in Algonquin, a Sault Ste. Marie suburb, on the night of April 17, 1934.

The case was postponed because two department of justice agents are required in Chicago at the trial of Attorney Louis Piquett, also on a charge of harboring Dillinger.

SIX ARE SLAIN BY KENTUCKY MAN; ENDS OWN LIFE

Wife and Kin Are Among Shooting Victims.

Brodhead, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Six persons were shot to death in the eastern Kentucky foothills near here today and two others were wounded by a crazed gunman. The slayer then wrote his "last wish and will" and took his own life in a nearby tourist cabin, where he had engaged a room.

George Collett, former keeper of a roadhouse near here, shot to death his wife, Stella; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Helton; a neighbor couple, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Bordes, and a brother-in-law, Howard Helton. Another brother-in-law, Carlos Helton, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Lona Helton Jackson, were wounded, but survived.

A coroner's jury late today named Collett as the killer and attributed the wholesale slaughter to his desperation as a fugitive from justice. State police were hunting him on bank robbery and theft charges.

Troops Ordered Out.

Detachments of state troops were ordered out from Frankfort and Harrodsburg to hunt the slayer, but were recalled after Sherif D. G. Clark and other officers found his unclothed body at a tourist cabin near here.

Before the slayings had become known Collett had eaten breakfast at a restaurant here, and in his pockets in the cabin County Judge Charles C. Carter found his "last wish and will." The notes apparently scrawled in the early light of dawn, after willing his two pistols to a friend, set aside $100 to have an account written of the tragedy and flowers to be put on Collett's grave, and accused police of having driven his wife crazy.

Kills Wife and Kin.

Collett met his brothers-in-law on a road, shot both, killing one. Then he went to the home of his wife's parents in the Copper creek settlement several miles away. He shot to death Helton, who was in the kitchen. Then he shot his wife, Stella, and his mother-in-law in bed, killing them, and wounding Mrs. Jackson.

From the shambles of the Helton home he went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Bordes several miles away and shot to death Mrs. Bordes as she slept in her bed and killed Bordes in the yard of the home. The slaying of the couple was attributed by their son, State Patrolman Burgis Bordes, to revenge over the part he was playing in the hunt on the theft charge. Violet Jackson, 5 years old, was the only person in the Helton home who was not killed or wounded.

IN PRISON 26 YRS., HE FINDS WORLD NOW 'DISGUSTING'

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Benjamin Ullmo, who returned to France last year after twenty-six years as a convict in the Devil's Island prison colony in French Guiana, left here today disappointed with civilization. He is voluntarily returning to Devil's Island, where he suffered untold hardships, despite the fact that he had found a good job in Paris.

"What has struck me most since my return to France," said the former convict, "is the extraordinary spiritual collapse in the world and the decline in conscience and intelligence.

"I have been less impressed by the material progress that has taken place in these twenty-six years. It is not so much the lowering of moral standards as the immeasurable stupidity of present day humanity, which regards itself as so superior."

Fog, Blizzard, Hurricane Grip Europe; 2 Boats Sink; 18 Die

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Fog, blizzard, hurricane, and bitter arctic cold gripped most of Europe today, bringing death and suffering to many nations. Shipping was in distress and communications were paralyzed.

Thirteen persons were believed to have drowned tonight on the sinking steam trawler Edgar Wallace, which ruck a sandbank in the fog bound River Humber. Three of the crew were rescued. One of the survivors said the trawler heeled over and filled with water, sinking quickly.

Five woodcutters perished, it is feared, in an attempt to cross the Danube river at Ada Huja island near Belgrade as a terrific blizzard lashed the district. The men were part of a crew whose boats were caught in a crush of ice when they strove to reach the mainland in frail boats. Ten boats were damaged and one sank.

Balkan Blizzard Rages.

Children were kept indoors at Basiljeba, Jugo-Slavia, as the severe winter weather revived fears of attacks by famished wolves. The beasts were reported to have killed 100 sheep in the vicinity.

Railroad and telegraph trafic throughout Jugo-Slavia was tied up by the blizzard and communication with the Dalmatian coast virtually severed.

Similar conditions prevailed in Hungary and Austria, where ten inches of snow fell in twenty-four hours. More than 22,000 workers, including many women, found employment digging Vienna out from beneath its icy blanket.

A hurricane which swept the Black sea for three days left many vessels in distress. The Danish steamer Bornholm went aground at Novorossiisk. The soviet tanker Grozny became unmanageable and sent out an SOS. The steamship Batum sped to its assistance. The steamer Bolshevik reported itself in difficulties off Eupatoria because of drifting ice.

Hundreds Homeless in Turkey.

In Turkey hundreds of persons made homeless by recent earthquakes suffered in intense cold. Subterranean rumblings were reported in progress, driving panic stricken peasants out of doors.

A heavy blanket of fog settled down over southern England tonight. Two air liners from the continent were forced down before they reached the Croydon airport.

Unusual cold was reported in Rome and Paris. Even the French Riviera, where tourists seek refuge from winter's rigors, suffered from piercing cold winds, accompanied by a light snowfall.

Two survivors were taken to Hull tonight. One of them, Clarence Wilcox, said the Edgar Wallace struck a sand bank, heeled over, and filled with water, sinking quickly.

SPECIAL AGENT, CLERK IN KANSAS CITY ARE SUSPENDED BY ICKES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes today suspended A. F. Reaney, special agent in charge of the Kansas City office of the interior department division of investigation, "for the good of the service."

Ickes also suspended William T. Nix, chief clerk in the Kansas City office, on the same ground.

No comment was made on reasons for the action except that the suspensions would be followed by filing of formal charges.

Carl G. Schenken of the investigation office here was sent to Kansas City several days ago and is acting head of the office.

ARGENTINE MOBS RIOT AS SLAYER IS PUT TO DEATH

SANTIAGO DEL ESTERO, Argentina, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Protesting crowds rioted in the streets today as an army firing squad put to death Corporal Luis Paz, convicted of murder.

Paz was the first Argentine to pay the supreme penalty since 1930, when martial law was in effect. A firing squad executed two murderers that year. Argentina has no capital punishment except in cases coming under military law, and Paz' execution for the slaying on an. 2 of Maj. Carlos Sabella, chief of the 18th infantry regiment, caused widespread protests.

The crowds threw stones at troops standing guard and the troops fired volleys into the air to scare them off. Throughout the day demonstration after demonstration presented petitions asking for clemency. Crowds surrounded the army barracks almost continually. Just before he died, Paz acted as godfather at the baptism of his niece. The condemned man's fiancée served as godmother.

DOMESTICS FILE CLAIMS AGAINST MRS. VANDERBILT

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two former domestics, who testified against Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt in her fight with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for custody of her daughter, 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt, have filed claims for services against the society beauty.

This was disclosed today when Thomas B. Gilchrist, co-guardian of little Gloria's $3,500,000 estate, filed with Surrogate James A. Foley an accounting of Mrs. Vanderbilt's expenditures for 1933 and 1934. She has asked for a budget of $51,910—which would be taken from her daughter's estate—for 1935.

The domestics who filed claims against Mrs. Vanderbilt are Emma Sullivan Keislich, nurse for Gloria, and Charles Zaug, former butler. The nurse claims a back salary of $1,500. The butler seeks $75 which he says he paid out for Mrs. Vanderbilt for liquor, cables, and candy. Gilchrist recommended the nurse be paid.

INFORMS COURT DE PRIEST IS OUT OF WORK; BROKE

Oscar De Priest, colored ex-congressman from the First Illinois district, was represented as being out of funds and out of work when cited before Municipal Judge N. J. Bonelli on a $39 judgment for an unpaid stationery bill.

Attorney Joseph Mockus Jr., for the plaintifs, said De Priest had told him he had paid income taxes with his last $1,500, and that he had spent the rest of his money for expenses of his unsuccessful campaign for reélection last November.

De Priest, a former real estate man who is living with his son at 4538 South Parkway, declined to comment. Attorney Mockus reserved the right to file another petition for examination of De Priest in 90 days.

JURY SELECTION IN BUS MURDER TRIAL DRAGS ON

Seat 3 Tentatively to Try Taber and Kehoe.

The selection of the jury to try William Taber and Joseph J. Kehoe, officials of the street car men's union, for the murder of James J. Kelly, 5031 Maypole avenue, a dispatcher for the Chicago Motor Coach company, moved slowly yesterday in the second day of the trial in Judge William V. Brothers' Criminal court.

Two veniremen who were tentatively accepted by both sides on the opening day of the trial were peremptorily excused yesterday, but later both sides accepted conditionally three other men. Until a complete panel of four jurors is sworn in, however, these three still are subject to peremptory challenge.

When court adjourned yesterday the state had used five of its peremptory challenges and the defense seven of its forty challenges.

The state is endeavoring to hold the two union officials responsible for the Kelly murder on Sept. 26 and for other acts of violence which occurred during an unsuccessful strike conducted against the Motor Coach company by a newly organized local of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employés of America. The street car union of Taber and Kehoe is another local of the Amalgamated. Taber is secretary-treasurer and Kehoe is recording secretary.

The two defendants are accused of aiding and abetting the crimes by furnishing moral and financial support to the strikers and to the sluggers alleged to have been hired in the dispute.

Storm Downs Plane Taking Medical Aid to Gen. Calles

Glendale, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—An airplane carrying Dr. Lucien L. Miner and a nurse on an errand of mercy to Mexico, presumably to treat former President Plutarco Elias Calles, was forced down because of inclement weather at Santa Ana tonight. The plane, chartered by the Mexican government, flew into the teeth of a storm after taking off from the Grand Central airport here.

BOLIVIAN TROOPS CROSS FRONTIER; KILL ARGENTINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 9.—An incident which may lead to international complications was reported today from the frontier town of La Quiaca. Bolivian soldiers crossed the border and killed Anacleto Quispe, an Argentine citizen, because he refused to enroll in the Bolivian army, according to dispatches. The Bolivians, who arrived in two armored cars, fled to the border, but later returned, apparently seeking Quispe's body. Residents of La Quiaca repulsed them and captured one of the cars.

IDENTIFY GIBSON PAL AS SUSPECT IN '29 MASSACRE

Hunted as Finger Man in Valentine's Day Crime.

Byron Bolton, 36 years old, captured by federal agents Tuesday night in the raid at 3920 Pine Grove avenue in which Russell Gibson was slain, was identified yesterday as a man sought by Chicago police for nearly six years for participation in the St. Valentine's day massacre.

According to information in the hands of police and Harold Nathan, assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the division of investigation of the department of justice, Bolton apparently fled from Chicago after the massacre and did not join the Barker-Karpis gang until after the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer.

How Bolton was traced after the 1929 massacre of seven George [Bugs] Moran gangsters and how the information which eventually pointed to him as the man captured Tuesday was secured was told by Lieut. William Cusack of the Chicago detective bureau.

Find Clew in Watchers' Room.

After the killings, in a garage at 2122 North Clark street, it was learned that two men had rented a room across the street a week before, obviously to get the "lay of the land." In the abandoned room was found a letter addressed to "Byron Bolton," and it bore a postmark of Virden, Ill.

Lieut. Cusack went to Virden and found Bolton's parents living on a farm between it and Thayer, both small towns in the central part of the state. He obtained a picture of Bolton from the father, and it was identified as that of one of the men who had rented the room across from the garage.

The elder Bolton also declared his son had been in the navy during the war. Lieut. Cusack traced Byron Bolton's movements to St. Louis, and learned that he had been a chauffeur for Fred [Killer] Burke. Burke had been identified as a participant in the massacre, but is now serving a life term in the Michigan penitentiary for another murder.

Linked to Machine Gun Sale.

Police also learned that a machine gun had been sold to a Byron Bolton and Willie Heeney, the latter a known member of the old Capone gang.

When Bolton was taken into custody Tuesday, he first gave the name of Willie Harrison of St. Louis. Later, however, Mr. Nathan declared he had said he was really Byron Bolton of Thayer, Ill.

Mr. Nathan learned also that the captive had been a sailor during the war, and that information, together with the picture obtained by Lieut. Cusack, clinched the identification. Lieut. Cusack plans to question Bolton today.

It was learned at the detective bureau that on Oct. 10 last, the department of justice in Washington forwarded to Chicago police a set of finger prints of Byron Bolton, with the notation if captured, to "hold for the United States government."

Gibson Indicted In St. Paul.

In the meantime, information came from St. Paul that Gibson had been indicted there under the name of Glen [Slim] Gray for handling part of the Bremer ransom money. Indicted with him were John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, Chicago politician, and eight others.

In addition to handling the ransom money, Gibson also is said to have participated in the actual kidnaping of the millionaire St. Paul brewer, according to Mr. Nathan.

Gibson also had been sought for a $75,000 bank messenger robbery in Oklahoma City in 1929. He was arrested, but made his escape from the jail in that city.

Spurs Hunt for Karpis.

The slaying of Gibson has spurred the government search for Arthur [Doc] Barker, and Alvin Karpis, ringleaders of the kidnap gang, now under indictment for the abduction.

A post-mortem examination of Gibson's body showed that he was killed by a .351 caliber rifle bullet which pierced his bulletproof vest and lodged in his right lung.

In the wake of the gunfight in and around the 48 flat building where Gibson and his companions were trapped, came considerable resentment about the city over the methods employed by the agents.

It was pointed out that the agents made their raid without informing local authorities—neither the police commissioner or the captain of the district in which the gunfight and tear gas bombing took place.

Narrowly Miss 2d Battle.

As a result, Town Hall police responded to the calls of frightened residents of the neighborhood when the firing started. The police squads being ignorant of the fact that government men were conducting a raid, came close to having a pitched battle with the agents.

Mr. Nathan, when asked why police were not informed said that they were not concerned in the case. He also remarked that the agents had no time to inform them.

J. H. Twitchell, who was awakened from sleep when agents, mistaking his windows for those of the Gibson apartment, fired a volley of shots through them, then hurled in three tear gas bombs, declined to make any official condemnation of the government men.

"I'm too glad to be alive," he explained.

Police Commissioner James P. Allman also refused to comment on the action of the agents in not informing his department of the raid.

Ex-Follies Girl

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist, married in the Municipal chapel today Mrs. Johnny Dooley, a dancer in the musical show, "Merrily We Roll Along," under the stage name of Connie Madison. Broun gave his age as 47 and his bride said she was 26.

It was the second marriage for both principals. Broun's divorced wife, Ruth Hale, the feminist, died last fall. Mrs. Broun's first husband, Johnny Dooley, the comedian, died in 1928. He was a brother of Miss Ray Dooley, now playing in a Broadway production.

Mrs. Broun, whose parents, Anthony and Marie Jackavina, were born in Italy, has previously appeared in the Follies, Scandals, Vanities and the musical show "Hold Your Horses."

ORDERS SANITY TRIAL FOR MAN ASKING DIVORCE

In an unusual proceeding yesterday, Superior Judge Joseph B. David ordered Fred Damen, a real estate man, to submit to a sanity trial before a jury which will determine whether he is competent to continue with his divorce action against Mrs. Sierra Nevada Damen, 1430 Greenleaf avenue. The sanity hearing will be held tomorrow.

Damen was declared incompetent in the Cook county Probate court in 1931 and his wife was appointed conservator of his estate, valued at $200,000. Although the Probate court a year later pronounced Damen sane, Mrs. Damen told Judge David yesterday that she still acted as conservator and that her husband could not sue her without her consent. The court then ordered the sanity trial.

Damen, who is represented by Attorney Clarence Shaver, charges desertion. Dr. Francis McNamara and Dr. Alexander Herschfield will examine Damen before the jury.

FATHER OF FIVE GETS YEAR TERM FOR ARSON PLOT

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Schmitt, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to one to 20 years in the penitentiary by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan.

Stanley Sliva, Jerome Ring, Bruno Dash, Robert Tomlinson, and Andrew Phillips, robbery, sentenced to one year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Cosmo Del Prete, robbery, sentenced to life in the penitentiary by Judge Hugo M. Friend.

Anthony Radich, 53 years old, an automobile mechanic and father of five children, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction by Judge John C. Lewe of the Criminal court yesterday after he had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to burn his home at 3152 Shields avenue in order to collect $4,000 insurance. It was the 19th conviction in the state's attorney's drive against arsonists. Two others under indictment for this arson are now serving prison sentences on conviction in another case, and a third, Valentine Notari, who became a state's witness in a number of prosecutions, has not yet been tried.

Indictments in a new arson case were reported voted by the grand jury yesterday against Ben Maldofski, 55 years old; his son, Saul, 27 years old; Sol Solomon, a business partner, and Notari. They were accused of having on April 9, 1929, fixed a six flat building at 1247 West Roosevelt road with stores on the first floor. Insurance of $4,000 was increased to $9,000 45 days before the fire. Notari, who was a witness before the grand jury, said he received $900.

HUNT INDIANANS IN KIDNAPING OF WABASHSTUDENT

Youth Held Prisoner in 2 Cities, He Says.

A gang of Hoosier hoodlums was blamed last night for the kidnaping of Allen C. Bomberger, 22-year-old post-graduate student at Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind., by the young man's father, Lowden L. Bomberger, a Hammond attorney.

Young Bomberger, a member of the Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholarship fraternity, was freed by his kidnapers early yesterday, 30 hours after he was abducted. He telephoned Central district police at 3 a. m. from the Great Northern hotel, saying he had just been released from the kidnapers' automobile nearby.

No ransom was paid, although $50,000 was demanded of the elder Bomberger in the letter his son said he had written from a room somewhere in Chicago at the kidnapers' order Monday morning. Bomberger received the special delivery letter at his Hammond law office at 4:30 p. m. that day. No instructions were given for payment of the money and the father said he did nothing while waiting for another note.

Unable to Pay $50,000.

Bomberger indicated that if the kidnaping had occurred five years ago he could have paid $50,000 ransom, but declared that even had the abduction gang followed through with their demand he could not have paid "any part" of it at this time. The family fortune was wiped out by Hammond bank failures, he said.

Allen Bomberger was said by members of his family to be sleeping off the nervous strain of his experience last evening. Reporters were not permitted to interview the youth and Bomberger was not certain he would permit his son to talk today.

The story told his father by the Wabash student was substantially the same as that given to police, that his experience began Sunday evening when he accepted the offer of a "lift" from two men and a woman in the college town of Crawfordsville, Ind. They bound, blindfolded, and gagged him, and drove to a city he was sure was Indianapolis.

Taken to Indianapolis.

After a short stay in a house there, the youth said he was placed in the car again and taken to Chicago, arriving early Monday morning. In a room he believed was in a bungalow, Bomberger was held prisoner until his release about 24 hours later. While in this room he was forced to write the ransom demand, and subsequently a second merely stating, "We mean business," he said.

The father and Dean George Kendell of Wabash college said they believed Bomberger's story. Sergts. Thomas McCreash and Edward Dennis of the Chicago detective bureau would not express any opinion of its veracity, but pointed out that Bomberger's clothing was unsoiled and he appeared to have been freshly shaven at the end of his captivity. Federal agents of the department of justice merely said they were investigating.

Wife's Sobs Save Husband from Trip to Alimony Row

Mrs. Dorothy Shaffer, 1004 North Kedzie avenue, appeared before Superior Judge Desort yesterday against her estranged husband, Paul, 2816 Harrison street, on a citation for being $26 in arrears on his $2 weekly temporary alimony payments. Shaffer said he was unable to pay, and on motion of Mrs. Shaffer's lawyer, Norman Becker, Judge Desort committed him to alimony row in the county jail. As her young husband was being led away, Mrs. Shaffer burst into tears. "I've changed my mind," she sobbed. "I don't want him to go to jail." Paul also wept. Judge Desort relented and gave Paul a new chance.

Miss Ruth Block, 23 years old, was severely bruised early yesterday when she fell from her bedroom window on the fourth floor of the Paxton hotel, 1432 North La Salle street. Questioned later at the county hospital, Miss Block said she often walked in her sleep. She was a freshman at the University of Iowa last year, and last summer was a cashier at a World's Fair concession. Her father, Sinus Block of Aplington, Ia., was notified of the accident.

SUES TO DIVORCE COL. K. E. HOBART, 108TH ENGINEERS

Col. Karl E. Hobart of the One Hundred and Eighth engineers, Illinois National Guard, an official of the Commonwealth Edison company, was sued for divorce in the Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Olive Gilbert Hobart, 123 Clifton avenue, Highland Park.

In her bill, drawn by Attorney Lloyd A. Faxon, Mrs. Hobart sets forth that they were married in 1911 and that he deserted her on Oct. 31, 1933. She asks custody of their two children, Mildred, 20 years old, and Lois, 16.

Mrs. Hobart also asks alimony, representing that her husband earns $700 a month as assistant to the superintendent of the utility company's street department. She asserts he owns property in Harvey, Ill., Biloxi, Miss., and Three Rivers, Mich., and has $42,000 life insurance.

ROBBER, 28, GETS LIFE TERM UNDER HABITUAL LAWS

Cosmo Del Prete, 28 years old, was found guilty of robbery by a jury yesterday and Judge Hugo M. Friend of the Criminal court immediately sentenced him under the habitual criminal act to a life term in the penitentiary at Joliet.

Del Prete robbed John Kornevich, 2003 Throop street, of $92 last Sept. 7 at 12th and Halsted streets.

He was released only a year before from the penitentiary where he was sent in 1927 to serve a one to ten year sentence for larceny. At that time he was charged with a $5,000 loop burglary, but the charge was changed to one of larceny.

U. S. QUESTIONS ECKHART'S LAST GIFTS TO FAMILY

Former Aid Is Quizzed in Tax Fight Hearing.

Gifts of nearly $2,000,000 made during the last year of his life by the late Bernard A. Eckhart to members of his family were questioned vigorously by government attorneys yesterday in the hearing at the Palmer house before Judge Charles A. Trammel of the United States board of tax appeals, through which the treasury is seeking to collect $1,237,481 in additional inheritance taxes.

Attorney Ralph Smith, head of the government legal staf, spent almost the entire day in cross-examination of Frank A. Kucera, former confidential secretary to the millionaire manufacturer. Kucera, on direct examination, had testified he believed Mr. Eckhart did not know he was suffering from cancer when he made the gifts in March and April, 1930, and so had not made them in anticipation of death, as the government charges.

Questioned on Last Days.

Attorney Smith centered his questions throughout yesterday's session on the events leading up to Mr. Eckhart's death, and drew from Kucera the admission that his employer had cut short his annual visit to California in March, 1930.

He said that when he visited Mr. Eckhart in his home here he saw day and night nurses, and added that he knew Mrs. Hazel E. Brophy, one of his employer's daughters, had arrived at the home about that time after cutting short a trip abroad. Mr. Eckhart did not return to his office, Kucera admitted later, although his presence "might have been desirable," due to the stock market crash.

Trace Market Transactions.

The government evinced interest in the market transactions which the magnate carried on from his home during his last days.

At the close of the day Mrs. Laura J. Weaver of Stevensville, Mich., who was Eckhart's private secretary from 1919 until his death at the age of 79 on May 11, 1931, took the stand. Her testimony was largely corroborative of Kucera's direct examination.

Lester A. Stern Divorces Wife on Desertion Charge

Lester A. Stern, 5555 Everett avenue, owner of the Lester Woolens company, 228 West Jackson boulevard, former tennis star at the University of Chicago, was granted an uncontested divorce from Phyllis Beekman Stern of the Surf hotel by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday. He testified they were married in 1919 in Brookline, Mass., and that she deserted him Sept. 9, 1933. In an out of court property settlement Stern agreed to pay $50 a month for the support of their son, Gabriel, 9 years old.

U. S. READY FOR ANY ARMS RACE OTHERS BEGIN

Plan Treaty Strength Navy in Two Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The United States navy will not be the first to steam across the starting line of a naval armament race, which may follow termination of existing naval limitation treaties on Dec. 31, 1936. This was learned today from high officials in the navy department.

In the ten days since Japan denounced the Washington and London treaties, which have limited the armament of the five great naval powers for more than a decade, the navy department has been developing its course for the next two years. The course will follow the American position that Japan has no right to parity with this country, it was reported.

Plan Full Strength.

As the first expression of its policy the navy department will continue its program, previously announced, of building up to the full strength of the existing treaties. When full strength has been reached the naval operations bureau plans to make all the replacements allowed under the existing treaties to modernize the fleet.

With expiration of the treaty the navy department plans to continue as though the treaties were to continue. If other nations make the first dash across the starting line, the navy department will have an answering program prepared for submission in congress.

It was revealed that overtures have been made in the navy department to reduce its building program as a friendly gesture to Japan, inviting a gentleman's agreement to decline to race. This was spurned by navy tacticians as giving Japanese chauvinistic propagandists the cry, "The United States is afraid of Japan."

Japan Saving Face.

Naval officers do not share the hopes of diplomats that another limitation agreement may be adopted before the present treaties expire. They are of the opinion, however, that Japan may make no move to begin a race because she will have saved her face with extremists at home by denunciation of the 5-5-3 ratio.

The denunciation also is viewed by some naval chiefs as a mere window dressing to Japanese designs for a Monroe Doctrine in China. In this event it is felt that Japan may be the first nation to increase naval armaments.

Naval officers view with distrust Japan's expressed willingness to cut naval armaments far below existing strengths so long as the cut is made on a basis of full parity. Their answer to such a reduction is their argument for continuance of the existing ratio—that the United States needs a superior fleet to protect its distant territory in Alaska and the Philippines.

Reject Tokio Proposal.

It also was made clair in the navy department that the United States will not consider the Japanese suggestion that all battleships, heavy cruisers, and aircraft carriers be eliminated in all fleets. Japan calls this suggestion an elimination of offensive weapons.

Adoption of this suggestion, it was said, would leave this country without means of defending its possessions, as smaller craft cannot operate over extended ranges. Naval tacticians say they cannot find any distinction between offensive and defensive armament.

The navy department also expects to pursue a policy of watchful waiting with regard to establishment of naval bases.

Increase Air Power.

In line with the program of building to the maximum treaty strength, Secretary of the Navy Swanson today announced that the navy will spend 35 million dollars on aircraft in the next fiscal year. Of this sum 12½ million dollars will go to building 272 additional planes and the balance for replacing 282 existing planes and paying for others now under construction.

The sum will be spent in furthering the navy's plan to have 1,910 planes by 1942. The air fleet now numbers about 1,000 planes.

RAIL EMPLOYE FALLS DEAD.

Joseph Miller, 43 years old, an employé of the Chicago and North Western railway, died yesterday apparently of heart disease as he was leaving his home, 4523 North Paulina street.

JAPAN ASKS FACTS ON ARREST OF PHOTO TAKING LIEUTENANT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The Japanese embassy has requested the state department for a report on the facts of the detention by immigration officials at St. Petersburg, Fla., on Jan. 1, of Lieutenant Commander Yoshio Matsuda of the Japanese navy after he had made photographs of the waterfront and the cruiser Trenton.

The request was for information only. Whether or not a protest may be made will depend upon the information obtained, it is understood.

The state department asked the labor department for a statement of the facts, inasmuch as the detention was by immigration officers. This statement has not been completed.

FRANCE, ITALY MAY ASK HITLER TO ARMS PARLEY

Duce Prepares to Take Over African Lands.

ROME, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini made ready today to take over quickly Italy's new territories in Africa, ceded to her by France, as the suggestion was advanced that the two nations might invite Germany to renew discussions concerning disarmament.

Gen. Emilio de Bono, minister of colonies, was reported tonight preparing to sail for Africa shortly to supervise personally the incorporation into Eritrea of the strategic triangle of territory at the southern end of the Red sea.

Plan to Unite Administration.

It was expected an official communique would be issued tomorrow announcing De Bono's resignation from the cabinet and Mussolini's addition of the colonies portfolio to the six he already holds—foreign affairs, war, marine, aviation, interior, and corporations.

Gen. de Bono, veteran Fascist, also will effect the consolidation of Somaliland and Eritrea under one administration for greater efficiency.

The suggestion of German collaboration in an agreement for disarmament came from an authoritative source, which said France and Italy have chosen the Italian disarmament memorandum of last January as the basis for granting Germany partial rearmament, provided she returns to the league of nations and enters the proposed nonintervention pact for central Europe.

Hit German Rearmament.

An official communique issued last night giving the details of the several agreements Mussolini and Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, concluded during the latter's four day visit to Rome said the two agreed that no power could abrogate its obligations concerning armaments by an "unilateral act."

This was taken to mean Italy and France would not recognize Germany's alleged rearmament under present conditions. The fact that the agreement provided for consultation between France and Italy in case such unilateral modification did take place was regarded, however, as indication the two powers may make some concessions if Germany returns to Geneva and otherwise plays ball.

The Italian memorandum would have accorded six ton tanks and limited military aviation to Germany, even though both forms of armament were banned under the treaty of Versailles, and allowed her an army of 300,000 men.

Discussion today of the French concessions in Africa revealed the general belief that the 400 square miles of French Somaliland fronting on the entrance to the Red sea had much greater importance than the 44,500 square miles of French territory in central Africa to be added to Italy's Libya.

The Somaliland grant commands the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb linking the Red sea and the Gulf of Aden, and puts Italy almost on equal footing with France and Great Britain in policing and controlling the strait. Off the Italian acquisition is the tiny island of Perim, belonging to Britain, which might be fortified should Italy fortify her new coast line.

The broad implications of the rapprochement Laval and Mussolini worked out was further demonstrated today with expression of the hope that Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister and spiritual father of the little entente, would come back to Rome to confer with Mussolini.

RUSSIA EXPELS 7 PROFESSORS IN SCHOOL PURGE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 9.—Seven professors in soviet colleges, including members of the communist party, have been expelled in the drive to rid educational institutions of teachers suspected of wooing youth away from communist ideals. The cleansing is now going on with the object of ejecting undesirable or disloyal members of the communist party in Uzbejistan.

The seven professors expelled include Vice Chancellor Brokhin of the state university at Dniepropetrovsk, where there recently have been complaints that faculty members were spreading counter revolutionary ideas through classroom lectures and where the secretary of the city party committee and other officials were discharged for tolerating disloyal teachings. All seven are accused of propagating Trotzkyist principles, which was one of the charges against Leonid Nicolaeff and 13 others executed last month following Nicolaeff's assassination of Sergei Kirov, communist leader.

CANADA POLITICS IN UPROAR OVER NEW DEAL ISSUE

Bennett's Leap to Radical Camp Splits Cabinet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9.—Minimum wages and a maximum working week, unemployment insurance and health and accident insurance, scaling down of farmers' debts and jacking up their borrowing powers—a conservative prime minister, Richard B. Bennett, multi-millianaire and heretofore regarded as dyed in the wool Tory reactionary, is offering Canada advanced and radical legislation with such bewildering rapidity that the dominion's voters are wondering where it will all lead.

Premier Bennett's first utterance along these lines fell like a bolt from the blue upon the Canadian people over a nation-wide broadcast. His political enemies and his political friends strained their ears and rubbed their eyes as they listened and then read. The premier's cabinet colleagues, who reputedly had not been consulted, held private conferences about their leader's amazing "new deal" policies. One of them, Secretary of State Charles H. Cahan, tendered his resignation, it is understood, and two others, Sir George Perley and National Revenue Minister Charles R. Matthews are said to be on the point of resigning from Bennett's cabinet.

Proposals Are Outlined.

So far the prime minister's reform policies, announced on the eve of a parliamentary sitting and a few months away from a national election, have embraced the following definite proposals:

Establishment throughout Canada of a uniform wage and uniform maximum working week.

Abolition of child labor and sweatshops.

Unemployment insurance and abolition of the dole.

Scientific old age pensions.

Health, accident, and sickness insurance.

Raising the rewards of primary producers.

Scaling down of farm debts.

Increasing farmers' loaning powers and facilities.

Protection of producers from middlemen.

Reorganization of civil service.

Merging of government communication services, including rail, radio, telegraph, wireless, and postal.

Establishment of an economic council of Canada.

Aids Snipe at Premier.

The country literally is holding its breath while the prime minister prepares for two concluding broadcasts. Parliamentary opposition groups are withholding official comment, although party lieutenants are sniping at the premier and calling him "Marxist" and "opportunist." James Ralston, Liberal party financial critic in the house of commons, calls it "election tub-thumping."

But whatever it is this aristocratic alleged "autocrat" and "dictator" in Canadian public affairs has the Canadian people looking at him with an intensity of interest never before known in the dominion's political affairs. Two months ago nine out of ten political prophets in the country would have said Bennett was due for an election trimming of devastating character; now they are wondering.

SEEK STORY OF 'SUGAR SQUEEZE' FROM WALLACE

Vandenberg to Ask Who Cornered Supply.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A demand that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace explain to the United States the spectacular "squeeze" on the December sugar market will be made tomorrow by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.].

Senator Vandenberg will introduce a resolution in the senate calling on Wallace to disclose the identity of the persons who cornered the December sugar supply and profited by squeezing other speculators who needed sugar to fulfill contracts. The resolution will also demand that Wallace report fully how the New Deal's sugar program became a tool in the hands of the speculators who worked the squeeze.

Made Possible by Quotas.

The Vandenberg resolution will declare bluntly that "this corner in sugar for domestic consumption resulted, in part, from the use of market limitations created by the Jones-Costigan act," the law which embodies the New Deal sugar control plan.

Formal senate investigation of the whole sugar squeeze and the part which government policies or officials played in it will be demanded by Senator Vandenberg if, in his judgment, the evidence submitted by Wallace warants it. Private inquiries have already disclosed that the speculators' corner was made possible by the New Deal sugar quotas and by the state department's refusal to "talk turkey" to Cuba on that country's December price pegging on sugar.

By asking immediate consideration of his resolution Senator Vandenberg hopes to put through his demand for information tomorrow. If the Democratic majority blocks this course, the senate, nevertheless, under its rules of procedure will be required to pass upon the resolution the following day, Friday.

Five Demands on Wallace.

Five specific requests for information from Wallace will be contained in the resolution. Most important is the demand that Wallace, through the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, disclose the identity of those speculators who cornered the sugar market. Private reports, which are unconfirmed, have indicated that persons in or closely identified with the New Deal may have been using the New Deal's own sugar programs for their private profit.

Senator Vandenberg will also ask that Wallace report "the history of the dealings of all government departments with the merchandising of the 1934 Cuban sugar quota in the United States."

It was the state department's refusal to "crack down" on Cuba for her price pegging on December sugar which enabled the speculators to push through their squeeze to a successful conclusion, according to independent surveys.

State Department Balks AAA.

Despite informal representations from the AAA, the state department refused to put pressure on Cuba to modify this price policy, and this refusal materially aided the corner. The resolution which Senator Vandenberg will introduce tomorrow will read:

"Whereas, it is generally understood that a group of so-called 'long traders' in sugar, operating through the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, cornered the market in December futures, forcing an ultimate settlement with so-called 'short traders' who were speculative sellers; and

"Whereas, this corner in sugar for domestic consumption resulted, in part, from the use of market limitations created by the Jones-Costigan act, and, in part, by the price-fixing decrees of the Cuban government in respect to sugar sales in the continental United States; and Asks Secretary's Report.

"Whereas, any such speculation at home and any such price-manipulation and price-fixing abroad threatens the welfare of domestic consumers, and may threaten the welfare of domestic producers, and, in any event, jeopardizes the integrity of the Jones-Costigan act and may nullify its domestic purposes; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the secretary of agriculture is requested to report to the senate

"[a] all information at the disposal of the department and the agricultural adjustment administration respecting this December corner in sugar and the ultimate results as found by the exchange and by these departments;

"[b] the history of the dealings of all government departments with the merchandising of the 1934 Cuban sugar quota in the United States;

"[c] the names of all so-called 'long' and 'short' traders in December futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange;

"[d] the names of the board of directors of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, and the personnel of the Cuban sugar stabilization institute, and the identification of any banks or other financial institutions in the United States known to have been connected with the financing, or the refusal to finance, the 1934 Cuban sugar crop; and

"[e] such recommendations as he may care to make for additional legislation to protect the Jones-Costigan act, and for legislation, if deemed necessary, to control commodity dealings on the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange."

Britain Reveals Former Kaiser Pictured Self as Divine Agent

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A year before the outbreak of the world war, Wilhelm Hohenzollern, then kaiser of Germany, said "he was convinced he had been entrusted by heaven with the mission of maintaining the peace of Europe."

This is one of a number of revelations made in the latest edition of a series of British foreign office documents which are being published with the approval of the British government. They are titled "British documents of the origins of the war."

Lord Granville, then British secretary of the embassy, reported the above statement by the kaiser. It was made, he said, "with eyes gleaming and his fist thumping the air."

Sought Aid of England.

The kaiser argued with him about "England's fatal mistake in attaching herself to France and Russia." He denounced the Russians as "an oriental race under a western veneer." If Russia attacked Austria, he said, Germany "must fight," but it "was England's business to keep France quiet."

The possibility of war between England and Germany "was unthinkable," the kaiser told the diplomat. A year later it was a reality.

The kaiser went on to boast that Germany was the only country that "had never intrigued and never tried to 'grab,'" and when Lord Granville protested that neither had England, the emperor retorted: "You are the worst of the lot; your representatives have intrigued against mine everywhere."

Bares British Attitude.

British policy in this period is summed up in a statement by Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, in a telegram to Sir George Buchanan, British ambassador to Russia.

"As to our attitude in the event of war, I should endeavor, if war started between Russia and Austria, to secure that Germany, France, and Great Britain should stand aside," he said. "If this failed I cannot say what would happen."

This was sent in February, 1913, when Sir Edward said: "It seems unreasonable and intolerable that the greater part of Europe should be involved in war for a dispute about one or two towns on the Albanian frontier."

This particular Balkan dispute was patched up, but the following year the shot was fired in the Balkans that started the world war.

Saw Austria As Danger.

Soon after Sir Edward's message, the British ambassador talked with Czar Nicholas of Russia. Here is part of the ambassador's report:

"The emperor spoke of Austria without any bitterness, but as a source of weakness to Germany and as a danger to peace owing to the fact that Germany was bound to support her in her Balkan policy.

"His majesty apparently believes that the disintegration of the Austrian empire is merely a question of time. He spoke of the day when we should see a kingdom of Hungary and a kingdom of Bohemia. The southern Slavs might be absorbed by Serbia, the Rumanians of Transylvania by Rumania and the German provinces [Austria] incorporated in the German empire.

"The fact that Germany would have no Austria to entangle her in a war about the Balkans, his majesty said, would make for peace. I was unable to follow the emperor's train of thought . . . I therefore contented myself with remarking that such a change in the map of Europe was not likely to be effected with a general war."

Reveal Envoy's Prophecy.

These prophetic words were written home by the British ambassador in Vienna:

"The next time a Serbian crisis arises I feel certain that Austria-Hungary will refuse to admit of any Russian interference and that she will proceed to settle the differences with her little neighbor by herself, 'Coute que Coute'."

His report reveals that, just as Russia thought Austria-Hungary was ripe for a break-up, so in Vienna it was believed Russia was ripe for a revolution. The British foreign office admittedly regarded his reports "on the pessimistic side all through."

LOCKS UP $10,000 FOR 2 VISITORS; COMES TO GRIEF

Two days ago, Effihian Manouilides told the Rogers Park police last night, two men came to his tailor shop at 1610 Jonquil terrace and asked him to lock up $10,000 for them in his safe.

Mr. Manouilides obligingly opened the box, in which he had $800 of his own. The two visitors produced what were apparently three large packages of bills and placed them in the box. Then one of them picked up Manouilides' $800 and said:

"We will put this in this paper bag and in the strong box, so your money will not be mixed with ours."

The visitors did not return and yesterday Manouilides opened the box. The packages of "money" were bundles of paper, and the $800 was gone.

ANTI-NAZIS BEGIN DRIVE TO HAVE SAAR CUT IN TWO

Send Protest to League; Charge Vote Terrorism.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A move to have the Saar divided into two parts if it votes to return to Germany at Sunday's plebiscite got under way tonight as anti-Nazis protested to the league of nations against alleged Nazi "terrorism."

The league, the protest said, "must take existing terrorism into consideration when it interprets the final result of the plebiscite."

Partition of the territory was not specifically mentioned, but leaders of the Common Front (anti-Nazi) said that was what they meant.

Nazis Blamed for Disorders.

The protest placed on the German Front (Nazi) all the blame for recent disorders in the Saar. Tonight, however, a Nazi was reported stabbed by two communists at Altenwald following the breakup of a German Front meeting there.

International police quickly occupied the streets of Altenwald to prevent an outbreak such as that in Saarbruecken today when open fighting between Nazis and anti-Nazis, though quickly quelled by alert police, served to emphasize the tenseness gripping the region.

Numerous minor disorders happen almost daily throughout the territory, but so far none has had serious consequences.

Hint to League Council.

The anti-Nazi communication to the league was interpreted as an effort to start the league council thinking about what to do if supporters of the status quo [continuance of league of nations government] prove to constitute a large minority of the voters.

The common front leaders asserted the best protection for the voters against Germany would be division of the territory so as to provide a place for them to live under the league guarantee.

In Saarbruecken today, overwhelming forces of police and the land jaeger [gendarmes] pitched in to rout the contending factions. A detachment of the status quo started the trouble, raiding Waterloo street, where the German front had headquarters, and scattering propaganda newspapers on the sidewalks and in front yards. Several hundred Nazis promptly appeared to do battle, while persons popping their heads out of windows cheered them.

LASHES NAZI FOES

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—Under the slogan "the way is open for an understanding," Joseph Buerkel, Nazi commissar for the Saar plebiscite, addressed prospective German voters by radio today from Kaiserslautern.

He lashed at his opponents as Judases paid by France, or communists, but claimed that if the Saar is returned to Germany "misled supporters of the status quo will not be persecuted, it not being worth international difficulties."

He warned of the danger of the western strip of the Saar being separated from Germany, and asserted that "Germany would never accept such a solution."

Defends Hittler.

"It is the same as in the days of the world war, when a German soldier was told he must sacrifice his kaiser and then happiness would come," Buerkel declared. "Today we are being told that all Saarlanders would return to Germany if it were not ruled by Hitler. If we did not have Reichsfuehrer Hitler, hunger and misery would reign in Germany and the separatists would drive us to war."

He concluded by predicting: "The Saar people will show to the world a triumph of German character on plebiscite day. The Saar people are marching on. Frontier posts are toppling down. Germany yanks open the gates. The fuehrer breaks in—long live peace!"

Paul Hutchinson, Editor, to Talk on Saar Tonight

Dr. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of the Christian Century, who returned from Europe recently after a study of political conditions there, will speak tonight in the Congress hotel on the probable consequences of the Saar vote. Dr. Hutchinson is president of the Chicago committee for the Defense of Human Rights Against Nazism. The meeting is open to the public.

REVEAL AL SMITH'S REQUEST TO PROHIBIT NUDE HEROINE MOVIE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A request to President Roosevelt that the European film "Ecstacy" be barred from exhibition in this country was disclosed tonight to have been sent the chief executive by Alfred E. Smith, active in the "Legion of Decency" organization.

The White House said the request was turned over to the treasury department, which yesterday announced exclusion of the film. The telegram from former Gov. Smith was received several days ago, the White House said.

ANOTHER FRENCH LEADER RUINED BY STAVISKY AFFAIR

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Stavisky pawnship bankruptcy scandal, now more than a year old, blighted the career today of another figure prominent in public life.

Once more the trail of sensational repercussions led close to cabinet circles as Abel Prouharam, member of the state council and one of the highest judicial officers in France, was forced out of office for the part he was alleged to have played in the pardon of Henri Poulner, ex-convict and former friend of Serge Stavisky.

The cabinet decided yesterday that Prouharam should be removed unless he asked for retirement on pension, which he immediately requested. Prouharam admitted he wrote two letters in behalf of Poulner's pardon, but denied he did so with any improper motive. He said Poulner was pardoned by Senator Rene Renould, then minister of justice in the Herriot cabinet. Renould already has been disbarred for the part he played in the Stavisky affair and has been indicted on charges of corruption in connection with it.

3 RIOTERS SHOT IN MINNEAPOLIS GARAGE WALKOUT

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Three members of a rioting group of striking garage workers were wounded, none seriously, when they were struck by bullets from the gun of a special officer here today.

Fay Perkins, the officer, told police he fired into a sidewalk to scare the strikers, who had pushed in a large plate glass window in a garage, and that the bullets must have ricocheted. Police estimated there were approximately 75 men in the group.

The demonstration apparently was expected by motor company officials, because several members of the police department were assigned to the firm earlier in the morning.

The disturbance was the first one since the strike of garage mechanics began Jan. 3.

The national labor relations board was asked to intervene in the strike in a formal petition submitted to the board's regional headquarters here by the employers' committee.

FIRE DESTROYS RESTAURANT.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Fire destroyed a restaurant and gas station at Kappa, Ill., five miles north of here this morning. The fire was believed to be of incendiary origin. Ralph Goetzke of Bloomington, was the operator of the restaurant.

"I PAID $50,000 TO HAUPTMANN," CONDON SWEARS

Denies He Shared in the Kidnap Plot.

The eccentric teacher's verve and enthusiasm did not lessen throughout a long day in which the lawyers wilted.

Condon quickly rejected the suggestion of an early adjournment. He vigorously was jousting with the defense lawyer when court adjourned this afternoon. Condon told a couple of Irish anecdotes and enjoyed the laughter of the courtroom crowd.

During his ordeal on the stand, Condon smiled, laughed heartily, became solemn, stared grimly at Hauptmann, raised his voice almost to a shout, dropped it to a whisper. Condon waved his arms; waggled a forefinger at Attorney Reilly; he lectured Reilly about his English.

Condon bowed to the judge at intervals. He apologized at times for making an answer which was deemed legally improper. Condon arched his eyebrows; clapped a hand to his mouth in mock astonishment; laid a finger on his lips to indicate silence.

Judge Thomas W. Trenchard and the attorneys could not curtail Dr. Condon's own recital of all the ransom parleys. Condon told of his contact with the kidnapers after he had inserted an advertisment in the Bronx Home News offering $1,000 for a talk with the abductors.

FIRST MEETING WITH 'JOHN'

The first time he met "John," he talked with him for more than an hour while they sat together on a park bench in the Bronx, Condon said. There were more ransom notes after that and finally came the night when he and Col. Lindbergh drove to St. Raymond's cemetery with $70,000 in a wooden box according to the instructions in the last ransom note.

Condon told of walking along the cemetery wall and hearing a voice calling, "Hey, doctor, over here."

"The voice came from the cemetery," Condon said. "It was from a level about ten feet over my head. It repeated again, 'Over here.' It was a still night and I could hear clearly."

Repeats Ransom Talk.

Condon walked toward the voice, he testified, and came to a point where a small lane entered the cemetery. A hedge about five feet high began at that point, he said. A man back of the hedge said, "Here, doctor." [The witness imitated a German accent in uttering this phrase.]

There ensued the following dialog, according to Condon:

JOHN—Did you bring the money?

JOHN—Who's there?

CONDON—Col. Lindbergh.

JOHN—Is he armed?

CONDON—I don't know. No, he is not.

JOHN—Get me the money.

CONDON—Not until you give me a receipt, a note, showing me where the baby is. Now about the money. Col. Lindbergh isn't so rich. These are times of a depression. Why don't you be decent about it.

JOHN—Well, I suppose if we can't get $70,000, we will take $50,000.

LINDBERGH PAYS $50,000

The two then separated, Condon testified. He went back to the automobile where Col. Lindbergh abstracted $20,000 from the $70,000. Lindbergh gave him the remaining $50,000, Condon said, and Condon took it back to the hedge.

"He was crouching down under the hedge," Condon continued about the man he later paid. "I said, 'Come on, stand up like a man.'"

In regard to the exchange of Col. Lindbergh's $50,000 for the note the kidnaper said was to locate the baby Condon quoted "John" as saying of the note, "Don't open it yet."

"I said, 'I have never betrayed a confidence,'" Condon continued. "'I have carried out every order of both parties the best I could. I won't open it. I will take it up to Col. Lindbergh.'"

Questions and Condon's answers on direct examination covering this phase follow:

Q.—That is what you said to him? A.—I said to him, "Give me the note." He gave me the note and I handed him the box; the box therefore went to his right hand and I took the note from his left hand and put it in my pocket.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—Then he said, "Vait a minute," with that "V," "Vait a minute." I said, "All right." He got down there under the hedge, put his hand in the center of the box and picked out the money and said, "I want to see if it is all right—if it is marked——"

Tells of Exchange.

Q.—Then, as I understand it, with your left hand and arm you held this money box and he gave you the note with the other? A.—I gave him the money box in his right hand. He took the note out with his left hand from his pocket and handed it to me. I put that in my pocket and was about to turn away and he said, "Well, all of them said your work was perfect." "What is that?" I said. "All of them said that your work was perfect," he said. I said, "I know no other way"—all right?

Q.—Yes, sure. A.—"I know no other way to act. The truth again to a kidnaper is the same as it is to a judge." I hope the judge will pardon me.

THE COURT—Yes, go ahead, doctor. Go ahead. [Laughter.]

A.—All right. All right, judge.

THE COURT—Yes.

"Now he seemed pleased," Condon added, "and reached out his right hand then, having taken the package out of the box and putting it in his pocket. "I wanted to see if it was marked," he said.

Thereupon the two shook hands, Condon told the jury, and exchanged good nights.

"John, don't try to double cross me" was Condon's last word to the man as he turned away, he testified.

"And John is who?" Prosecutor Wilentz questioned for the third time.

"Bruno Rudolph—I mean Bruno Richard Hauptmann," Condon said.

Condon then described the reading of the note which told Col. Lindbergh to look for his son on a boat in the Atlantic between Horse Neck beach and Gayhead, near Elizabeth Island. He told also of the futile airplane search next day for the mythical boat.

Condon related that he and Col. Lindbergh left the cemetery. They drove to Westchester square, a mile away. There they read the note. Then they went to Condon's home. There they met Reich, a friend of Condon's, and Col. Breckinridge, Col. Lindbergh's lawyer. They went downtown to the home of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's father.

The note instructing them to look for a boat, on which the baby was to be found, said:

"The boy is on boad Nelly it is a small boad 28 feet long two person are on the boad the are innosent.

"You will find the boad between Horseneck beach and Gay Head near Elisabeth Island."

Start Futile Search.

After leaving the Morrow home they went by auto to Bridgeport, traveling through the night.

The questioning of Condon continued by Attorney Wilentz.

Q.—Who drove the car? A.—Col. Lindbergh.

Jafsie said the party arrived at Bridgeport about 4 or 5 a. m., departing at daybreak.

Q.—What did your party do then? A.—We went in an airplane from Bridgeport to the vicinity of Gay Head.

"How long were you in the air?" Condon was asked.

Condon asserted he kept no track of the time, but it was several hours.

Q.—Did Col. Lindbergh find his baby? A.—No.

Q.—Did you find the boat Nellie? A.—No.

Q.—Did Col. Lindbergh find the boat Nellie? A.—No.

Condon said he advertised, hoping for fresh directions and got no reply.

ATTACKS CONDON STORY

After Wilentz asked Reilly to take the witness, he asked another series of questions as to how John looked.

"He was about five feet nine and a half or five ten and a half," Condon said. "He was what you might call a middleweight, exceedingly active and well built."

"And his complexion?" Wilentz asked.

"I would say he was what I would call light, and, if I may use the term, his hair was a muddy blond," Condon said, adding "I have trained about 10,000 athletes, and you cannot deceive me. I felt his muscles when I sat alongside of him on the bench."

The witness then was surrendered to the defense.

The cross-examination started off with a bang. Attorney Reilly attacked the witness' judgment of "John" as a man about 158 to 165 pounds in weight by asking him questions about various weights in prize ring circles. The witness referred to the "great John L. Sullivan."

"I suppose I'm a heavyweight?" asked the lawyer, whose three chins and bulging form have been the occasion of much comment during the trial.

The spectators were given a glimpse of the unusual session to come. Instead of responding with the obvious "yes," Dr. Condon asked: "May I look?" The surprised lawyer found himself assenting.

Calls Reilly Heavyweight.

The witness left the stand, walked over to Attorney Reilly, and turned him around slowly. He regarded the broad back and portly proportions of the attorney.

"Undoubtedly a heavyweight," Condon said loudly, winking at the crowd.

Condon got a big laugh as he started back for the stand.

"And you're a heavyweight, too," remarked the lawyer, somewhat flushed.

"O, yes," was Condon's answer.

"So we start off even?" Reilly asked.

More laughter. Condon seemed pleased.

In angry voice Attorney Reilly asked if Condon ever had studied dramatics or appeared in amateur theatricals. The answer was in the negative. Condon also denied he ever had taught theosophy. The symbols on the ransom notes, interlocking circles, are regarded as having significance for students of theosophy.

Tries to Trap Condon.

"Aren't you the John Condon who signed his name in the New York public library for a book on signs two weeks before the kidnaping?" Attorney Reilly demanded suddenly. Condon's answer was a loud denial. Next, Attorney Reilly ordered the witness to take paper and pen. With alacrity, Condon responded, whipped out a fountain pen, accepted a pad, and looked eagerly at Reilly.

"Write the name John Condon," Attorney Reilly ordered.

"I won't; my name is John Francis Condon," Condon retorted.

"Well," said the attorney wearily, "will you write the name John?"

"Certainly," Condon said. He inscribed his full name of John Francis Condon. The signature was offered as an exhibit to be connected with testimony later.

Trades Quips with Lawyer.

"You're enjoying your day in the sun, aren't you, doctor?"

"I don't know what you mean," Condon said tartly. "You'll have to speak English."

"You're enjoying your testimony here?" Reilly asked.

"I am not," Condon snapped.

"Why did you talk to so many people about this case?" Reilly asked.

"I found insidious snares set for me every place I went," Condon responded.

"As to the druggist Dunnington," remarked Prosecutor Wilentz at this point, "I have a letter here from him which fully explains everything."

All the defense lawyers leaped to their feet.

"I object," Reilly yelled. "That is utterly improper and I move now for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial."

Judge Trenchard quelled the general excitement with his denial of the motion and instructions to the jury to disregard the incident. It then was announced that Dunnigan will be a witness.

SHARPLY REBUKES REILLY

There were more inquiries along this general line and Condon became indignant.

"I take exception to your attitude," Condon told Reilly. "There's not a man who breathes who heard me say Hauptmann was or was not the man. I take exception to your language."

Condon paused and his angry expression faded. He gazed benignly at the chief defense attorney.

"Is that too severe?" Condon asked, sweetly. "I want you to know, counselor, what my theory is about the difference between an identification and a declaration."

Condon was pressed by Reilly in regard to the time he viewed Hauptmann at a New York police station.

Reilly asked if Condon was taken to headquarters to identify Hauptmann and the witness replied, "I was, yes, sir."

Q.—And you didn't identify him, did you? A.—No, sir. Beg pardon, there is the word "identification" again. I take exception to your language. It would make a mistake and when you begin to divide the identification and declaration and denial you would make it appear as though I were dishonest and I am not. I won't—is that too severe, judge?

THE COURT—No.

"Come on, I can take it," Reilly said.

To that Condon retorted: "That is good. I want you to know, counselor, that the identification is purely a mental process after the senses have known, after the senses have distinguished, and unless that is taken that way to answer quickly, fast, I don't know but what it might be a kind of trap that you were getting me. The declaration is where I tell it to others. Identification is what I know myself."

To that Really remarked:

TRIED TO AID JOHNSON

Condon said one of his motives in entering the kidnaping investigation had been because of the fact that Arthur [Red] Johnson, a sailor and sweetheart of Betty Gow, the Lindberghs' nurse, was being pointed to as the kidnaper.

Condon spoke of Mr. Johnson, and Reilly asked:

"Are you in the habit of calling deckhands 'Mr. Arthur Johnson' with a bow?"

"I am," Condon said. "This was my father's teaching. I never heard of a man 21 years of age that shouldn't be called Mr. in the United States. We have no lords or dukes or earls here."

"He was a poor, miserable fellow and utterly innocent of the kidnaping," Condon remarked. "I always hated to see an underdog."

Condon declared he knew that Johnson was innocent because he had questioned many sailors in the shipyards and became convinced that Johnson knew nothing of the crime.

Explains Nickname "Jafsie."

Condon explained the "Jafsie."

"That's just the rapid saying of my initials, J. F. C.," Condon told the lawyer. "I was told by detectives that I'd have more chance of getting in contact with the kidnapers as 'Jafsie' than as Condon, although I'm not ashamed of the name."

"Didn't you know that the kidnap band was waiting for you to post the ad in that very paper?" boomed Reilly.

"No, sir," Condon said.

"And yet, within 24 hours of the insertion of that ad in a small local paper you got an answer," Reilly added.

Condon said he thought the answer came three days later. Subsequent inquiry revealed that the ad was printed March 8, an answer was mailed March 9 in Brooklyn, and received by Condon on March 10.

Clears Lindbergh Employés.

The cross-examination proceeded at an exciting pace. Condon and Reilly battled furiously while the crowd listened in absorbed silence. Condon said he never had suspected any one in the Lindbergh household. He denied he had met Betty Gow in New Rochelle in the spring of 1932. Testimony has placed Miss Gow and Condon in that town at that time, but they did not meet, according to the evidence thus far presented.

At times Prosecutor Wilentz attempted to protect the witness from what he termed "scolding" of Attorney Reilly. The judge remarked:

"Let's proceed more evenly."

At 4 p. m., when Condon had been on the stand for two hours and fifteen minutes of the afternoon session, Wilentz suggested that he might be tired and that an adjournment was in order.

Sets Trap with Letters.

Then came the questioning that, according to after court statements by a member of defense counsel, was supposed to put Condon "in deep water." Reilly tried to show in a series of questions that Condon had been familiar with the symbols used in the kidnap notes ahead of the time that he would admit having seen any of the notes. This was in support of the theory that Reilly had been trying to develop that Condon had drawn from a public library a book on symbolism that had contained the symbol that the notes bore.

Reilly insisted that when Condon had made his first appeal through a newspaper to the kidnapers, he received a note that did not contain the symbol, but received therewith a sealed note, addressed to Col. Lindbergh, which did contain the symbol. Condon had said he had telephoned to Col. Lindbergh telling of receiving the note and "describing the symbol."

It was Reilly's contention that Condon could not have known the symbol innocently, in advance of seeing the Lindbergh note.

State Defends Condon.

The prosecution announced that Condon would be questioned on redirect examination tomorrow and that it would be shown that when he telephoned to Col. Lindbergh the flyer had authorized him to open the note. The prosecution insists that Condon simply became confused in recounting the telephone talk with Col. Lindbergh. The state may put Lindbergh on the stand tomorrow to support this.

So they went on for another half hour. Then court was adjourned for the day. During the last half hour Condon voiced his Irish witticisms. One of them regarded the size of the stone under which he found one of the ransom notes.

"It was what is called in Ireland a paver," he remarked. "The definition of a paver is that it's a good one to throw at a party."

THE MORNING SESSION

The announcement that Condon was to take the stand drew the biggest crowd of the trial. They were jammed into the courtroom until every window sill was occupied.

An interested spectator was Mrs. Ralph Hacker, Condon's daughter. She entered the court near the end of the noon recess.

The little balcony in the rear of the courtroom seemed in danger of collapsing under the weight of the spectators.

The court fans, however, were denied their thrill for a moment. Al Reich, blunt nosed ex-prize fighter who is the constant companion of Condon, resumed the stand.

Reich saw the package containing $70,000 in ransom money made up the night of April 2, 1932, he said. He did not accompany Col. Lindbergh and Condon when they drove to St. Raymond's cemetery where $50,000 of the $70,000 was paid over to a man, who, the state charges, was Hauptmann.

Attorney Reilly, cross-examining the witness, asked him if he was not a bodyguard for Condon.

"I am not," said Reich, firmly.

Tries to Involve Condon.

The attorney launched into a series of questions intended to convey the impression that Dr. Condon and Reich had some guilty knowledge of the kidnaping. Condon has been referred to by Attorney Reilly as the possible "master mind," as having inserted an ad in the Bronx Home News, seeking contact with the kidnaper and then answering it himself.

Reilly wanted to know if Reich and Condon had not participated in conferences at City Island on Long Island sound prior to the kidnaping. Reich voiced a stout denial.

During the cross-examination, Reilly wanted to know why Reich had not done this or that.

"Why didn't you accompany the colonel and Condon when they took the $70,000 that night?" Reich was asked.

"I was following orders," Reich answered. "I was just the dot on the 'I.'"

Condon Takes Oath.

Then came the moment for which the crowd was waiting. Dr. Condon laid his hand on a Bible, listened to the oath administered by the clerk and took the stand.

Condon sat squarely, his hands on the arms of his chair. A heavy gold watch chain graced his capacious abdomen. His gray hair was rumpled. He wore a dark suit and white shirt with a dark red tie. He radiated happiness as he looked around. He nodded cheerfully to the judge. He noted the attention of every person in the courtroom was fixed on him.

"I'm 74 years of age," Condon announced in answer to the state's first question; to "where do you live?" he responded, beamingly: "In the most beautiful borough in the world—the Bronx."

"Move to strike it out," barked C. Lloyd Fisher, a defense attorney.

"I decline to strike it out," the judge said, promptly. The judge is also 74 years old. The two septagenarians looked at each other. Condon grinned. The judge smiled.

First Time as Witness.

"You know," offered Condon, "I've never been on the stand before in my life."

Condon proved to be a rambling witness. Attorney General Wilentz had much trouble making Condon confine his story within the rules of evidence. Condon wanted to talk about his long life and his theories as a teacher. He finally was brought down to the important date of April 2, 1932, the night the ransom was paid.

Condon told of going with Col. Lindbergh that night and paying the $50,000 ransom to a man in St. Raymond's cemetery.

"To whom did you give that money?" Prosecutor Wilentz asked him.

"John," Condon replied immediately.

"And who is John?" Wilentz asked.

The courtroom waited for the answer. Those at the state's counsel table were not less apprehensive than those at the table of the defense lawyers. So unpredictable has been the elderly educator that no one was positive what his answer would be.

Condon, in the witness chair, savored the drama of the moment. He paused, then said loudly and slowly:

'JOHN' IS HAUPTMANN

"John is Bruno Richard Hauptmann." The smile had faded from his face. He looked grimly at the defendant who, as usual, seemed indifferent to the accusation.

The attorney general then began introducing the series of ransom notes received by Condon, who took his time studying them. He had seen them hundreds of times before, but he read each one carefully. He held them up to the light apparently looking for watermarks, before identifying them.

When the notes were read to the jury, Condon turned in his chair to watch the eight men and four women jurors.

Then Condon became aware his back was thus towards the judge. He turned around to see if the judge was offended. Condon then waved his hands and turned back again.

Sometimes, while the notes were being read, Condon turned to stare at Hauptmann. The prisoner looked calmly at Condon.

Hauptmann seemed undisturbed by Condon's testimony and said, when questioned later by reporters, "It's his story. Let him tell it."

Condon went on with his story. He told of the first note, which he received in answer to his advertisment offering $1,000 for contact with the kidnapers, he said: "I felt rather pleased that I was so honored as to be selected."

Telephones to Lindbergh.

Condon told of going to Rosenheim's restaurant in the Bronx after receiving the first note. He phoned to Col. Lindbergh from there, he said, because he didn't like to make any call that might disturb his family.

Condon started to relate his conversation with Col. Lindbergh, but was stopped by defense objections. A witness is not permitted to tell of conversations outside the presence of the defendant.

"O, I beg your pardon," Condon said apologetically. "I know better than that."

Condon frequently was checked in his testimony. He had a typical gesture when the attorneys interrupted him. He opened his mouth and covered it quickly with his hand, grinning the while.

Condon's first trip to the Lindbergh home was described by him. His voice became solemn as he said:

Sleeps in Lindbergh Nursery.

"I slept on a cot in the baby's nursery that night."

Condon smiled impishly a little later as he told of taking the safety pins from the baby's blanket without the knowledge of Col. Lindbergh.

"I took them and told about it afterward," he said, "what they call French leave."

There were many "beg your pardons" from the witness as objections and interruptions came from the attorneys. Prosecutor Wilentz wiped his brow. Condon always was politely apologetic.

Condon told of putting the first "Jafsie" advertisments in a New York morning newspaper. It read: "I accept. Money is ready. Jafsie."

When asked if he had received a response to this ad, Condon replied in the affirmative. He started, without warning, a little lecture on his theories of teaching. The exhausted attorneys let him finish. Then Wilentz asked him to describe his trip to Woodlawn cemetery. There he had talked for more than an hour with the man he identified as Hauptmann.

"According to instructions, I went to a deserted frankfurter stand and found a note under a stone," Condon said. "Then Mr. Reich drove me in a northerly direction to the entrance to Woodlawn cemetery. I got out and stood around for a while but there was no one there."

HANDKERCHIEF AS SIGNAL

Later, Condon said, he saw a handkerchief being waved by a man crouching behind the wall of the cemetery; he told of walking toward the wall and remarking, "I see you."

Then came the second time that Condon identified Hauptmann.

"Who was the man?" Prosecutor Wilentz asked.

"That was John," said Condon, persisting in his formula of calling the defendant by the name he had used during the kidnaping negotiations.

"Who is John?" Condon again was asked.

"John is Bruno Richard Hauptmann," he again replied in the same loud, firm voice.

Hauptmann, then known only as John, asked him, Condon told the jury, if he had brought the money, and was answered in the negative. The sight of a stroller some distance away apparently frightened John, who suddenly said, "There's a cop!" grabbed the bars of the cemetery gate, and pulled himself to the top "turner fashion," as the witness phrased it, referring to the gymnastic skill of one trained in a "turning society."

"He jumped down and asked me, 'Did you send the cops?'" Condon continued. "I said, 'No, I give you my word.' He started to run north. I yelled after him, 'Hey, come back here! Don't be cowardly and leave me here, a poor school teacher, in a cemetery. You're my guest!'"

Condon told of asking "John" if he was a "German" and receiving the answer "No, Scandinavian."

Ran, Paused, Then Talked.

The man continued to run, however, the witness continued, and he followed him into a park, where the man stopped near a shack. He and the man then sat down and talked for more than an hour, Condon testified.

"You mustn't do anything like that," he told the man, he testified. "You're my guest."

"It's too dangerous," the man replied, according to Condon. "It might be twenty years or burn if the child dies."

Again Condon lowered his voice. He attempted an imitation of the German accent of the man to whom he had talked.

"Would I burn if the baby is dead?" Condon said that the man asked.

Condon looked at Hauptmann as he said that.

"I told him he wouldn't," Condon continued.

"Who was that man?" Wilentz wanted to know.

"That was John," Condon said, but he was not again asked to identify John with Hauptmann.

Shows Safety Pins.

"I showed him the safety pins I had taken from the baby's crib," Condon continued. "I said to him: 'What would your mother say about all this?' He said, 'My mother would not like it. She would cry.' I told him I had $1,000 available I would give him, but he said: 'We don't want your money.'"

Condon added that he told "John" that he would collect the ransom from Lindbergh and pay it to him, if he were permitted. Condon's eyes flashed as he repeated a warning he had given the kidnaper.

"If you fail me, I'll follow you to Australia!" Condon said he told "John." Turning to the judge, Condon said, "I suppose I was a little vehement."

"John," Condon said, spoke of a "leader" who would "smack" him if he took Condon to the place where the baby was. "John," as he talked all that time, had a coat collar up around his ears and mouth, Condon testified.

Tries to See Baby.

"I promised to give him one of my two overcoats," the witness recalled. "He coughed, a sort of hollow cough, and I asked him to let me get him some medicine. I offered to go as a hostage with him if he would let me see the baby."

"You can't see him," Condon quoted "John" as saying. Condon said the man declared "the leader would smack me down for it. But you'll get the baby. You can put the baby's arms around Mrs. Lindbergh's neck. I'll send you the sleeping suit of the baby. Tell them not to worry. The baby is all right. Now, I've waited too long already. I must go."

The rest of the morning session was occupied with the reading of the ransom notes to the jurors after Dr. Condon had identified them. All were admitted in evidence, no objection being made by the defense.

Several wrangles occurred between the lawyers, however, and Dr. Condon listened and showed his excitement and interest.

"We'll have to get along the best we can," said Judge Trenchard when the lawyers disputed over Condon's answers.

Condon nodded his head in satisfaction.

"Please don't mind my interruptions," Wilentz begged him. "Why I'm delighted," Condon said, smiling.

REILLY DEMOTES RIVAL TO COLONEL DURING QUESTIONING OF JAFSIE

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—(AP)—With Dr. J. F. Condon on the witness stand and an attorney general to contend with, Edward J. Reilly got all mixed up with his titles during the cross-examination of "Jafsie" today.

"Well," he said to Attorney General Wilentz in the midst of an argument, "I want you to look, Colonel—on General—right while you are here."

"I don't know whether I am being demoted or not, if your honor please," said Wilentz to the court.

"Did I make a colonel out of you then?" asked Reilly.

"You made a colonel out of me," said the attorney general. The spectators laughed.

LINDBERGH LIKELY TO SUPPORT CONDON ON KIDNAP LETTERS

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9. — [Special.]—After the defense finishes with John F. Condon, the state plans to call Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's lawyer, as the next witness, probably tomorrow, but Col. Lindbergh may be called for redirect examination before his lawyer, to support the story told by Condon of the letters.

Col. Breckenridge will be followed either by hand writing experts or witnesses from J. P. Morgan & Co. The latter will be those who prepared the ransom bills and took their numbers. In charge of that group is F. D. Bartow of the Morgan bank. If the money is introduced before the hand writing experts it is expected that Wilmer L. Irey and Frank J. Wilson of the United States internal revenue bureau will be called.

Notes from His Family Tell Kidnap Juror It's Birthday

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Charles F. Snyder, juror No. 4 at the Hauptmann trial, celebrated his forty-fifth birthday today. His fellow jurors learned of it at breakfast, and as they returned to their rooms at the close of the meal they sang "Happy Birthday to You." Members of Mr. Snyder's family, including his wife and two sons, were not allowed to speak to him, because of the court rule prohibiting jurors from talking with any one except court attachés. The family was allowed to send notes that were read first by a bailif.

Press and official passes are good now only day by day. Holders who attend morning sessions will have to remain inside during the noon recess or forfeit their privileges.

Visitors from New York included Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, Mrs. Lewis Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Cheney, and Robert H. Thayer. Mr. Thayer aided Col. Lindbergh and Col. Henry Breckenridge during the early stages of the kidnaping investigation.

Sherif John H. Curtiss prevented today any news as to whether Hauptmann's supposed cold is any better or worse. He told reporters in the court room that he "felt fine." C. Lloyd Fisher and other defense counsel declared that he had said nothing to them about being ill, but one of them added that he "really was under a great strain."

A report that Betty Gow, who testified on Monday and who has not been in court since, was ill at the Morrow home was denied tonight by Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

Incoming special delivery mail has increased 400 per cent, Postmaster Edwin Case said today, and regular mail about 20. Letters addressed to Brunotown and Phlegm-ington have appeared.

A hasty canvass of shops, restaurants, and hotels indicate the cash income of Flemington has been increased about $3,000 a day. This indicated a total of more than $20,000 thus far, or $5,000 more than the state has appropriated for expenses.

STATE, DEFENSE DISCUSS RESULTS OF JAFSIE STORY

Wilentz Smiles; 'In Deep,' Opponent Says.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The state chief counsel was smiling today after the testimony of John F. Condon. The defense said through Attorney Frederick A. Pope that Condon had "got in very deep."

As he smiled, Attorney General David T. Wilentz only would say: "You ought to be able to draw your own conclusions from my face."

Former Judge George K. Large, special assistant attorney general, commenting on a point raised by defense attorneys that Condon had contradicted himself in testimony about the letter with the ransom symbol—"Dr. Condon was clear in his own mind about his testimony. He wasn't mixed up at all. It was the defense counsel who was mixed up. Of course, when he telephoned Col. Lindbergh he was instructed to open that letter. Col. Lindbergh instructed him over the telephone. That is how he knew the symbols."

Attorney Pope of defense counsel said—"We nailed him in a box. I refer to Condon's testimony when he called Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and told him that he had received a note with the ransom note symbols, and yet he testified that the letter which contained the symbols had been handed over to Col. Lindbergh sealed. He got in pretty deep, showing the unreliability of a garrulous witness."

Edward Jay Reilly, chief of the defense, referring to Dr. Condon's testimony that he had offered to act as an intermediary in the case, partly to clear Henry "Red" Johnson, friend of Miss Betty Gow—"Yet he would try to have us believe that he did not know Johnson. He went to bat for a deck hand on a yacht whom he says he did not even know."

CROWD GATHERS IN DARKNESS TO HEAR TRIAL

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Eight hours before the courtroom was opened the crowd began to gather for a chance to hear today's session of Hauptmann's trial. State troopers were on hand a few minutes later. By daylight about 100 persons were in line.

William Hickman, a Flemington farm hand, was the first man. A group of musicians came from a theater in Easton, Pa., where they played last night and then drove to Flemington.

About 5 a. m. three women arrived with camp chairs. They were Mrs. R. Bond and Mrs. J. F. Luehs of Orange, and Mrs. T. Webb of Springfield, N. J.

The record for travel among the day's spectators who came here expressly for the trial went to Douglas G. Culbert of Brockville, Que. Culbert left home in his car two days ago and reached Flemington during the night. He came 500 miles on the chance of getting into the trial and was among the first to be admitted.

NATION'S THIRST NETS A MILLION PER DAY TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—America's thirst returned more than $1,000,000 a day in liquor taxes during the calendar year 1934.

A statement issued today by the internal revenue bureau placed total collections at $374,506,232 for the year, with the excise tax of $5 per barrel on beer furnishing the largest single item of the receipts—over $200,000,000.

The excise tax on domestic distilled spirits amounted to more than $121,000,000. The tax on imported liquors totaled almost $16,000,000. Wine returned slightly more than $6,000,000.

The remainder of the receipts consisted of floor taxes on spirits and wines of more than $8,500,000 and various other special levies.

Pennsylvania paid $53,248,376 during the year to lead the country, but was pressed by New York with $52,293,442 and by Illinois with $50,740,092.

'RED' JOHNSON READY TO TELL HIS OWN STORY

He's Now in Oslo Under Another Name.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 9. — Henry [Red] Johnson, Betty Gow's erstwhile sailor friend, is "perfectly willing" to go to the United States to testify in the Hauptmann trial. He doesn't think, however, his testimony would be very valuable.

Johnson, who has fallen on hard times financially since his friendship with the Lindbergh baby's nurse brought him into the investigation that followed upon the kidnaping, was located here. He has been selling fruit at an open air stand. He has changed his name to Finn Johansen. Before he Anglicized his name, becoming "Henry Johnson," he was Hendrick Johansen. His latest change is due to notoriety in the Lindbergh case.

"I am no longer engaged to Betty Gow," he said. "I have a fiancée in Oslo now."

Reports that Bruno Richard Hauptmann's attorneys planned to name four persons in the Lindbergh household who planned the kidnaping drew from Johnson the comment "That must be rubbish."

Attacks Defense Theory.

"Besides the Lindbergh family, there were only three persons in the house," he said, "the butler Whately, Mrs. Whately, and the nurse Betty Gow. All of them were absolutely reliable. In my opinion it is entirely out of the question that they had anything to do with the kidnaping."

"Perhaps the defense attorneys had you in mind in this connection," Johnson was told. He replied:

"That's all I wanted to know—that they suspect me. The authorities, fully convinced of my innocence, had let me go free. I was under arrest from March 15 to June 20, but that was because I violated the immigration laws. Most of the time I was at Ellis Island."

Earlier it was reported Johnson, who was questioned at the time Col. Lindbergh's baby was kidnaped, was already en route to the United States to testify.

Foreign Witnesses Sail.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—What seemingly was a carefully calculated veil of secrecy was today thrown about the sailing from Cherbourg aboard the French liner Ile de France of a party of German and Austrian witnesses for the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptman.

It was rumored that among those on board are Pinkus, Paul, and Hannah Fisch, brothers and sister of the late Isidor Fisch, tubercular furrier, from whom Hauptmann said he received $14,000 Lindbergh gold ransom certificates.

The Austrian witnesses are definitly known to be handwriting experts summoned by the defense, and it was declared they would testify the ransom notes were not in the handwriting of Hauptmann. Paul Fisch has stated that when his dying brother, Isidor, arrived in Germany he had only a traveler's check for 100 marks.

MEDINAH CLUB EX-STEWARD IS TERMED INSANE

John Saracino, 49 years old, former steward of the Medinah club of Chicago, was pronounced insane yesterday by Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, Criminal court alienist, in a habeas corpus hearing before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan, who remanded him to the Municipal court with the recommendation that he be held at the psychopathic hospital for further observation and detention.

Saracino fired a shotgun blast at policemen when they arrested him a week ago on complaint of E. H. Guilfoyle, manager of the Medinah club, who said Saracino had threatened his life. He obtained his freedom in bail, but was rearrested on Tuesday night when Guilfoyle learned he was not in custody.

Saracino, it was said, made threats against the lives of several judges and other leading citizens.

King Peter, 11, Gives Mother Sewing Set for Birthday

BELGRADE, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Little King Peter, 11 years old, helped his mother, the widowed Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia, celebrate her 35th birthday today. The event, however, was saddened by memories of the recent assassination of King Alexander. For three months Peter has denied himself candy to save his pennies in order to purchase a sewing set for his mother as a birthday gift. His little brothers, Tommy and Andi gave flowers.

16 BURNED WHEN TRUCK LOAD OF PAINT EXPLODES

Hudsonville, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Sixteen persons were burned, some critically, today when a motor transport loaded with paint exploded on the highway between here and Zeeland. Three blasts shot flaming liquid over the driver and a crowd of spectators who had gathered when the truck caught fire.

The driver, Henry Hazebrook, 25, of Grand Rapids, was attempting to transfer a reserve supply of gasoline to the main tank when the fire broke out. Suddenly a sheet of flame shot out from the truck, followed by explosions which enveloped the crowd with fire. Eight victims were taken to a Grand Rapids hospital and the others to a hospital in Zeeland.

The truck and its semitrailer was bound from Chicago to Grand Rapids with a cargo of canned paint. It was owned by the Grand Rapids Motor Transport company.

FIND OIL BEHIND DISPUTE BETWEEN IRAQ AND PERSIA

GENEVA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Oil plays an important part in the dispute between Iraq and Persia as it does in the Chaco war and the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

This angle of the controversy was disclosed here today by a Persian delegation, headed by Khan Kazemi, Persian foreign minister and former minister to Washington, which came here to press Persia's protest before the league of nations.

Iraq, the Persians charged, seeks to dominate the Chattearab river and impose taxes on ships conveying oil from the Anglo-Persian oil fields to Europe and the United States. Persia, the representatives said, demands sovereignty for half the river's width.

Can't Find Key; Wife Slaps Him; He Kills Himself

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—William B. Greene, 27, was found shot to death in his home here today. Greene and his wife, the latter told police, had returned to their home after visiting several night clubs. When he was slow in finding the key, police said the widow told them, she slapped him. Greene found the key and went to the basement. There was the report of a shotgun. Mrs. Greene found her husband dead.

2 U. S. Boys, 9 and 7, Begin 7,000 Mile Flight to Texas

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 9. —(AP)—Two youthful air travelers—Bruce Nicholson, 9, and his brother, Scott, 7—today started a 7,000 mile trip to El Paso, Tex. They were passengers aboard the Panagra plane, traveling unaccompanied. Panair crews were to look after them. The two boys, sons of an American business man, will join their mother, who is visiting in El Paso.

URGES ONE STOP CHICAGO-MIAMI PLANE SCHEDULE

U. S. Air Board Official Asks 7 Hour Service.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Elimination of needless stops at Louisville and Jacksonville by the planes of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., flying between Chicago and Miami, Fla., has been demanded by Clark Howell Sr., chairman of the federal aviation commission, according to information received here yesterday. He joins Chicago observers in urging a speedy schedule on this 1,257 mile air route, with only one stop, Atlanta.

Within a few days after the first Eastern Air Lines Douglas DC2 transports began carrying passengers over this airway last Dec. 20 in 8 hours and 50 minutes, Mr. Howell transmitted his request for more rapid service to officials of the operating company, it was learned. He asserted that the flight could be made easily in seven hours. Pilots agreed it could, including a 20 minute rest at Atlanta.

Real Benefit to Business.

John Ottley Jr., assistant general traffic manager for Eastern Air Lines, replied that the service between Chicago and Miami "undoubtedly would be improved" by eliminating the stops at Louisville and Jacksonville.

Virtually no business would be lost, he disclosed, because with only one round trip a day over the route practically all seats in the Douglas transport ships are sold at the three major terminals.

He explained, however, that schedule changes are contingent upon approval by the postoffice department and that such approval of Mr. Howell's plan had not been indicated.

Mr. Howell points out that the Eastern Air Lines' equipment flies best at 12,500 feet up, where it easily travels 190 to 200 miles an hour in the thin air, and conveniently hops 1,000 miles without landing.

Waste In Present Practice.

The plane should be used, he says, in service of the type it is built to give. Stops at Louisville, Atlanta and Jacksonville chop the Chicago-Miami journey into jumps of 300 to 500 miles.

Pilots fly at 5,000 to 6,000 feet most of the way to avoid wasting time climbing to the most satisfactory altitude only to descend a short time later. The plane's performance at 5,000 feet, however, is far below its best. The Chicago-Miami trip in two jumps would allow the ship to be flown as it should.

Safer and more regular service would result, Mr. Howell predicts. Fog frequently enshrouds Louisville and Jacksonville, but weather seldom interferes with flying at Atlanta and Miami.

JOHN P. HARDING CHOSEN TRUSTEE OF SENECA HOTEL

John P. Harding, restaurant owner and head of the civil service commission, was appointed temporary trustee in bankruptcy of the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street, yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. He will be in charge of the hotel until the United States District court disposes of a voluntary reorganization petition filed under Section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act.

Despite the assumption of jurisdiction of the hotel by the federal court, Judge Harry A. Lewis of the Superior court will begin a hearing Feb. 5 on an investigation of alleged mismanagement of the property by Melvin L. Straus, who was the receivership trustee appointed by him.

The petition in the federal court, which seeks a reorganization of the hotel corporation, lists the hotel's liabilities at more than $2,500,000.

Judge Sullivan approved a surety bond of $25,000 given by Harding.

INDIANA COURT VOIDS SENTENCE OF DEAD EDITOR

Upholds Press' Right as Court Critic.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Upholding the right of newspapers to comment on and criticize the action, opinions and judgments of courts, the Indiana Supreme court in a major decision today reversed the conviction of Don M. Nixon, former editor and publisher of the Wabash Plain Dealer and Times-Star, on a charge of indirect contempt of court.

Died of Auto Injuries.

Nixon, who died some time ago of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, was convicted in Wabash county Circuit court, fined $100 and sentenced to ten days in jail as the outgrowth of editorials written about the appointment of Quinten Carver as receiver of the Wabash County Loan and Trust company. At the time the editorials were printed Nixon said he based his criticism on what he believed to be reliable sources of information, but later asserted he had found his allegations untrue.

Disapproves of Language.

Although the Supreme court, in its opinion written by Judge James P. Hughes, said it did not approve of the language in the editorials, it said:

"The right to comment freely and criticize the action, opinions and judgments of courts is of primary importance to the public generally. Not only is it good for the public, but it has a salutary effect on courts and judges as well."

The decision said further:

"Courts and judges are not and should not be above criticism and as long as they are not impeded in the conduct of judicial business by publication having the effect of obstructing enforcement of their orders and judgments or of impairing the justice and impartiality of verdicts there is no right to enforce a contempt proceeding."

When critical comment refers to a past act it is illogical to believe a court's actions would be impeded, the opinion asserted.

"Not Policy of Law."

"We do not believe it is a policy of law to unduly extend the doctrin of contempt proceedings as applied to publications claimed to impede or interfere or embarrass the administration of justice," the opinion read. "It must clearly appear that such publications do impede before the author shall be held for contempt.

"Publications are not in contempt of court if they are published after a matter has been fully adjudicated and they cannot be summarily punished no matter how false, malicious or unjust they may be unless the court finds that publication of the articles would obstruct or embarrass the court in administration of justice."

Nixon was held in indirect contempt of Judge Frank O. Switzer of Wabash Circuit court. The first editorial was printed May 10, 1932, Carver having been appointed receiver by Switzer in February, 1932. Included in the editorials were allegations that the judge had "insulted the 3,500 depositors of the bank by permitting an attorney to dictate appointment of the receiver."

2 HOUSEKEEPERS SUE FOR BEQUESTS FROM CAPT. E. W. MORRISON

Suit seeking an accounting of the estate of Capt. Edward W. Morrison, "millionless millionaire" who died in 1929, and asking that the Chicago Title and Trust company be removed as executor and trustee, was filed in the Probate court yesterday.

The petitioners are Mrs. Ann D. Malz, 759 West Harrison street, housekeeper for Morrison at the time of his death, and Mrs. Mary Lorig, 3314 Warren avenue, Morrison's housekeeper before Mrs. Malz. The petition was filed with George Rooney, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

In the petition, Mrs. Malz alleges that Morrison bequeathed her $20,000 from his estate, estimated at $3,000,000, and the household furniture in the home at 759 Harrison street. She has received only $3,000 from the executors, and only part of the furniture, she sets forth.

Mrs. Lorig says she has received only $250 of the $500 which she said she was bequeathed.

Both petitioners assert that there are sufficient cash and securities in the estate to meet the legacies. Nevertheless, they set forth, the Chicago Title and Trust company has represented that this is not so.

Capt. Morrison was 93 years old when he died. He was adjudged incompetent in 1921, eight years before his death, and the trust company was named trustee.

Wins $30,000 Damages in Auto Crash Injury Suit

Clarence Kenlay, 26 years old, 542 Pine avenue, brother of Floyd M. Kenlay, former son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak, was awarded $30,000 damages yesterday in a personal injury suit against Douglas Hersey, 25 years old, 22 North Lockwood avenue, son of Ralph Hersey, a cashier for the First National bank. The verdict was returned by a jury in the Superior court before Judge Peter H. Schwaba. Kenlay, who sued for $35,000, testified that his arm was crippled when automobiles driven by the two men collided on May 13, 1933, on Lake street between 31st and 32d avenues in Melrose Park.

This southern season, no doubt, is going to be one of the biggest and one of the most colorful in the history of men's apparel. Here are just a few of the scores of brand-new ideas you'll find in this great new Gulf Stream Shop of ours—and the prices are sensible—the merchandise full Field-quality. If you're wise you'll make your selection of the things you need before you leave and not after you arrive in an overly-enthusiastic southland!

The Gulf Stream Shop—Fifth Floor

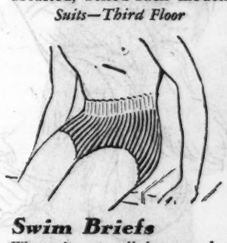
has tailored this new smart sport model into a suit that will be one of the high spots of the season. A double-breasted, belted-back model.
Suits—Third Floor

Of Cotton
This is the really new idea of the season. Checked, tweed-like sport jackets that look just like wool but that are woven of cotton! Light in weight, cool, comfortable.

Sun Helmets
—were introduced into Chicago last summer by The Store for Men and promise to be outstanding for resort wear this winter. Here's one of cork—(also in straw).



Swim Briefs
We can't even call them trunks any more . . . they're knitted with a 6 x 3 rib, fit you "skin tight" and come in neat, gay colors. Or if you prefer wool trunks see our high cut ones.

Checked Shorts
For the beach or for tennis or golf or whatever you may do that you don't think needs the protection of long slacks we present these neatly checked and very wearable shorts.

Single-Breasted
is the newer version of the shawl collar dinner jacket this year. Made of white linen or Palm Beach cloth it is cool, correct and very smart; worn with black trousers.

Dishrag Slacks
The dishrag shirt was the sensation of last season . . . and now we've taken this same material and made it into a pair of slacks to wear to the beach. Watch this item.

Espadrilles
—the current type of beach shoe which will reach huge proportions by summer. Imported, in white or colors; easy to wear, just untie them and kick to get rid of them.

Argyle Plaids
now come into their own in sport slacks. These of fine wool that will wear and wear are made in England and imported by us. The plaids are authentic and brilliant in color.

Breton Beach Suit
To combine slacks with a middy such as the French sailors wear was an idea of our own and here's the complete suit. Available in several gay colors. Comfortable, smart.

Polo Shirts
are as important now for sport as the proper equipment to play with. For tennis, golf, hiking . . . well, here's a new idea in a horizontal stripe shirt with contrasting collar.

Gabardine
shirts are the newest cottons we've discovered. The colors are either a deep blue or a light blue; also in a marvelous bark tan shade. Ideal as a sport shirt or with a sport jacket.

Linen Slacks
for golf or general knock-about wear this year are colorful to the nth degree. These are of a smooth, cool tomato red linen or they also come in canary yellow, and bark tan.

SUPREME COURT GRILLS LAWYERS ON GOLD CLAUSE

Justices Impatient with New Deal Theory.

RFC, and Thomas W. White, representing the Missouri Pacific railway. White was contending that the clause in the railway bonds providing for payment in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness meant merely the payment in dollars of the value fixed by congress.

"They borrowed this money, didn't they?" asked Justice Butler.

"Yes," said the lawyer.

"How much was the dollar worth?" the justice continued.

White said the value was then 25.8 grains of gold, nine-tenths fine, and Justice Butler demanded:

"The bondholders are entitled to restitution, aren't they?"

"Dollar" on a Dime.

When the lawyer repeated the argument relied upon throughout these cases, that the omentary powers of congress are superior to contractual reistionships, Justice Butler declared:

"That would inevitably lead to the power of congress to say the bonds should be paid off in dollars of 17 grains or five grains or one grain. Under that theory congress could stamp the word dollar on a dime and make it legal tender for the discharge of gold obligations. What were the words put there for? There can be no question of their meaning. It was intended to pay so much gold."

In the course of Reed's argument Justice McReynolds asked whether the Missouri Pacific bonds did not call for payment in gold coin of 25.8 grains. Reed replied that the joint resolution of congress abrogating gold contracts made the provision in the bonds invalid. He even asserted that the gold clauses were invalid at the time of their sale, because they interfered with the power of congress to regulate the value of money.

Counsel Object of Laughter.

"It seems to me you assert that right over and over again without giving me any reason to support it," Justice McReynolds observed. Attorney White had the most difficult time with the justices and it was he also who precipitated their laughter. He was quoting from an opinion of Chief Justice Hughes and interpreted it to mean that the preamble of the constitution, notably the public welfare clause, conferred subsequent powers upon the congress.

"I have never intimated that there was any subsequent grant of powers in the preamble of the constitution," snapped the chief justice.

"No, your honor, you never have," said White, and all the judges laughed at this. In another connection the lawyer was paraphrasing the constitution and one of the justices demanded that he read the language.

"I couldn't attempt to stand here and deceive this court as to what the constitution says," White muttered. The justices fairly roared this time. They laughed again when the lawyer was expounding an opinion in a bankruptcy case.

"What! Are you invoking a bankruptcy opinion in this case?" asked Justice McReynolds.

"Yes, your honor, we're in bankruptcy," White replied.

Railway vs. Bondholders.

The lawyer asked the justice to consider what it would mean to railways if they had to pay off their bonds in the equivalent of gold.

"Yes, and think what it means to those bondholders," Justice McReynolds retorted.

The most forceful argument made so far on behalf of the creditors, who are demanding the equivalent of gold, was delivered by James H. McIntosh, counsel for the Banker's Trust company of New York, the trustee for the Missouri Pacific bonds. McIntosh, a tall, dignified figure in his cutaway, reached such an oratorical elevation that his upper plate fell from his mouth. He caught it, however, and replaced it without loss of dignity.

McIntosh argued that the gold clause was inserted in the bonds because the railroad knew it couldn't borrow money for a long period of time without protecting the creditors against depreciation of the currency.

For Purposes of Sale.

"Thirty years is a long time, and nobody knew what would happen," he declared. "They knew they couldn't get the money unless they assumed the risk. They knew also that by assuming the risks of fluctuations or devaluations they could get all the money they wanted at a very low rate of interest. That's why they put the gold clause in. The railroad did this. Not a single bondholder asked them to do it.

"The gold clause, if your honors please, underlies and has been essential to the building up of this country. It has been the only method of borrowing money for long periods of time. Only three years before these bonds were sold, congress, in 1900, had fixed the gold content of the dollar at 25.8 grains nine-tenths fine. That is why the phrase 'of the present standard of weight and fineness' was inserted. If they had said, 'If congress adopts a new standard, we'll pay you in that standard,' do you think they could have sold those bonds?"

Blames Congress.

McIntosh declared that congress itself employed the gold clause in accumulating a national debt of 27 billion dollars. He then asked how congress could now sweep aside its former actions as being contrary to public policy. The lawyer reached his peroration in a discussion of the world war Liberty bond campaign.

"What would have happened if, during the speeches of the four minute men, some one in the audience had shouted out: 'Don't buy those bonds. They'll never be paid. Congress will pass a law saying they are contrary to public policy?'"

House Debates Independent Offices Bill for 770 Millions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The independent offices bill—the first big spending measure before the 74th congress—was reported out of the house appropriations committee today. Appearance of the bill, carrying appropriations of 770 million dollars for 1936, was the signal for a prolonged debate.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] said he hoped that the bill would be ready for passage Friday and he had no disposition to shut off debate "within limitations." The appropriations are for the executive offices and numerous buros, boards, and commissions.

Relief Not Included.

The committee, of which Representative James P. Buchanan [Dem., Tex.] is chairman, reported that the amount set up was $1,250,000,000 less than for 1935. The decrease, however, was due to the fact that the bill did not carry for next year appropriations for relief and public works and for loans to agricultural areas stricken by the drouth.

Actually the bill disclosed an increase of $159,693,000, or more than 20 per cent, over proposed expenditures for 1935 on the basis of comparable items. The big increases were in the veterans' administration, resulting from pension legislation enacted in the last session, and the 100 per cent restoration in salaries and other compensations for all departments.

When the house had resolved itself into a committee of the whole the debate that followed did not touch the legislation at hand. The congressmen leaped eagerly at the chance to roast or defend New Deal schemes and to toss in first arguments for their pet measures, including the bonus, continuance of the HOLC and new taxes.

"Like a Drink."

Leading an attack on the President's message of last week, Representative Charles A. Eaton [Rep., N. J.], characterized the document as "a clever piece of political propaganda." He declared that it was an appeal to the right, left and middle all at once.

"It's like a drink," asserted Eaton, "with a little whisky to make it strong, a little water to make it weak, a little lemon to make it sour and a little sugar to make it sweet."

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [Dem., Va.], rose to defend the administration and declared that the people had not lost confidence in the President "as evidenced by the last election."

"My friend can't understand," said Woodrum, turning to his adversary across the aile, "how a government can operate for all the people, right, left and center. The new order is marching forward and we are all following the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"Rubber Stamp" Congress?

"Then is this legislative body just a rubber stamp?" inquired Eaton.

"This body has not lost dignity in following a great leadership," retorted Woodrum.

"It was necessary in an emergency and the period of emergency legislation is past."

"I wish the emergency were past," declared Eaton. "We have a thirty-five billion national debt and between ten and twelve million people unemployed."

"It was under your party that the country sank into an abyss for twelve years," said Woodrum.

"I'm puzzled then that the chief objective of your program," returned Eaton, "is to reach the 1926 level, which obtained under the Republican administration that you call so accursed."

Blanton Rakes HOLC.

Representative Charles L. Gifford [Rep., Mass.] then told the house that it was time for the congressmen to get back on the job and quit defying the President.

An attack on the administration of the Home Owners' Loan corporation was led by Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.], who proposed to remove all its officers from top to bottom for refusing loans for the most "ridiculous" and "outrageous" reasons.

Representative Robert L. Bacon [Rep., N. Y.] suggested a congressional investigation of the HOLC if the administration was unable to carry the loan program all the way and take care of all the people.

NAZI COURT RULES FOREIGNERS MAY BE EMASCULATED

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—The German Supreme court today decided that castration, as distinct from sterilization, can be extended to foreigners coming to Germany, according to a notice in the Supreme court journal.

The decision is to the effect that German courts are concerned only with questions of whether a foreigner is a menace to public safety and whether castrations are likely or necessary to remove that menace.

It is left to executive authorities to decide whether the castration of a foreigner is to be carried out or if the foreigner sentenced to be castrated is to be deported.

SENATE GROUP PUTS U. S. STEP CLOSER TO JOINING WORLD COURT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—After a delay of twelve years, the initial step was taken today to place the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice, when the senate foreign relations committee, by a vote of 14 to 7, favorably reported the three protocols necessary to membership, with a reservation clarifying the Hurst-Root formula as to the much disputed advisory opinions. It is expected the United States soon will become a member of the court.

This action was sanctioned by the state department, which prepared the compromise resolution of accession to make it conform in intent with the original reservation 5. This was in the treaty ratified by the senate Jan. 27, 1926, but subsequently rejected by court members.

The Hurst-Root formula, accepted by court members, was declared by opponents to have been too indefinite and subject to interpretation. To appease this feeling the essentials of the original reservation five were incorporated by Senator Robinson in the resolution of adherence.

TRUCK WRECKED, FARM ANIMALS WANDER IN CITY

If you live in the Chicago Lawn police district it might be a good idea this morning to look out in your back yard and see if there are any unidentified cows, sheep, or hogs roaming around.

There is every chance that there will be, because five cows, fourteen sheep, and twenty-six hogs were at large last night, running and leaping about and evading the best efforts of Policemen Herman Strelow and Fred Nicholson, as well as an impromptu posse of residents.

The live stock was at first in the truck of Harold Tumfery of Chana, Ill., who was on his way to the Union stockyards from the farm of Roy Bloom of Lindenwood, Ill. In Archer avenue, near Parkside avenue, the truck went into the ditch and the animals escaped.

Several hours of vigorous roundup work netted only four hogs. The rest are still fugitives.

AAA WILL DROP BROOKHART FROM PAY ROLL JAN. 15

Ex-Radical Senator to Be "Special Adviser."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Former Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart will be dropped from the pay roll of the Agriculture Adjustment administration Jan. 15. The former radical senator has been given the New Deal post of "special trade adviser" in return for services to the cause of planned economy.

AAA officials explained the dropping of the Iowa pilot by stating there no longer is any need for the services performed by Brookhart. His duties, they said, have been absorbed by the Export-Import bank, which is headed by George N. Peek, former AAA administrator.

See Difference of Opinion.

The former senator indicated that his discharge may be due to a difference of opinion with AAA heads. He said he has been attempting to convert the administration to the adoption of a surplus control plan, but has met with no official understanding.

He announced that he intends to draft the plan into AAA amendments for submission in congress. Until his work is completed he will have no further plans, although it is possible, he said, he may tour Russia.

"My idea is that there should be a systematized surplus control as well as production control," Mr. Brookhart said. "I have no quarrel with the AAA production control nor with any of its officials, even though they have been cool toward my plan.

Explains Surplus Plan.

Under this plan, Brookhart explained, the government would give receipts for surplus purchases. The government would then undertake to sell the surplus, probably in foreign markets, for what it could get and pay the farmer by cashing farmers' receipts through the postal department.

"This would cost the government nothing," he said. "The government would not be gambling on surplus purchases but acting as a middle man. The farmers would get the cost of production of their crops."

Critics of the Brookhart plan say that the dumping of surpluses on foreign markets below existing prices at home would lead to trade wars.

INFANT DIES IN CRIB.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Funeral services for Dr. Augustus E. Venn, who died Monday, will be held this morning at 9:30 o'clock from the chapel at 1453 Belmont avenue to St. Vincent's church with burial at St. Boniface cemetery, instead of yesterday as stated incorrectly in Wednesday's TRIBUNE.

Regulations of the board of health forbid the sale of milk more than 49 hours old instead of 50 hours and the milk must be in the consumer's hands within 25 hours after pasteurization, not within 26 hours, as was stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

THE NEXT PUZZLE WILL APPEAR IN TOMORROW'S TRIBUNE

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK NEW LAWS TO CARRY NRA

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The New Deal is going forward as planned, despite temporary setbacks produced by Supreme court decisions, according to President Roosevelt.

Disappointed, but not disheartened by the Supreme court decision last Monday invalidating the oil section of the National Industrial Recovery act, the President said today at his press conference that new legislation will be sought to correct the defect in the oil legislation and any other defects which the court may find in the recovery laws.

The President realizes the far reaching significance of the 8 to 1 opinion of the court holding unconstitutional the delegation of power by congress to the President in the oil section of NIRA to make laws governing the interstate transportation of oil produced in excess of state restrictions.

Prepared for Upsets.

Just how far reaching it may prove to be, he would not attempt to guess, though he did disclose that he is prepared for the invalidation of other provisions. One could only speculate, he indicated, whether there were only half a dozen or as many as 100 other instances of unconstitutional legislation.

Despite the fact that the invalidation of as many as 100 provisions of the recovery acts would come pretty close to wrecking the foundations of the New Deal structure, the President evinced only a smiling determination to overcome such obstacles as fast as they materialize.

In the form of a parable Mr. Roosevelt undertook to demonstrate that the action of the Supreme court has caused no loss of ground in the furthering of the New Deal. There was a village in upstate New York, he said, in which there was a dangerous grade crossing on which many persons had been killed. The question arose whether the village had the authority to employ a constable to guard the crossing.

Upon the advice of the county judge and county attorney the village board adopted a resolution to employ a constable who went on duty, aided by a red and green light. Thereafter there were no more accidents.

Legal Way Shown.

But a motorist who ran past the red light and was arrested appealed to the higher courts, which held that the village ordinance was badly drawn and illegal under the village law. The constable had been officiating illegally for a year and a half. The village ordinance was redrafted and made legal and the constable was kept on guard with his trafic light. The net result was that the village had had the benefit of life saving for a year and a half and had found out how to do the thing legally. So everybody was content.

That's the way it is with the New Deal, as the President views it. A year and a half ago, he said, there was a crisis in the production of one of the major necessities of life—oil and gas. Everybody in the oil business was going bust. There was a tremendous wastage of a great natural resource that probably will not last forever.

The government set out to stop the overproduction of oil and stabilize production to prevent wastage and stabilize employment in the industry. The industry under the law and the regulations adopted was brought into pretty good shape, the President said. Now the Supreme court finds a defect in the law which must be corrected before the government can go ahead again in the restriction of transportation of "hot" oil.

Confident of Remedy.

The President expressed confidence that the defect will be speedily corrected by new legislation and that any other legislation necessary to the purpose will be enacted, for he is convinced that the people of this country are in favor of government conservation and control of oil.

Asked whether oil might be placed in the catagory of a public utility, the President was uncertain. He said it never had been declared a public utility, though oil, as well as coal, has many of the essentials of a public utility. He regarded the definition highly legalistic. He had discussed the matter with many people, but had come to no conclusion.

The representatives of oil states in congress are moving for early enactment of legislation to correct the defect to which the Supreme court found objection.

Question Big Spending.

Many senators and representatives are contending that a blanket authority to the President to expend the proposed four billion dollar work relief fund in any way he sees fit would be open to the same objection of unconstitutional delegation of power to the executive.

Speaker Byrns retorted that the power of congress to appropriate lump sums to be expended in the discretion of the executive is unquestioned.

WIDE SWEEP OF NEW DEAL HIT BY LIBERTY LEAGUE

10 Point Platform for Action Revealed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Declaring war on many of President Roosevelt's New Deal innovations, the American Liberty league, founded by leading Democrats and Republicans to fight radicalism, today laid down a 10 point platform for action.

Rooseveltian practices such as sweeping delegations of legislative authority to the President, lump sum appropriations to be doled out by the White House, socialization of industry, and regimentation of American life were marked by the league for opposition. The President himself, however, was not named in the statement.

Defends Congress' Rights.

The platform was proclaimed by the league's executive council, on which sit prominent members of Mr. Roosevelt's own political party, notably two former Democratic presidential candidates, Alfred E. Smith and John W. Davis. Other leading members of the league include Sewell L. Avery, Chicago; A. A. Sprague, Chicago; Irenee du Pont, Wilmington, Del.; John J. Raskob, Elihu Root, and Alfred P. Sloan, all of New York.

Opposition to the "socialization of industry" by the league came just as President Roosevelt indicated that he may be moving in that direction. He let it be known that he is considering declaring oil, coal, and other natural resource industries public utilities subject to federal control.

The league's insistence that the appropriation of public money and the designation of how it shall be spent "are exclusively the functions of congress and should not be exercised by administrative officers" flies directly into the face of President Roosevelt's request that congress vote him 4 billion dollars to spend as he sees fit for relief.

Combats Burocracy.

In the first plank of its platform the league pledged itself "to preserve American institutions which safeguard to citizens in all walks of life the right to liberty and pursuit of happiness" and at the same time "to combat the growth of burocracy, the spread of monopoly, the socialization of industry, and the regimentation of American life."

Invasion of the law making and law interpreting functions by New Deal administrators was also rapped by the league in promising "to uphold the American principle that laws be made only by the direct representatives of the people in the congress, and that the laws be interpreted only by the courts."

Other points in the 10 point declaration of policy pledged the league to fight for government ecenomy, a sound federal fiscal policy, a stable currency, protection for investors, and individual liberties.

FIND 'NUGGETS' OF AMATEUR ARE 'DENTAL GOLD'

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Hopes of an amazing strike of almost virgin gold in the recesses of the ghostly Superstition mountains were shattered today upon the discovery that "nuggets" found by Charles Williams, amateur prospector, were "dental gold."

Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Maricopa county believed the gold had been cached, though not for long. He said he expected to learn soon where the gold came from.

Williams, who staggered back with a quantity of the gold early yesterday after a three day absence, was unable to lead officials to the "flat rock" where he said he had hidden 20 more pounds of the gleaming metal.

Both Sheriff McFadden and Sheriff Walter Laveen of Pinal county, who had led a search for Williams when he was feared missing, expressed disbelief in the prospector's story.

Hundreds of persons flocked to the mountain range on the heels of first reports of Williams' gold strike.

Assayers said the nuggets brought out by Williams were 22 carat gold and worth about $400.

SHOOTING STARS TRACED OUTSIDE SOLAR SYSTEM

Harvard Astronomer Tells of Discoveries.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Two-thirds of all the "shooting stars" are not members of our solar system, but are meteors from outside stellar space, an audience which overflowed Harris hall at Northwestern university learned last night.

Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory and professor of astronomy at Harvard university, gave the first of a series of six illustrated lectures for the public on "Exploring the Galaxies" that he is offering at the university. He revealed the latest conclusion science has made regarding meteors. Tonight he will speak in Fisk hall on methods and machinery of the astronomical workshop.

Two Years of Gazing.

A staf of meteor experts organized by Harvard observatory resorted to especially built "meteor huts" at Flagstaff, Ariz. Wearing aviators' suits to withstand the cold of long winter nights, they examined meteors and recorded their velocities over a two year period. Their reports still are in the process of being sifted and studied, Prof. Shapley said.

Leaves Matter a Question.

"If meteors were from our own solar system," he said, "as many scientists formerly supposed, then their origin came about with our earth. But if they are predominantly from outside the solar system, as these observations indicate, then what is their origin?"

He then tossed his audience a question, which he said he would develop more fully in later lectures: "Might they be the wreckage of the origin of the universe itself?"

Rare photographs of the spectra of meteors, of which only from 25 to 30 have been made, were shown on a screen. An analysis of the spectra, Prof. Shapley said, showed the meteors to contain no elements not found in familiar rocks.

Puzzled by Discoveries.

"As for the Milky Way," he said, "after working on it for five years I know less than ever whether it is a single or a multiple galaxy. There are 100 of these beautiful globular star clusters in our Milky Way, which is our home universe and only one of many galaxies. The more we find out about them the less reason they appear to have to exist in their beautiful symmetry."

Prof. Shapley was introduced by Prof. Oliver J. Lee, director of the Dearborn observatory and professor of astronomy at Northwestern university.

Lamp Shade Makers Fight NRA as Unconstitutional

Arguments on the constitutionality of the NRA as it pertains to the code governing the lamp shade manufacturers were heard yesterday by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden. Four lamp shade manufacturers are being sued by the code authority for not paying their assessment dues of $500. Attorney Leo L. Stone, counsel for the manufacturers, argued the code was unconstitutional. Judge Padden continued the case until Jan. 25.

Benton, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The engine and 16 empty coal cars on a southbound Burlington train were blasted from the track four miles north of Sesser early this morning.

The blast occurred five cars behind the engine, blowing out two hundred yards of track, and was near where another Burlington train was dynamited Dec. 28.

C. J. Jones, Centralia fireman, was slightly injured by jumping. John Tiemeyer, Centralia engineer, also jumped but was uninjured. The bombing is attributed to the Illinois mine war.

POLICE FIND AUTO STRIPPED DURING REPORT OF THEFT

Abe Migdal of 4131 West Jackson boulevard went into the Marquette police station last night and began telling Desk Sergeant Joseph Harrast how his car was stolen from in front of a Jewish temple at Albany avenue and Roosevelt road.

At that moment the phone rang. Sergt. Harrast answered and sent a squad to investigate the stripping of a car in the rear of 1114 South Sacramento avenue. Then he turned to Migdal.

"Go on with your story," he said.

Migdal continued for some minutes and again the phone rang. The squad just sent out was calling it had found a car partly stripped and reported the motor number. Sergt. Harrast turned to Migdal again.

"Your car," he said, "or what's left of it, is in the rear of 1114 South Sacramento avenue. It is minus the battery, radiator, generator, and license plates, but the rest of it is there."

REPORT BATTLE OVER BANKHEAD POST AS LEADER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—An undercover fight among house Democrats over the party leadership post, now held by Representative Bankhead, who is ill, was reported today by the Alabaman's friends to have been discovered.

A move to get Bankhead to lay down his party reins because of his health, they said, had been started by some backers of the contestants he defeated.

The calling of a Democratic caucus for tomorrow caused some members to speculate that the Bankhead replacement move might be launched there, but the caucus chairman and acting leader, Representative Taylor of Colorado, indicated he would squash any such maneuver. Taylor said he would permit nothing but consideration of committee memberships and that "I'll rule anything else out of order."

Because of the delicacy of the situation none of those involved in the matter would discuss it publicly.

THE BUDGET.

A year ago the President expressed his purpose to "have a definitly balanced budget for the third year of recovery," and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the national debt.

The budget for "the third year of recovery" has now been submitted to congress by the President. It is 4 billion dollars out of balance. If the normal debt retirement is included the deficit is more than 4½ billion dollars.

That is the extent to which realization has failed to come up to expectation. It is the measure of the failure of the President's program to bring the recovery which he expected of it.

This time the President is less precise in his forecasts for future budgets. He will keep what he calls the ordinary expenses of government within its revenues, but that is all he will promise. Whatever it may cost to support the idle will be added to the national debt. In view of the habit-forming quality of federal relief, the President's position is far from reassuring to those who have feared a gradual degradation of the government's credit, followed by an inflation of the currency.

In examining the budget attention is likely to be monopolized by the so-called extraordinary expenditures which constitute the deficit. A fact of at least equal importance is the rapid growth in the "ordinary" expenditures of government. From an outlay of 2,400 million dollars on this account in 1934 and 2,700 million in the present fiscal year, the new budget provides for 3,300 million dollars in the forthcoming fiscal year. This is an increase of 850 million dollars in two years. It leaves less than nothing of the pledge of the President and his party to reduce federal expenditures [even in the narrow sense in which the phrase is now used in Washington] by 25 per cent.

What all this means can be best appreciated not in the narrow perspective of recent years but in the long perspective of history. It is safe to say that for 95 per cent of recorded time the exactions of government impoverished the masses of people. It was so under the Pharaohs of Egypt, in Babylon, in Greece, and in Rome. It was so in medieval Europe, and it is true in the economic tyranny of Stalin today.

Only in some countries in the last 150 or 200 years have the productive and constructive elements in the population been able to raise the general standard of living above the level of bare subsistence. Only in those countries and in those relatively few years has the forgotten common man been able to get his head above water.

The 7 billion dollar budget of 1934 and the 8½ billion dollar budgets of 1935 and 1936 mark a retrograde movement. Government is again squeezing and extorting. It is taking an ever larger share of the wealth and the income of the people. It is again building up a topheavy structure of government, the maintenance of which is becoming an ever heavier charge upon the creators of wealth. The more the government takes the less is left for the people to have and enjoy, and the less is left for the development of the productive capacity of the country.

Those now in power assert that their objective is the common good. Whatever their purpose may be, the fact is that the burocratic machine is growing in size and in costliness, and that the people of the country are paying the bill. To be sure, the money of the American citizen is not going to the support of a Bourbon and his court or of a Roman emperor and his prætorian guard, but in perspective the differences are seen to be minor and the resemblances to be great.

That is the outstanding fact in the new budget. Those who refuse to see it cannot thereby avoid the consequences.

THE KING HAS HIS DAY IN ROME.

Alexander Kirk, United States chargé d'affaires in Rome, was the principal personage among the Americans who at King Victor Emmanuel's New Year reception had to achieve the seventy-five foot backward glide over a polished floor from the royal station to the main door. Ambassador Breckenridge Long had escaped. He may not have fled the city, but it was enough that he was not there.

If Mr. Long did run away he rates as our most diplomatic ambassador. Nothing lessens a nation's prestige more than its ambassador going on his ear before crowned heads, and it avails little for him to use his silk hat as a pillow. It is true that King Victor Emmanuel could not have towered in majestic contemplation of the downfall of a republican. Victor Emmanuel does not tower. He barely reigns, but even he to a prostrate diplomat would loom large.

The AP dispatch made a great deal of the charm of the king, discovering in him a rugged personality which really heightened the effect of his cordiality and graciousness. Has the AP a secret affection for kings? No mention was made of Mussolini. He probably was too busy signing things. Would Victor Emmanuel have enjoyed seeing his uncrowned Augustus Caesar backing away over the treacherous floor? In his secret heart he might have hoped that some one would trip that No. 1 boy.

GEN. JOHNSON'S SECOND THOUGHTS.

So far as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, late NRA administrator, shows ground in his first Saturday Evening Post article, if he is to be sued, it should be not for libel but for lese majesty. Donald Richberg, the general's second in command in the old cracking down days, became alarmed a few weeks ago, suspecting that his old chief was about to slice his hide off, and warned the publishers that he would promptly seek protection in the law of libel.

The general does make the surprising statement, curious in the light of his own energetic administration, that Mr. Richberg threatens too much like a cave man who woos by exclaiming, "Love me, blankety, blankety you, or I'll beat you to death." The general has his odd moments.

He has some remedies for the depression, but he must be regarded by the New Dealers as heretical in his newer and presumably considered views, as, for instance: "Men can't go back to work until money goes back to work, and money won't go back to work unless those who have or are responsible for money to invest know that, once it is out of their hands, no magic is going to frisk it away like fairy gold turning into crisp and colored autumn leaves. It is perfectly clear that recovery in a big, quick and powerful way awaits only an impeccable assurance in deed and not words that no such thing will happen. That is all there is to it. It could be done immediately. Unless it is done promptly there is no end in sight." He adds that no amount of belaboring business men by men who never conducted a business in their lives is going to change these essential responsibilities.

There is much more of the old guard speaking in the general's discourse—for example, his exhibit of the man he knows who if he made a dollar would give up 83 cents of it in taxes; who, if he risks and loses, loses all, and who, if he risks and makes anything, gets only 17 cents of what he makes. That man, says the general, would be a fool to risk anything except on a six to one chance of profit.

It sticks in the memory that when the general was head of the NRA and dealing with capital and labor he did believe in shotgun weddings. But he says now that he never knew of one that lasted beyond the doorstep of the justice of the peace. Still he believes that the NRA can be revised by avoiding sullen acquiescence and bringing a working scheme out of conference of the principal labor and industrial leaders.

The impression created by the first of the general's articles as a critic is that he has read everything against the practice of the New Deal and agrees in condemning. He still throws brickbats, but now against the planned society as it works out and not against the people who told him when he was in office that it wouldn't work. The general has let go of his bear. It conduces to thought.

A FEDERAL RAID.

No community favors drastic measures for the disposal of gunmen more than ours, but as to the affair on Pine Grove avenue Tuesday night we suggest to the department of justice that Illinois is a sovereign commonwealth and when its agents enter its territory that fact must be respected. The department of justice agents acted in the raid of Tuesday night as if they were in a conquered territory or in a no man's land without government. They ignored the existence of the Chicago police and it was a piece of great good fortune that when the latter arrived on the scene there was not a fatal exchange between them and the federal force. A sharp protest should be made to the department of justice, which, we may perhaps assume, has not yet decided to abolish the constitutional system of the United States.

Other phases of this raid are not creditable. We highly approve of the spirit of the department's boast, "We get our man," but the reckless tactics adopted in getting Gibson call for correction. A flat adjoining Gibson's was by mistake fired into and gassed. Methods of the police should not be based on the theory that the apprehension of a criminal is more important than the safety of law abiding individuals.

FAIR UTILITY RATES.
[Detroit News.]

The companies purveying electricity to New York City, spurred by Mayor La Guardia's proposal that the city go into the electrical business, have offered to adopt the plan now in force in Washington, D. C., and apparently successful there.

Detroit might find the plan worth considering in connection with the Detroit City Gas company and its demand for higher rates.

Under the Washington plan, a value is placed on the property of the company, and a certain rate of return is allowed on it. If earnings exceed that amount, rates are lowered. To insure efficiency in the company, the surplus is split, part going to the company through an increase in its rate of return, the rest going to customers in the form of lower charges. It is said the cost of electricity to the customer under the Washington plan has been brought down from 7.5 cents a kilowatt hour to 3.9 cents, largely through increased business as the rates were reduced.

One defect in the Washington plan seems to be the difficulty of fixing a sum as the basis for earnings. Long litigation was necessary before the base was determined in the national capital. But once the sum has been fixed and the rate determined the rest is merely a matter of bookkeeping.

The basic sum increases with the amount of new money spent on plant, and decreases with the retirement of obsolete property. In determining the basic sum it is of course necessary to discover the actual value of the plant and to wipe out whatever water there may be in its capitalization.

The New York companies have proposed the Washington plan because they realize it is far better to have their continuance assured on a fair basis than to fight repeated threats of competition and municipal ownership. It would save most, if not all, of their present investment and would make money for extensions and improvements easier to get. And of course the prospect of lower rates is pleasant to consumers.

Why not try the Washington scheme in connection with our gas rate controversy?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

LET THE BONE DRYS say what they want to about there being more drinking since repeal. Here's proof that people don't drink as much and are much calmer and more self-possessed when in the presence of the Demon Rum. Brandy inhaler tumblers are much in vogue and are rapidly becoming more and more popular. If you don't know—there may be a very few who don't—a brandy inhaler is a big fat goblet that looks like a small goldfish bowl. A hooter of brandy is poured into each brandy inhaler and the guests sit around and swish the brandy inside the goldfish bowl around and around, thereby giving out a pleasant odor which the guests gently inhale. During the prohibition years can you imagine people being content to sit quietly at a table and swish brandy around in their glasses? The brandy would no sooner be poured into a glass in front of a guest but what he'd grab the glass up and gulp down that drink of brandy before you could say Robinson Crusoe. They had no time to waste inhaling brandy in those days. So it must be that the popularity of brandy inhaler glasses shows a return to normalcy.

THE NEW YEAR goes on and on and we're getting quite deep into its first month. We expected great things of 1935, but, taken by and large, it doesn't seem to be much of an improvement over 1934. Of course, it's a trifle early yet for any decided results, but if 1935 is going to show us something it's about time it got down to work.

OLD ENGLISH SKETCH BOOK

(Views of Chester.)

A skilful pen transferred upon this page
The deep serenity of an English shire,
Catching the mood that holds another age,
Of the old lamplighter and the portly squire.
The age of nave and transept, tower and moat,
Of narrow, cobbled street and shuttered pane,
The arc of bay where fishing schooners float
Upon the sea tide—and the weather vane.
The slow accompaniment of figures seen
Bartering at fish stands or an antique shop,
The marble slabs upon the adjacent green,
Some stately, clustered trees on the hill top.
This book preserves and holds in narrow sphere,
Between old covers, the remnant of an age
Of slow and stately mien—and down another year.

Old beauty too has stories to unfold.

CLARENCE MILLIGAN.

ANOTHER TERRIBLE ROAR went up yesterday from Bob Stonesifer, the w. k. compositor. All because I sent down an innocent paragraph to the effect that the NRA is involved in the suit for $100,000,000,000 before the Supreme court by the holders of gold bonds. The which added to the $8,520,000,000 asked by the President in his budget would seem to run up into real money. And I added that if the decision of the court was given against the government the obligations on all the gold clause contracts would be increased from $100,000,000,000 to $163,000,000,000.

"Lookit!" said Bob pleadingly, "I got only twenty zero matrices on that damn typesetting machine I run. And if you keep on talking about the money they're handing out down in Washington that takes bushels and bushels of zeros I'm just wrecked, that's all. Have a heart! Spell 'em out!"

"But they look bigger in figures," I said; "now, take this NRA case before the Supreme court concerning gold contracts aggregating some $100,000,000,000——"

"There you go again," moaned Bob. "More of that 000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 New Deal stuff, and I'm working on a half dozen machines right now and they want to use 'em for small ads. Say, mention some regular money now and then, $2.35 or $1.45 or 25 cents or a dime, or else that typesetting machine of mine is going to blow right up into 1,000,000,000,000,000,000 pieces."

"All right," said I, "put that number in type."

"Oh, gosh!" wailed Bob. "I'm sorry I spoke! Why didn't I say 100 pieces and let it go at that?"

VILLAGE MYSTERY.

The man of Applewood is surly.
Nobody knows why.
Night and day, late and early,
He tramps the roadway
Up and down, this and the other way.
Nobody knows why.
They pass him by, keeping out of his way.

He stares at the sky—
"Oh, she's late! I hope she knows She's late! Where can she be staying—?"

There's some one on his mind;
Some one he can never find;
Some one to give him worry.
Night and day, late and early,
He tramps the long road mournfully.
"Oh, she's late! She'd better hurry!
Will she never, never come?"
And plain enough she never does.

AND ONLY a few weeks ago a new book came out called "The Twilight of the Supreme Court," which carried the suggestion that the Supreme court was sitting now in the deepening shadows because its powers had been taken over by the executive branch of the government. But since the decision of the court in regard to the NRA and oil regulations that book ought to have its title changed to "Half Past Nine in the Morning with the Supreme Court and a Fine Clear Day."

LARYNGITIS.

THE larynx or voice box is frequently the site of inflammation. The tissues can become congested with blood, infected with bacteria, and abused by overwork. Usually the first symptom is hoarseness. This means that the swelling has involved the vocal cords. Most cases of laryngitis result from an acute cold in which the infection has gradually gravitated downward until the structures of the throat and larynx are affected. Generally the acute swelling in this area subsides within a day or two. This is particularly true if the voice is used but little and if the condition is well managed.

There is not a particle of use attempting to treat inflammation of the larynx in the presence of nose and throat infection for the mere relief of the symptom of hoarseness. It is necessary to direct attention to the original cause, and as the mucous membrane of the nasal passages returns to normal so will the larynx.

Acute laryngitis in children is sometimes called croup. In this situation the child may waken at night with hoarse, heavy breathing and complain of great difficulty in getting the breath. Sometimes the face is dusky in shade because the blood is supplied insufficiently with oxygen. The temperature is often elevated and frequently quick action is required to prevent disaster. Diphtheria attacks the larynx as well as the throat, and a case that presents the symptoms of croup must also be considered as possibly diphtheritic until it is shown that it is not. In severe cases it is necessary to open the windpipe [trachea] surgically.

For the general treatment of laryngitis hot baths involving the whole body, hot mustard foot baths, and hot lemonades are indicated. In swelling of the larynx or in croup the air of the room should be filled with steam. Special croup kettles are devised, and compound tincture of benzoin, camphor, or menthol may be added to the boiling water. An ice bag about the throat or cold compresses applied to the throat are sometimes of value. Gargles are useless because they cannot reach the larynx.

If hoarseness persists for more than a few days in adults, or for more than a few hours in children, the condition calls for investigation by a physician.

Should hoarseness develop in a patient suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis an examination of the vocal cords is important, as tuberculosis not infrequently attacks the larynx and proper treatment is urgently required.

Inflammation of the vocal cords due to overuse is commonly observed among rooters following athletic contests, and is frequently noted in public speakers and singers. Vocal cords that have become engorged with blood, or that on examination show the presence of nodules, should be given absolute rest—the use of the voice prohibited—for several days. The more complete the rest the more rapidly will recovery occur.

Cancer occasionally attacks the larynx and as such presents a difficult problem. The work of H. Coutard has shown that many cancerous growths in the larynx are amenable to treatment with the X-ray. Coutard reports 22 cured cases out of a total of 67 treated. Where extreme malignancy is present the larynx has been completely removed and an artificial larynx substituted. New operative procedures of a highly technical character may be looked for.

Most cases of acute laryngitis of infectious origin are mild and subside soon after the nasal or throat irritation clears up. A few days of proper treatment and rest are all that is needed. Chronic laryngitis, however, as indicated by persistent hoarseness, must be managed by a competent throat specialist.

MOLES OR WARTS.

Growths that appear within a short time are probably not true moles, but seborrheic warts. They can be removed by an electric needle in the hands of a skilled operator.

GRAND AVENUE SERVICE.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—We are two of the tired working girls Mrs. Arthur Conlan referred to in her complaint of Dec. 30. However, we do not ride the 111th and Sacramento street cars, but we do ride Grand avenue and are not bragging about it. Her description of overcrowded, smelly, wet, cold street cars seems to fit them to a "T." On a bright, sunshiny day you can't get a Grand avenue street car that is not packed to overflowing, and on snowy or rainy days you might as well give up. If you come home from work with all your arms and legs, are you lucky! Just this morning two cars passed, one right after the other, without stopping, and the third didn't come by for another ten minutes. By that time it was too crowded to take on another passenger, and so the long, cold wait continued.

Working girls are supposed to be on the job at a certain hour, not just any time the street cars feel like getting them there. It is impossible under existing conditions to be at work on time, which, of course, doesn't please any employer and puts the working girl in a precarious position. If the elevated lines can time their trains almost on the minute we are sure the street cars can do almost as well. Is it independence on their part? FRANCES AND BILLIE.

PARIS GOT IN TROUBLE, TOO.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—May I ask if the judges who select the campus queens in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE are the same men who create such beauties as Mamma De Stross and Emmie Schmaltz?

Now, not that I care as a personal matter, but just for the principle of the thing, I wish to point out that my daughter, who is at St. Mary's as a sophomore, is generally conceded to be, by the girls themselves at least, one of the comeliest of the student body.

In judging my motives in writing please do not think I am influenced by any personal or selfish consideration, for it is evident that I would have nothing to gain in having my daughter's beauty receive its due recognition. It is merely my sense of fair play that prompts me to write this letter.

For the good of all concerned I hope that in the future the judges will exercise more care in their selections.

New York, Jan. 4.—The letter, "Steam Locomotive vs. Diesel," which appeared in your Voice of the People of Jan. 2 was taken almost bodily from an article entitled "Is Steam on Its Way Out?" which appears in our February, 1935, issue [out Dec. 31, 1934] and which was based partly on an article in Baldwin Locomotives magazine. BOOTLEGGING, NEW STYLE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Contracts for the completion of the Cook County Nurses' home were awarded, as I understand, under the NRA restrictions and regulations; that is, union wages were to be paid for the labor used. One of the contractors decided that instead of paying union wages, which in this case was something close to $1.45 per hour, he would call on men who had worked for him previously at union wages and offer them 45 cents per hour. The pay roll sheet was made out in the regulation way, with the union wages specified, but this man paid all wages in cash at the rate o 45 cents per hour.

When business ethics has become so low as to cheat hired help of their rightful wages, is there any wonder why government regulation has become a fact?

To remedy the condition the government might demand that wages be paid by check and have each employé sign the pay roll with his name and address, something similar to the army.

A BOOST FOR THE AUTO SHOW.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—I am predicting an overflow in attendance at the auto show. Among those most interest will be the future recipients of the Townsend custodian money, who will be anxious to examine cars and learn conditions of instalment payments upon them.

I say instalment payments, as most of them will want to reserve some cash each month for rent, travel, dentists, and doctors. Just think of all the people that can have new teeth, new, well-fitted specs, as well as new cars!

But certainly they will buy many new cars, even though some of these will be turned over to the younger members of the family. E. G.

COUGHING IN CHURCH.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Now that winter is here and its attendant colds and coughs and sneezes, I would like to suggest to churchgoers especially that they try not to annoy people by unnecessary coughing. I say unnecessary—sometimes it cannot be avoided and I sympathize with them—but a perfect chorus of coughs just as the sermon begins somehow strikes me as being just ridiculous, especially the clearing of throats, because some really unfortunate sufferer cannot avoid a cough.

Very excellent cough drops are to be had for 5 cents a box, a remedy that I always provide myself with when I'm bothered with a lingering cough. When a cold is too bad I remain at home until it's better. And I am a regular churchgoer and, too, I suffer from a weak throat and chronic colds, yet I manage not to be annoying. H. B.

ASSEMBLY HEARS GOV. HORNER ASK LAW FOR RELIEF

Quick Legislation Urged in Message.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Legislation that would enable the state to share the cost of relief in Illinois with the federal government and to take advantage later of President Roosevelt's plan to supplant the dole with jobs was advocated by Gov. Henry Horner in his biennial message to the 59th general assembly, which convened here today.

The various phases of relief activities were given a prominent position in the message which the governor read at a joint session of the senate and house. After he had dealt with this subject the governor took up the problems of the schools, revenue, and reapportionment among some twenty other matters to which he asked the legislators to give consideration.

Cites Jan. 15 Deadline.

The governor's immediate concern with relief was that the legislature hasten to appropriate $9,000,000 of surplus state funds for relief before Jan. 15. The federal government, he said, will furnish the money needed for relief purposes until that date, but further allotments will be contingent upon action by the state to assume a portion of the relief expenditures.

Under an agreement with the Federal Emergency Relief administration, the governor said, the state is to supply three millions and the FERA nine millions each month for relief in Illinois. The appropriation of $9,000,000 would carry the state through three months of this program.

"Meantime, opportunity will be given for the working out of the new federal plan of substituting remunerative work for the dole, a plan with which Illinois should heartily coöperate," the message read.

"This will also afford us time for calm thought and militate against the passage of hastily considered and perhaps harmful measures on the subject and will enable you to adopt legislation to enable the local communities of the state to resume their local responsibility. Generally it is the duty of the local community to care for its poor. Our local poor relief system should be carefully studied and revised."

Urges Daily Sessions.

As the appropriation must be finally adopted by next Tuesday, the governor urged the assembly to remain in daily session until a bill has been passed. In order that it may take effect immediately the vote of two-thirds of both houses is required.

So that municipalities in Illinois may have no difficulty in taking advantage of the public works program of the federal government, the governor recommended legislation simplifying municipal financing. In particular, he recommended the following measures with the understanding that they would be limited to the present emergency or to financing in conjunction with the federal government.

1. Elimination of requirement for a referendum of public works bond issues in favor of a permissive referendum provided the sale or pledge of the bonds is made directly with the federal government.

Broader Power for Cities.

2. Give municipalities broader powers to undertake public works projects and to enter into contracts with the federal government.

3. Creation of nonprofit public benefit corporations or agencies for the electrification of rural communities with the assistance of the federal government.

4. Creation of municipal improvement authorities without power to tax, but with power to issue bonds payable solely from the income of revenue producing improvements such as water, sewer, and electric light and power systems.

5. Power to condemn any necessary lands needed for public works projects.

6. Validation of bonds and other obligations heretofore issued by municipalities for public works projects and sold to the federal goverment.

On the side of the house chamber, where the Republicans listened to the governor's message some murmurs of astonishment were heard as the governor advocated the creation of municipal bodies to manufacture and sell power and electric light. The proposal, they said, apparently has some similarity to the federal government's Tennessee Valley authority experiment with radical theories.

Asks Forest Legislation.

In developing a national forest conservation program, President Roosevelt has asked for close coöperation between the states and the federal forest service, the governor said. Legislation will be needed, according to the message, to protect the state forests and encourage a better management of private forests.

The message then turned to the subjects of old age pensions and unemployment insurance. The governor gave his approval to the principles of unemployment insurance and old age pensions, but said that legislation must wait until President Roosevelt had submitted his plans to congress. The cost of unemployment insurance, the message stated, would be divided between the employers and the employed in fair proportion.

In the third special session of the 58th general assembly, legislation was passed giving to grade and high school districts of the state one-third of the state's share of the gasoline tax. This legislation was operative only for nine months, and the governor requested that it be amended so that the schools can have this revenue for an additional six months.

Points Out Situation.

"It is represented to me," the message read on the subject of schools, "that in some 90 districts of the 12,000 in the state the schools are already closed or will be obliged to close before the end of the school year. The local communities ought to take immediate steps to reopen these closed schoolhouses and prevent any others from closing because of lack of funds, and should be aided by legislation to do so.

"Our problem, however, does not end here. For years it has been recognized that the financial and educational structure of our entire public school system needs revision and amendment. I now recommend that this general assembly, by emergency enactment, provide for a legislative committee, composed of representatives of both houses and other citizens, with power and directions to study and make recommendations concerning the organization, administration, and control of public education and the financing thereof."

Reapportionment Laws Urged.

Legislation should be enacted, the governor stated, for an equitable congressional reapportionment and for the remapping of state senatorial districts. He submitted a plan for senatorial redistricting providing for equal representation on the basis of population in the house and limitation of Cook county representation in the senate.

The governor asked also for a change in the boundaries of the Supreme court districts to more nearly equalize them as to population. The constitution provides that the boundaries of a district shall be changed only at the session of the assembly next preceding the election for judge therein.

Recommend Woman Jurors.

Enactment of legislation providing for women on juries also was recommended as were labor measures affecting women. The hours of labor for women, the message stated, should be amended to permit not more than eight hours daily instead of ten.

Adoption of a joint resolution again submitting the question of a constitutional convention to the people was recommended, and in connection with this proposal the governor stated that the election law should be changed to take the question off the candidates' ballot and placed on a separate ballot.

The governor also renewed his recommendation of two years ago for revision of the revenue article of the constitution through the submission of an amendment. He asked the legislators also to include the public utilities under the retailers' occupation [sales] tax act, and to extend the 15 per cent cut in 1931 valuations given to objectors owning certain classes of property to those in the same class who did not object.

STATE WILL KEEP 30,000 COUNTY IDLE ON AID LIST

Cook county's 30,000 "permanent unemployables" will remain on the rolls of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission until July 1, if the federal and state governments continue to provide the commission with funds for this portion of the relief load. This ruling was made yesterday by Chairman Robert J. Dunham of the commission in a letter to President Clayton F. Smith of the Cook county board.

Mr. Dunham made his decision in accordance with his understanding of President Roosevelt's message as to the future relief policy of the national government.

Thus the proposed shifting of the burden to the county was delayed for six months, unless Mr. Dunham's expectation of continued funds proves unfounded. The delay will give the county plenty of time to develop the means of supporting the "chronic indigent" group of relief clients, Mr. Dunham pointed out.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD

IN THE DRY OR FIRST STAGE!

A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage.

A cold is twice as easily stopped in the first as in the second or third stages. In fact, to let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting trouble.

As your doctor will tell you, there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It is expressly a cold tablet and not a "cure-all". It is internal treatment which a cold requires. It does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels. Second, it checks the infection in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and fever. Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that may be inviting trouble.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the largest selling cold tablet in the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

When a cold threatens, do the sensible thing and go right to your druggist for a package of Bromo Quinine.

Take two of the tablets at four-hour intervals and you'll usually check the cold in 24 hours. That's the speed you want for comfort and for safety.

All drug stores sell Bromo Quinine and the few pennies' cost may save you dollars in doctor's bills.

LEGISLATORS GO TO WORK UNDER DEVINE, GRAHAM

Move to Put 9 Millions in Relief Fund.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—With all traditional ceremony the 59th general assembly convened today, heard Gov. Horner's message and started work on emergency measures.

Overwhelmingly Democratic, the organization of both chambers was controled by this party, and John Devine of Dixon was installed speaker of the house, while Richey V. Graham of Cicero was reëlected president pro tempore of the senate, thus preserving the custom that a downstater preside over one house and one from Cook county be No. 1 man in the other.

These ceremonies went off without untoward incidents, even though they threatened to bog down under the ponderous and tedious procedure which must be followed.

Horner's Report Lengthy.

The governor's report to the assembly consumed one and one-half hours, then several bills were introduced into the house.

First place on the calendar was obtained for an administration measure, introduced by James P. Boyle of Chicago, to transfer nine million dollars excess sales tax revenue and allow it to be used for relief purposes. It would supply the state's share of the load for three months and since the federal government ordered that Illinois pass some sort of legislation by Jan. 15—next Tuesday—it was imperative to act immediately.

This bill was advanced to second reading and will be sent to third reading tomorrow unless opposition develops. It is Boyle's plan to pass it Friday and rush it across the hall to the senate which could send it to second Friday and to third reading Saturday. Then, when the week-end recess ends Monday or Tuesday, the measure could be passed and Washington notified that Illinois had done its part—at least for three months. A permanent program will be presented before April 1.

Attendance Assured.

What many house members ruefully admitted was a neat little plan to insure their staying in Springfield until Friday, when the relief bill is expected to be on the passage stage, was devised by some of the governor's aids. It affects their pay of $8,500 for the biennium and is therefore vital.

Speaker Devine announced as the house adjourned for the day that the members would be paid in the house chamber Friday. He explained that two years ago an intelligent crook appeared at the pay window, gave the name of a new member and got away with a pay check. This would not be repeated this year, Devine said, for each member would receive his check in the house.

Admitting sagacity of the new method, a number of the representatives also saw that through it the administration would be assured of a full membership Friday. Undoubtedly roll call on the relief bill will precede paying time.

Another measure sent to second reading was introduced by John R. McSweeney [Dem., Chicago] at the request of the Chicago board of education. This was the 1935 pegged levy bill, identical in its $43,000,000 limit to the measure passed last year for 1934. School Attorneys Richard S. Folsom and Ralph Condee explained that the school board cannot make its budget until the bill is passed. It will be speeded.

Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Libertyville] also introduced a bill to cut the auto license fees on pleasure vehicles to $3. He got the jump on several members who had similar thoughts but intended to introduce their measures tomorrow. Lyons campaigned on the issue last fall.

House and senate presented the usual picture when the gavels fell at noon. Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan presided in the senate and Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in the house.

In the senate, Graham was placed in nomination for president pro tempore by Rollo M. Shaw of Lawrenceville, who will be floor leader. Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, choice of the Republican minority bloc, was nominated by his predecessor, Richard J. Barr of Joliet. The vote was strictly partisan, 34 Democrats voting for Graham and 16 Republicans voting for Searcy, save that the candidates voted for each other.

House Moves Slowly.

The house, thrice the size of the senate, could not show much speed. Devine was nominated for temporary speaker by F. W. Lewis of Robinson and a seconding speech given by Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago, who will be Democratic floor leader.

Across the aile, Roger J. Branson [Rep., Centralia] placed Leroy M. Green of Rockford in nomination.

The roll was then called and Devine declared elected temporary speaker by a vote of 82 to 66. The house has 152 members, but four were absent. The 153d member was Warren B. Douglas [Rep., Chicago], who died shortly after his election last November.

Devine was applauded warmly when his election finally was completed. He has been a member of the house for twenty-two years and was minority leader during two previous sessions.

"I propose to be the 'listener' of the house as well as the speaker," he told the membership. "I have heard that some of my Republican members feel that I might be inclined to be arbitrary. But I believe that I have been a member of the minority long enough to know how it feels. At least [turning to the Republican side] I can't do anything to you that hasn't already been done to me."

REPEAL OF ILLINOIS NRA COMPLIANCE LAW URGED BY LEGISLATOR

[BY A STAF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Repeal of the Illinois NRA compliance law was asked of the legislature today by Representative Clinton Searle, Rock Island Republican. The measure has hindered rather than promoted recovery, Searle said.

At the request of Washington officials, Gov. Horner had the bill introduced in the special assembly session last spring and insisted upon its being passed. Democratic majorities in each house jammed it through after the fiercest battle seen here in years.

Searle introduced a repealer among the first bills presented at today's opening session of the Fifty-ninth general assembly.

"Industrial recovery," he declared, "has been hindered rather than promoted by this act. Unemployment has not been reduced, but rather increased. Instead of promoting and fostering fair competition and eliminating unfair practices, the act has tended to promote monopoly, restrain trade, and bring ruin to the small merchants and business men in our villages, towns, and cities.

"Prices for the necessities of life have increased and the citizens have been deprived of their sacred liberties. This bill has been introduced as an emergency measure. Its immediate passage is as great an emergency as any existing in Illinois today."

Most of the Republican side is expected to join Searle in his fight. The struggle will not open for several days, until committees have been appointed. Speaker Devine may send the bill to the judiciary committee, one of the most important.

DISCOVERER OF INSULIN DEFENDS WORK WITH DOGS

Sir Frederick Grant Banting, professor of medical research at the University of Toronto, who won the Nobel prize for his discovery of insulin as a treatment for diabetes, declared yesterday that his discovery would have been impossible had he not been able to use dogs in his researches. In a letter to the Illinois Society for the Protection of Medical Research, Dr. Banting expressed disapproval of the campaign started here against the use by medical schools of unclaimed dogs from the city pound.

With the advancement in bacteriology through the use of animals in experimentation, bacterial diseases such as diphtheria, smallpox and scarlet fever have come under control, Dr. Banting said. He declared that many of those who object to this use of animals are misinformed. Dogs used for experimentation are cared for as though they were patients in a hospital, he said.

GOVERNOR OLSON ADVANCES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP PLAN

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A far-flung public ownership program, designed to place the state in many forms of commerce and industry, was recommended to the Minnesota legislature today by Gov. Floyd Olson. For the third time the farmer-labor executive took the oath of office in the house chamber, before representatives and senators gathered in joint session.

Challenging the existing social and economy order, the governor proposed that the state turn to the left and adopt the coöperative commonwealth plan of publicly owned utilities, key industries, packing plants and a central banking system.

His plan for the state's future fell on the ears of a legislature in which a majority is opposed to his political philosophy. Conservatives yesterday made a clean sweep of all important positions in the legislative organization.

FAVORED BY THE NATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is accepted by the American Medical Association Committee on Foods, and is approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. The seals of these two distinguished organizations are granted only to wholesome products of the highest merit.

Millions of Americans have discovered that this delicious cereal corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Unless checked, this ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. You feel below par—fail to get the best out of each day.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies a generous quantity of mild "bulk" to aid regular habits. Also vitamin B and iron. Unlike cathartics, ALL-BRAN continues to be effective when used for months.

Isn't it pleasanter to enjoy this gentle, natural food instead of weakening your system with patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Remember, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HUNT BROTHER OF SLAIN McGOVERN IN FATAL CRASH

Police Believe Gangster's Kin Driver of 3d Car.

Michael McGovern, 503 South Dearborn street, a brother of the slain gangster, Stubby McGovern, was being sought by the Englewood police last night in the belief that he was at the scene of an accident yesterday morning in which Mrs. Cassa Jean Reeder, 37 years old, 543 Roscoe street, was burned to death when the car in which she was riding overturned and caught fire after it collided with a police squad car at 57th and Halsted streets.

Policemen Michael Durkin and Anthony Gardner, who were in the squad car and were answering a shooting report when the crash occurred, were cut and bruised. John O'Brien, 30 years old, 4201 Emerald avenue, secretary of the Meat Drivers and Butchers' union, driver of the other car, received a fractured leg.

Going 60 Miles an Hour.

Capt. Michael Tobin of the Englewood police said witnesses reported that O'Brien's car, the 1934 license plates for which had been issued to McGovern, was going nearly 60 miles an hour and passed through a red light. All in the car were intoxicated, Capt. Tobin said. The squad car also bore 1934 license plates.

Mrs. Adele Cook, 20 years old, a night club entertainer, daughter of Mrs. Reeder, admitted to police that she had been in another car that was immediately behind O'Brien's, but said it was a coincidence. Authorities are seeking to learn if McGovern may not have been with Mrs. Cook, who is being held by the Englewood police.

Trafic Takes More Victims.

Paul Lundberg, 72 years old, 210 West 110th street, was fatally injured by an auto last night while crossing 110th and State streets. He was struck by the automobile of Paul Geeding, 27 years old, 100 West 113th street. Mr. Lundberg died at the Roseland Community hospital, and Geeding was held by the police.

The death of Mr. Lundberg, Mrs. Reeder, and two others raised the Cook county motor toll so far this year to 13. The other victims:

Peter Pederson, 64 years old, 4822 Drummond place. Killed when he was struck by the auto of a hit-and-run driver while he was crossing in front of 5000 Fullerton avenue. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms at 2410 West North avenue.

Clarence Jones, 23 years old, who lived at a municipal shelter at 1210 South Morgan street. Fatally injured when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at Winchester and Ogden avenues. Police were unable to find any witnesses who obtained the license number of the car. It was believed the machine's right front head light and fender were bent.

Lieut. Albert Booth, 48 years old, 7615 Eberhart avenue, attached to the Kensington police station, was badly bruised and possibly internally injured last night when the automobile he was driving crashed into a parked truck in South Park avenue near 99th street. Burnside police said the truck was without lights and had been backed up while the owner removed a wheel. The owner could not be found. Booth was taken to Roseland Community hospital.

10 MORE CCC MEN FIRED IN CURFEW MUTINY

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Ten more CCC workers at camp 1,281 in the South mountain reservation near West Orange, N. J., were expelled today because they refused to work as a protest against the 11 o'clock bedtime regulation.

This brings to thirty-eight the number of youths discharged since the "mutiny" against the curfew rule began yesterday. Twelve were expelled yesterday and sixteen last night.

Capt. James Tobin, reserve army officer in charge of the camp, said the expelled youths were all leaders of the "mutiny." He expressed an opinions that communist agitators had inspired the youths. The situation now is under control, for every man in the camp was in bed at 11 o'clock last night, Capt. Tobin said.

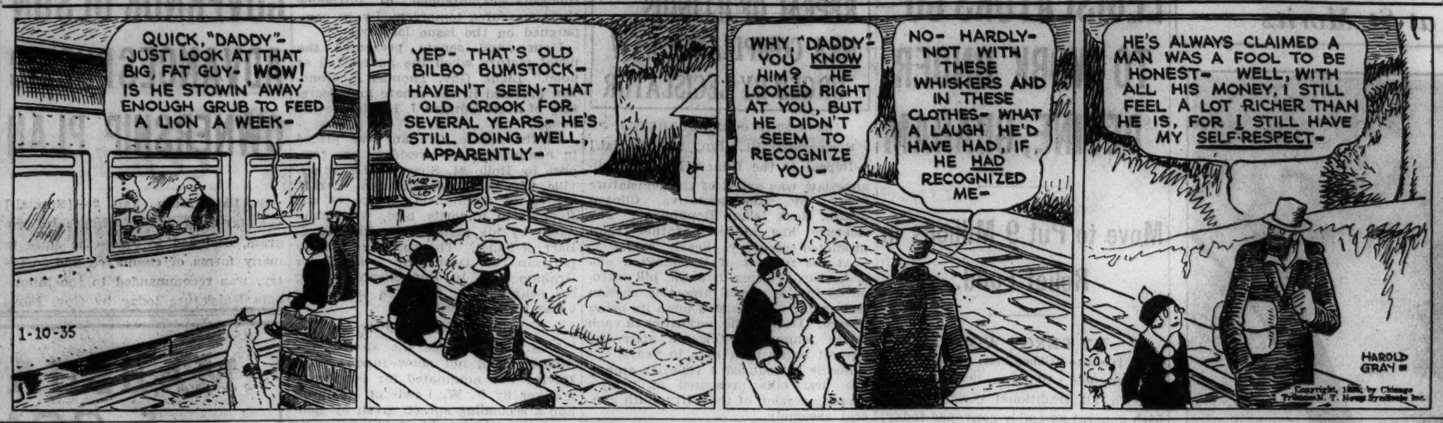
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: His Choice



News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

George Olsen and Ethel Shutta were engaged yesterday for a new sponsored series over NBC. It will be the first time in more than two years that the College inn maestro and his blonde wife will be costarred in a commercial series. Last one was the old ginger ale program in which Jack Benny was a headliner with them.

ETHEL SHUTTA.

The new show will run a half hour on Sunday afternoons, according to present plans. NBC is having difficulty clearing time on the stations desired—business is that good. But the starting date is tentatively set for St. Patrick's day. Olsen and his troupe of entertainers will do the entire show. Assisting George and Miss Shutta will be Lynn Cole, vocal soloist, and the quartet composed of Bob Rice, Jack Gifford, Dick Gardiner, and Bobby Borger.

The Modern choir, heard Sunday evenings with Jane Froman and Frank Black's orchestra, has been engaged to appear with Ted Lewis' new show, reported ready for the air early in February. . . . Joe Penner has been signed by Paramount to make another picture this summer at a figure reputed to be $100,000. . . . Wayne King is reported looking for a buyer for his cabin plane. Mrs. King, they say, feels that one of the family ought to stay on the ground with Penny, their young daughter. Thus the waltz king appears destined to do his flying alone and in an open cockpit.

Richard Cole, former W-G-N orchestra leader, is paying a flying visit to Chicago. Cole is on the air from the Blackstone, Dallas, Tex., nowadays. His young daughter has just recovered from a serious attack of scarlet fever and he brought her north to have local physicians examine her. They reported no serious after effects.

Hal Kemp, the dance maestro, has turned interviewer on his 10 p. m. Wednesday programs over NBC from New York. During a dance interlude he presents some well known newspaper personality. Last night Kemp fired questions at Otto Soglow, the cartoonist, whose latest volume is titled "Wasn't the Depression Terrible."

There will be no charity radio show this year. These shows, held at Chicago Stadium, have been annual affairs for three years. . . . Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey will open an engagement at the Chicago theater Friday. This famous husband and wife team of radio will be heard over W-G-N from the stage of the theater next Tuesday evening. . . . Josef Koestner thinks the new year is all right. He has been reengaged as the maestro of the NBC Musical Memories hour for another year.

SERGT. BROWN, HAYMARKET RIOT POLICEMAN, DIES

Sergt. John Brown, one of the last surviving policemen who were targets of an anarchist bomb in the memorable Haymarket riot of May 4, 1886, died last night at his home, 5544 Adams street. He was 79 years old. He was retired on a pension several years ago.

Mr. Brown won his promotion to the rank of sergeant with his partner, Dennis Buggie, when they captured Stubby Hicks, a thug who robbed the late Andrew Graham, west side banker and politician, at the turn of the century. The chief of police at that time, Joe Kipley, had offered to promote the policeman who caught the robber.

Mr. Brown is survived by one son, Joseph J. Brown.

Lain & SON

SINCE 1891—

A SIGN of SERVICE

Pioneers in protecting the public against high funeral costs, Lain & Son have always set the standard of service.

Today, Lain holds more services in a month than the average undertaker has in a year. No other Chapel in Chicago holds as many services as Lain's.

Because of this leadership, Lain includes these exclusive features with all services, even those as low as $110:

Conditioned Air

Protects the health of all who attend Lain Chapel services—provides an abundance of air washed and purified and circulated at correct temperature.

Imperial Quartet

Lain was the first Chapel to include with all services—the Imperial Male Quartet, Organist and Organ.

Price Protection

Lain was the first to answer the price question by publishing the cost of 1,000 funerals; showing that more than one-third of Lain services actually cost less than $200. Also, to price-mark all merchandise.

Highest Quality

Lain's prices are lower because of volume. All merchandise is bought on a cash basis from reliable manufacturers only; we never offer "bargains" or "seconds" in merchandise.

Lain's personnel has few changes over the years, and with the most modern of facilities—render a service that cannot be equalled.

To secure this finer type of service, call Lain—no matter where you live in Chicago or Suburbs.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

 13

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Cleanliness is the first principle of hand beauty. A brief but businesslike scrubbing of nails and hands with a small stiff brush, followed by a creaming makes pink tipped fingers poetic.

It takes an observant male to bring home some of the vital facts about feminine beauty. We heard one sounding off the other day on the subject of women's hands—and we can imagine that fifty million pairs of feminine ears turned a glowing crimson.

His big argument was that women don't keep their hands clean, and when you look about, perhaps at your own and certainly at the hands of others as they're flashed at you, you'll realize that he wasn't too far from the truth. He would swear on a stack of Bibles that we all use nail polish to cover nail sins.

We felt that right here was a sound argument for nail brushes. How many of us use them conscientiously? And why not? There isn't anything like one to get in and under and around and about the nail bed and edge.

One new one, a petite little thing with serrated bristles and a back easy to grip, is no bigger than a minute and as long lived as time. Soak the nails for a short interval in soapy water, then embed the finger tips in the body of the bristles and rub the little brush back and forth in a firm movement. You've no idea how it cleans underneath and also lifts and strengthens the nail tip.

And using the brush as a buffer across the top of the nail is a healthy friction for them and does wonders in pushing back the cuticle and skin around the sides. A smart third touch is to finish with a circular movement on each nail.

This same brush will do for a scrub brush for knuckles and palm and hand back, too, thereby putting an end to the dark streaks that will get into the creases.

All this takes more time to tell than to execute. There isn't any real reason why we shouldn't scrub up our hands in this fashion several times a day. And if we finish the operation with a generous application of our favorite hand softener and whitener it will be time double well spent.

Sculptor to Perform at Brewster Home.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE friends that the Walter S. Brewsters are inviting to supper a week from Sunday have a treat in store for them, for after supper Sandy Calder, the very modern young sculptor who is to have an exhibition at the Renaissance society at the University of Chicago soon, is to give his circus.

Only those who have seen the circus know exactly what it is, for they all say it is difficult to describe, but it sounds as if it would be original and very amusing. Mr. Calder's sculptures, at least those he uses in the circus performance, are of wire and Mrs. Brewster, who saw the circus in New York, says it is most entertaining and clever.

Tonight the Brewsters are entertaining at dinner in their charming Lake View avenue residence, but there is to be no special guest nor after-dinner entertainment. Not long after the circus party they will be leaving for New York to sail for the Virgin Islands, where they will spend almost a month. Neither has been to these islands before, and they know very little about them except that they are a pleasant distance from New York, so they are looking forward with keen anticipation to their trip.

The former Sarah Brewster and her husband, Duncan Hodges, are leaving in the early spring for a trip around the world. They will go from west to east and they plan to take as long to make the trip as the state of their finances will permit.

Emily Fentress Stocking Will Be Bride Today

Today at noon at Fenbrook, the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress, Mrs. Emily Fentress Stocking and John Nash Ott Jr. will be married. The Rev. John Timothy Stone will read the service in the presence of the immediate families and this afternoon the bride and bridegroom will leave for New York to sail Saturday for a five months' world cruise. Mrs. Stocking's two little sons, Robert and Richard, will remain with their grandparents in Hubbard Woods while their mother is away.

Emily Gary Fentress and Robert B. Stocking of New York were married just after Christmas in 1930 and were divorced last December. Mrs. Stocking and three year old Robin and one year old Dick have been living with Mr. and Mrs. Fentress since last summer.

Mr. Ott is the son of John Nash Ott of Winnetka and a grandson of Mrs. James B. Forgan of Chicago. His sister, Dorothy, has delayed returning to Smith college to be here for today's ceremony, but his other sister, Mary, and her husband, Thomas Kemp Jr., will not come from their home in Baltimore for the wedding.

Mrs. Fentress' mother, Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon, who lives with another daughter, Mrs. John W. Gary, in Glencoe, is not well, so she will not be at the wedding, nor will the bride's sister, Mary, and her husband, Burwell Dodd, of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Harriet Fentress, whose engagement to Bruce Benson was announced just before Christmas, will be present, and so will Paul Fentress, who is a student at Princeton. Miss Fentress is leaving tonight to return to Vassar. Calvin Fentress Jr. and his wife, the former Frances Wood, and Dr. Thomas L. Fentress and his wife, the former Celeste Pope, will see their sister married, however. And so will Mrs. Gary, for whom the bride is named.

Party on Saturday for Engaged Couple.

Seven young men will give a party Saturday afternoon at 41 East Division street for Lester B. Knight Jr. and his fiancée, Miss Elizabeth Ann Field of Rye, N. Y. Miss Field is visiting her aunt and uncle, the Eugene Fauntleroys, in Lake Forest. A number of other Chicago friends of Mr. Knight are arranging parties for him. The wedding will take place in March.

Mrs. Cyrus Phillip of Milwaukee, regional director of the Junior league, is planning to spend several days on the north shore. Arriving this morning, she will be the guest of Mrs.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THE TNS of LF is not an alphabetical bureau formed under the Roosevelt administration. It is the National Society of Long Fellows, and its platform is: "We want longer beds, bedsheets and covers, Pullman berths, bath tubs, socks, coat sleeves, trousers' legs, and shirt tails. We want higher awnings, signs, light fixtures, doors, and ceilings. We want wider spaces between theater seats and more room in motor cars."

THE National Society of Long Fellows was organized by Phil E. Zimmerman of Topeka, Kas., a traveling salesman, who, being more than six feet tall, had to kink himself into the shape of the letter Z when he slept in a hotel bed or Pullman berth, fold up into a letter N when he drove his car, twist into a letter S to get into the bath tub, and stoop to a letter F when he walked under an awning. According to a story in the Kansas City Star, which announced the organization of the Long Fellows, 47 of the tallest men in Kansas immediately joined Mr. Zimmerman's society. One of the first to come in was H. W. Behrens, former state senator, who is 6 feet 7 inches tall.

Long Fellows—Notes.

BERTHS of extra length have been put in the Union Pacific's new streamlined train, for the comfort of tall men. The Drake hotel has two seven foot beds for the comfort of extra tall patrons. One of them is occupied by Arthur M. Barnhart, who keeps a room at the Drake. When he was a student at Princeton he had a bed specially made that was 7 feet 6. The Hotel Sherman also has several 7 foot beds for extra tall customers. The Palmer house has two 7 foot and two 8 foot beds. The average bed is 6 feet 6 inches? The University club has long beds.

One of Chicago's tallest young men is Mitchell D. Follansbee Jr., who is 6 feet 6 inches tall. The beds in the Kellogg Fairbank household, both on North State street and at The Butternuts at Lake Geneva, are extra length, as Mr. Fairbank is 6 feet 2; his older son, Kellogg, is 6 feet 5, and his younger son, Ben, 6 feet 4½. There are hundreds of extra tall men in the city who undoubtedly would welcome extra length beds without having to have them made to order, if the bed manufacturers would see fit to produce them.

THE tall Mr. Zimmerman, who organized the society to encourage longer beds, bed clothing, and bath tubs, says that the motor car with the sliding front seat that can be drawn up or pushed back was the direct result of the work of the society he founded.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

If I were of a suspicious nature, which heaven forbid, I'd believe "Gentlemen Are Born" to be rabid anti-college education propaganda. If I were brighter I MIGHT find the picture a clever satire on the optimism of the graduate who, diploma under arm, dashes forth into the maelstrom of living and expects the world to respectfully clear a path for him. Being what I AM—JUST a movie fan, who happens, for one reason and another to jot down impressions derived at the movies, I found the piece a pointless jumble, jazzed up, here and there, by a tense moment, and accorded acting far better than the scenario deserves.

The plot concerns itself with the careers of four fine young fellows who, as the picture opens, you find graduating.

Smudge is a football hero who intends to make a name for himself as a coach.

Bob aspires, merely, to be a great newspaper man.

Tom means to make the marts of trade sit up and take notice.

Fred has a successful dad in Wall street whom he worships and who gives him a job.

Happy faced, stout hearted, they tackle the problem of making a living. . . . And, as I said, the inference is—were I looking for inferences—that four years of four bright young lives have been idiotically wasted in the bosom alma mater.

One outstanding scene is that in which Bob [Franchot Tone] bitterly questions of his happily married pal, Tom Martin [the Martins live in a tenement], what it's all about. AFTER—the football hero has been wiped out and tragedy has disrupted the home of Fred, son of the broker. Mr. Tone does a fine and memorable bit of acting in this episode.

See you tomorrow!

Miss Mary Wood Is Bride

Mrs. Frederick Leslie Ryner was Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood until January 2 when she was married to the son of the Frederick E. Ryners in an evening ceremony at the home of her father, John C. Wood, in Hinsdale. Young Mr. Ryner took his bride to New Haven, Conn., to make their home, for he is in business there.

Two Good Art Shows Present Sharp Contrast

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

It would be difficult to find a greater contrast than that between the exhibitions of Jess Hobby and Rifka Angel. The exhibits have opened in galleries that nearly face each other on North Michigan avenue, Jess Hobby showing his landscapes in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, and Rifka Angel being found with her native portraits in the Robert Breckenridge gallery, 908 North Michigan avenue.

Different as these exhibits are in manner, subject and atmosphere, they are linked by the persuasive power each exerts upon the spectator.

Jess Hobby, whose exhibition is under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, is first and foremost a landscape painter. His catalog betrays him a poet at heart for under each title the artist has written a short description that heightens the interest of the painting.

Who could resist: "The fisherman stood so patiently waiting for a strike that he seemed to be part of the landscape" or "the trees held the fever of a lingering summer, but the countryside was hard and pale from long and blazing suns." The Illinois farm which is the subject of the last title might be found in duplicate throughout many of our states in the drouth of last summer.

Jess Hobby paints the country in summer, autumn, and winter. Rarely has he done a finer piece of work than in "December Snow" and "Hut in Winter." The "Mill at Sparta" is another wintry scene unique in the strength and sureness of its handling.

"October" is a magnificent fall incident and Mr. Hobby repeats these successes to varying degrees in the paintings that circle the room. It is a good show.

Rifka Angel throws one at once into a different mood. Her paintings are introspective, sensitive, imaginative, and naive. She has painted her little daughter in various moods with tenderness and a simple sincerity that make the portraits very charming. Children at play are painted with a whimsical brush.

Her portrait of the Hindoo dancer, an encaustic, is enchanting in color and rhythm. The large water color portrait of a lady is finely modeled. All in all one might say that Rifka Angel has never done better painting than this, nor made herself more intelligible. The odd flavor that impregnates her compositions is like the pomegranate, curiously teasing.

The exhibitions will continue through January.

Chicago Schools to Join Roosevelt Birthday Party

Democratic Wives Defeat "Republican" in Congressional Club

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. William Madison Whittington of Mississippi today was elected president of the Congressional club to succeed Mrs. Clarence C. Dill, wife of the former senator from Washington.

Mrs. Whittington, wife of the Democratic representative from Greenwood, Miss., was not in Washington when her name was put up by a bloc of women Democrats organized in a last-minute move to defeat a "Republican" candidate.

One of the Democratic campaign arguments was that Republican women of the club had been making critical remarks about Mrs. Roosevelt.

The Congressional club is composed of wives of senators and representatives. The members did not disclose the name of the "Republican" candidate.

Gloves Among Best Bargains in Stores Today

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The best buys in town are the bargains in bags and gloves. Some of the most stunning daytime handbags in black with nice big, swanky frames and clasps, and ornaments in chromium, silver, and gold metal, simulated tortoise shell and clear prystal will make your eyes pop with the bargain prices attached.

The glove finds are the long kid affairs especially in brown and beige with some splendid values in other colors, too. Big cuffed velvet gloves, in all street shades, to see you through the next few weeks with heavy winter or fur coats are also priced for the bargain hunter.

Glove silk lingerie is something else to buy now. You'll find these severely tailored with elastic bands around the waist to keep them miracles of sleekness, with loose and semi-fitted vests also tailored. The lace trimmed styles are darn good looking creations with dainty real val edgings or inset pieces of bistre tinted Alencon lace. These come in two weights, the luxurious heavy glove silk or the diaphanous stuff called illusion which is the sheerest of silk. These illusion silk models are nothing more or less than a film, but you can wear them with your most revealing dress and not a wrinkle will show.

Other things to cheer about are the good flesh tones available these days. Gone forever are the tricky pinks. Lovely subtle shades of dash and peach make these always practical and decorative all-silk underlayers the most popular models worn by fashion wise women.

All manner of styles and designs are here, from the trim scanty trunks in a combination of silk and synthetic silks, to the all-to-gethers the French panties, and separate vests of heavy all silk.

Every piece in the collections is of practical design for the fashionable daytime and evening clothes of the season, and each has a reasonable price.

William L. Finley will give an illustrated lecture at 8 o'clock tonight before the Illinois Audubon society at the Museum of Natural History in Lincoln park at Center street. The motion pictures, which were taken by Mr. Finley, show the wild life along the 1,400 miles of the Columbia river.

At 5:30 o'clock this evening in All Angels church Miss Beth-Ann Keefe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James E. Keefe, will become the bride of Donald Monroe Goodwillie, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Perley Goodwillie. Msgr. William Griffith will read the ceremony and a wedding dinner for just the two families and attendants will follow at the home of the bride's parents. Because Mrs. Keefe has not been well there will be no reception.

Miss Clara Lawler will be the maid of honor and Miss Winifred Wade the bridesmaid. Robert J. Graf Jr. will serve Mr. Goodwillie as best man, and ushering will be Karl Meyer and Samuel Stuart. Four of the bride's nephews and nieces will precede her to the altar. They include Leah Seguin, flower girl; James E. Keefe III., ringbearer; Mabel Marie Keefe, and Howard Keefe Jr.

Chicago Designers Will Participate in Textile Exhibition

Designers of women's apparel met yesterday at the Congress hotel to discuss their own rôles in the movement to advance the city's reputation as a center for individual, creative fashions. Both the free lance and the wholesale field were represented. Emphasis was placed on the contributions the group will make to the textile exhibit and fashion preview to be held here Jan. 28 and 29, at the Midland Club hotel. The meeting yesterday was under auspices of the Chicago Wholesale Merchants' council.

Examples of the finest designing talent available in Chicago are desired to demonstrate the beauty of the fabrics that will be shown, it was stated by Glenn Hayes, director of the Wholesale Merchants' council. Such gowns will not only return the best results for the seasonal market, but will raise the standards of artistry in the midwest area, he explained.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the large Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with a peasant couple and their large brood of children, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also anxious to obtain from her a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a beautiful communist friend of Stephen's. Irina wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen knows she might prove dangerous. He and Elizabeth must get away. They travel by sledge with Yuri to Tronsk. Irina has departed for a nearby collective farm, and Stephen has learned Petroff is there. Stephen leaves Elizabeth in a café and tells her to wait for him. Irina comes in with Petroff. Elizabeth gets away without their seeing her and meets Stephen outside. One of his communist friends has given him his room, where he leaves her while he goes out to investigate. He sees Irina on the street with six men. Hiding in a doorway he hears her tell them to guard the house so that Elizabeth cannot get away. She is going for Petroff, who suspects from the description given him by Irina that Varvara is Elizabeth. Stephen rushes to get to Petroff's house before Irina.

INSTALMENT XXII.

A SPY'S QUICK ACTION.

Stephen came to Petroff's house with his part ready conned. Petroff had a three-roomed flat on the second floor. As Stephen knocked on the door, his ears cocked for the sound of Irina's step on the stair behind him, it came to him that this had been the door of Elizabeth's prison. Here she had lived in torment for a year. Here the old woman had bullied and starved her.

A voice shouted, "Come in!"

He opened the door and went in, his mind very clear and angry. The door led directly into a room from which other doors opened, one on either side. In the middle of this center room was a large table littered with papers. Petroff sat at the table, but he was not occupied with the papers. He had a bottle in front of him and a glass in his hand. The room stank of vodka and the smoke of a rank cigar.

With a beaming smile Stephen rushed upon him and wrung him by the hand.

"Do you remember me, comrade—Red Stefan? Yes, yes, of course you do—and Magnitogorsk—and the vodka? Well, well, well—that was a good meeting, wasn't it? And the vodka was good vodka. You were pleased to see me that day—eh, comrade? And today you'll be even better pleased—unless I have made a mistake, and I don't think I have."

"I've found Elizabeth Radin."

Petroff pushed back his chair, but he did not push it much father from the table. He pushed it so that his hand could with one movement reach the revolver which he kept in the top right hand drawer. He was not at all drunk. He had not had time to get drunk. He had merely taken enough vodka to make him feel that he was more than a match for Red Stefan.

Stephen saw the movement and laughed. He leaned on the table with an air of genial friendliness.

"What do you want?" said Petroff, his hand at the drawer.

"You're looking for a woman, aren't you—a counter revolutionary with important information?"

"Who told you that?" said Petroff sharply.

Stephen made a fine vague gesture.

"Some comrade—I don't know—it might have been Irina. Couldn't it have been Irina?"

His ears were strained for the sound of Irina's footsteps. Yet he must not hurry too much. Petroff was no fool.

"It might have been Irina." Petroff's tone was non-committal.

Stephen nodded.

"Or it might have been some other comrade. Anyhow I heard it, and—now see if you are not surprised—I believe I have found her, this counter-revolutionary of yours. What is her name?"

Petroff had opened the drawer. His hand was on the revolver. His shallow, slanting eyes watched Stephen's face.

"Her name is Elizabeth Radin."

Stephen looked first puzzled, then excited.

"She called herself Varvara to me. And I married her. Think of that, comrade! I found her wandering about in the streets like a half-wit and took her off to my village—never suspected anything till she began to talk in her sleep."

Petroff kept his hand on the revolver.

"What did she say?"

"One night she said your name—'Petroff'—just like that."

Petroff reached his left hand for his glass and drank.

"She said my name?"

Stephen slapped his thigh.

"If I was a jealous husband, comrade, what should I make of that? She said your name, and something more. She said, 'Petroff wants it,' and then she screamed out, 'No—no—no!'"

Petroff set down his glass again, empty.

"You're sure about this?"

"Sure? Of course I'm sure! That's why I'm here. I didn't say a word even to Irina. I just brought her along for you to have a look at her."

The door at the foot of the stair opened and shut. That would be Irina. All right, let her come. He'd beaten her. There was nothing to spare, but he'd done it.

Petroff was saying:

"Here? She's not here?"

Stephen leaned towards him eagerly.

"No, no, she's at Boris Andreieff's lodging. He lent us the room. I left her there and came to fetch you——"

Feet on the stair, and a knocking on the door . . . Irina.

"You'll have to identify her," said Stephen.

The knocking went on.

"Come in, if you want to!" shouted Petroff.

The knocking stopped. The door was flung open and Irina ran into the room.

Stephen swung around on his corner of the table and stared at Irina with a most convincing surprise. Petroff stared, too.

After all, Irina had run. Her breast heaved and her cheeks glowed with unwonted color. At the sight of Stephen she came to a standstill a yard from the open door and stood there angry, breathless, and beautiful.

With a welcoming shout Stephen sprang at her and linked his arm in hers.

"It never rains but it pours! Here you are—and in the very nick of time!" He kicked the door shut, laughed noisily, and pulled Irina toward Petroff. "You're full of visitors today, comrade. But I can always go if I am in the way. You and I have had our talk, so if Irina wants to talk secrets to you, I can make myself scarce. All I've got to say is, you're a very lucky man, and I wouldn't mind being in your place."

Irina pulled furiously away from him.

"What are you doing here, Stefan Ivanovitch?"

He made a laughing gesture.

"Just having a little talk with Comrade Petroff."

Her eyes blazed on him.

"What have you been talking about?"

"Why not ask him?" said Stephen.

Petroff had withdrawn his hand from the top right hand drawer. He did not think he was going to need that revolver.

"Well?" said Irina defiantly. "What has Stefan been saying?"

Petroff smiled, showing teeth blackened by tobacco.

"He has been telling me that he has found Elizabeth Radin."

"What?" said Irina in angry amazement. She stared at Stephen and put a hand on the table as if to steady herself.

"He has found Elizabeth Radin," said Petroff.

Irina's voice sank to a sharp whisper.

"What?"

Stephen came and sat on the edge of the table and leaned confidentially towards Irina.

"I've found Elizabeth Radin. And who the devil do you suppose she turns out to be?" He drummed with his heels against the table leg and thumped an emphatic accompaniment upon the paper-strewn table top. "Guess—guess—guess! No, you can't guess—nobody could—so what's the good of trying? O, my Lord—it's funny! I'll have to tell you. She's my wife, Varvara. Just open your mouth and swallow that down if you can! Elizabeth Radin is my wife, Varvara! What do you say to that?"

Carol Alton, Mrs. Edward Hart Jr., Miss Helen Chapman, and Miss Joy Taylor at luncheon at noon at the Cradle in Evanston. After luncheon her four hostesses will take her on a tour of the dental dispensary that the Evanston Junior league supports, also the out-patient department and the library at the Evanston hospital that are other Evanston league projects.

This afternoon Mrs. Phillip will be the guest of Mrs. Louis Tilden at tea and then will be the house guest for the night of the Carol Altons at their home on Ridge avenue, Evanston. At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning Mrs. Phillip will attend the Evanston league board meeting at the home of Mrs. John F. Herdic at 811 Sunset road in Winnetka, after which Mrs. Herdic will be hostess at luncheon. This will provide the heads of the various departments of the Evanston league an opportunity to consult Mrs. Phillip on the problems of their departments.

Mrs. Phillip will return to Milwaukee tomorrow evening, but will return to Evanston Monday for the regular January meeting of the Evanston league at the Georgian hotel. At luncheon she will address the gathering.

Roy McWilliamses Forced to Delay Visit

The visit that Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams promised to pay Mrs. McWilliams' brother and sister-in-law, the Joseph C. Beldens, at Christmas time, never materialized, for Mr. McWilliams' companion in the United States consular office in Biarritz fell ill and the furthest Mr. McWilliams could get away from his duties was just to cross the border into Spain. There is a possibility, however, that Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams will join the Beldens in Florida in February.

The Belden family is not without visitors from abroad, for Mrs. Belden's sister and brother-in-law, the Edgar Stantons, have their daughter, Mrs. Robert Dupeyre, of Paris and her two boys visiting them. Mrs. Dupeyre arrived recently to spend a quiet two months here and she will return to France the first of March. Mr. Dupeyre will not come to America this winter. The Stantons' younger son, Francis, has returned to Yale university, where he is finishing a course in architecture.

The Louis C. Sudlers will arrive at home this morning from a West Indies cruise upon which they embarked immediately after Christmas. Mrs. Sudler timed her return so that she would be here for the Emerson house ball tomorrow night at the Congress, for she is a member of the board and last year was its president.

In addition to the other features already announced, Dennis King will select the girls at the ball who most resemble movie stars so all the young women in society who have been told by admiring friends that they look like Greta Garbo or Joan Crawford or Marlene Dietrich or some other fair lady of screen fame will be busy today having their hair dressed so as to enhance the resemblance.

Howard Linns to Hunt Quail.

The Howard Linns will leave tomorrow for a week or ten days of quail shooting in Mississippi. Mrs. Linn's brother, Seymour Blair, whose chief interest this winter is Playgoers, Inc., has just said good-by to Eugenie Leontovitch and the others who played in "Romance," Playgoers' last venture, and now he is looking around for their next production.

Mrs. I. Newton Perry and Mrs. James Ward Thorne will be boarding a train Saturday for a ten day vacation in New York. Later in the winter Mrs. Thorne hopes to go south for a real rest, being very tired after a strenuous winter in which she delivered twenty-four lectures on her miniature rooms which she recently presented to the Historical society. And in the late spring she expects to go to England, but she is making no definite plans beyond the southern trip.

While in the east Mrs. Thorne will see her son, Ward, and his wife and child, Judy, who have been living in Westport, Conn., for a year or so.

Another dinner with a literary flavor will be one the P. E. N. will give on Jan. 23 at the Casino for J. Middleton Murry, husband of the late Katherine Mansfield.

James W. Rogerses Go to Florida

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers have left for a month's stay in Florida, from which Mr. Rogers hopes to return entirely well from the injuries he suffered last summer in a motor accident.

Mrs. Austin H. Niblack and her children, Helen and Berto, left last Thursday for Aiken, S. C., where they will remain until May. Mr. Niblack will join his family several times during the months they are in the south.

Mrs. James Simpson Jr. and her children also have gone to Aiken where they will be joined for occasional week-ends by Mr. Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Carr and their son-in-law and daughter, the Marshall Grosscup Sampsells, will return today or tomorrow from a Christmas vacation trip to Mexico City. The Sampsells visited Bermuda, too, while they were away.

Thomas H. Fishers on Trip to Jamaica.

Mrs. F. Edson White and her daughter, Mrs. William M. Spencer, are giving a luncheon tomorrow at the residence of the latter, 1430 Lake Shore drive, for Mrs. Robert H. Cabell, who with Mr. Cabell recently moved from London to Chicago. Today Mrs. Richard Hackett will entertain at luncheon in a private dining room of the Drake hotel for Mrs. Cabell, with cocktails first in the Hackett apartment in the Drake Towers.

The Misses Katherine, Margot, and Dickie Cutter, three young women who have received nearly all of their education abroad, and Miss Marion Pruyn will present marionettes in a comedy, "La Dame a la Cuve" this afternoon at the causerie of the Alliance Francaise. The young ladies have written the dialog and directed the play themselves. Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze will pour tea following the sewing and the play.

Mrs. Edward B. Smith, the former Louise Dewey, yesterday received a medal from the French government, presented by M. Rene Weiller, French counsul general here, for her services to the Alliance Francaise.

This smart dress won't be difficult to make and it's a design you can fairly live in, yet always feel well dressed. A lovely blue sheer woolen will be just the thing to wear under your winter coat, and later on it can be worn without a coat. Worry Habit Bad for Beauty, Say Experts

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What the worrying habit does to one's looks is just too bad. A well known cosmetician told me once that if women stopped worrying it would be worse than too bad for her business. Her specialty happened to be a wrinkle eradicating product.

Ask any hair specialist or neighborhood shop owner what worrying does to the hair. At one out of the way hairdressing place my attention was called to an actual bald spot brought on through incessant worry. This woman did have a terrific grief in the arrest and imprisonment of one near and dear to her.

But the attendants will tell you that they see how worry takes the very life out of the hair. The complexion turns another color, ofttimes, and naturally, with these local features depending upon a healthy, stable system for proper maintenance.

Well, it's idiotic to admonish people not to worry. We all will do it more or less.

Margaret Wylie, professor of child development and parent education at Cornell university, offers time-filling as the sure-fire panacea for the worry habit. "Unfilled time," she says, "passes slowly and it gives opportunity for this unwholesome reaction in the way of imagination!"

Actively doing something is your only hope, even if it means taking to the washboard or scrubbing brush—do something!

Rosary Alumnæ Party.

Miss Irene Lewis, 5448 Washington boulevard, is chairman of the Rosary college alumnae card party to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday in the Palmer house.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks — sparkling eyes — most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women who suffered from constipation. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets at night for a week and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets — now and then — to keep fit. 15c, 30c, and 60c.

BY MARY MEADE.

Probably there is more controversy over just which is the best pumpkin pie than there is over any other one sort of pastry. Most of us love what we're brought up with—and there's no telling what that may have been. So today we're going to spread ourselves and offer as many different "punkin pies" as we can squeeze in, betting that at least one of the lot will tickle your family's palates.

SOUR CREAM PUMPKIN PIE.

1½ cups sour cream
1½ cups pumpkin
3 eggs, separated
1 cup medium brown sugar
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ teaspoon salt
Baked pie crust
Meringue

Turn one cup of the cream into a double boiler and scald over boiling water. Combine the pumpkin, beaten egg yolks, sugar, salt, and spice with the rest of the cream. Add this mixture slowly to the hot cream, stirring steadily. Continue stirring as the filling cooks and thickens (about ten minutes). Then remove it from the heat and fold in the stiff beaten egg whites. Cool, then pour into the baked pie crust. Cover with meringue and brown in a slow oven (325 degrees F.). Serve hot.

Now for a "Down East Punkin Pie." We're told that it's proper to make the crust for this one with unsalted butter and a high ledge for a generous filling—but suit yourself.

DOWN EAST "PUNKIN" PIE.

1½ cups pumpkin
2-3 cup brown sugar or
3 tablespoons molasses
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
1½ cups scalded milk
½ cup cream (or less)

Combine all the ingredients in the order given. Pour into a pie pan lined with unbaked pastry. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for about fifteen minutes, then lower the heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for about forty-five minutes or until the filling is firm.

PECAN PUMPKIN PIE.
(Two Pies.)

6 eggs
½ cup molasses
1½ cups brown sugar
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup melted butter
1 cup finely chopped unsalted pecan meats
3 cups pumpkin

Beat together the eggs, molasses, and sugar for four or five minutes. Blend the spices and salt with a little of the milk. When smooth add the rest of the milk and stir this combination into the egg, molasses, and sugar mixture. Turn the pumpkin into a large bowl and slowly pour the custard into it, stirring constantly. Have ready two ten inch pie pans lined with short pastry. Sprinkle each with two tablespoons of chopped nuts and two tablespoons of melted butter. Pour in the pumpkin custard, filling to one-fourth inch of the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until about half done. Then sprinkle the pies with the rest of the chopped nuts and the remainder of the butter. Finish baking until well done—about 35 to 40 minutes.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

CONTINUATION OF YESTERDAY'S ARTICLE.

I think I had better keep right on with our advanced king-showing procedure following an opening three bid. Yesterday I showed how with

Sp. K x x x	Di. x x x
Hs. x x x	Cl. K x x

if the bidding went—three hearts, three no trumps by you; four clubs by opener, you should now bid four spades instead of five clubs; by this bid you show at the same time the king he called for [clubs] and the king you actually bid [spades]. This saves him a probe and allows him to probe also for the king of diamonds without getting beyond five hearts, a bid which he has enabled you to know to be safe when he announced that the king of clubs would eliminate a loser from his hand—that is, it would reduce him to not more than two losers. If he now probes for the diamond king by bidding five diamonds over four spades, you deny it with a bid of five hearts. He now knows the exact situation and now makes the final bid—pass or six hearts, according to whether the spade king also eliminates a loser or not. You naturally have nothing further to say.

With the Two Minor Kings.

Naturally the king of trumps does not enter into this bidding, as this is a king he cannot call for. It is, as explained earlier, a card which enables responder to give a final raise at the end of all things when it is clear that opener has stopped because he expected to lose a trump trick which responder can take care of. So forget about the trump king in this connection. Suppose you hold

Sp. x x x	Di. K x x x
Hs. x x x	Cl. K x x

and the bidding goes as before—three hearts, three no trumps, four clubs. Now what should you do?

Denying One King and Showing Another King with One Bid.

Your bid of five clubs—a direct reply to the question. This bid says three things:

1. I have the king of clubs.
2. I have not got the king of spades, otherwise I would have included both kings in one bid by bidding four spades.
3. I may or may not have the king of diamonds. If you are interested in it, if it will eliminate one of your remaining losers, call for it now by bidding five diamonds. If I have to deny it, I can still do so by bidding five hearts, a contract we both know to be safe because you told me the king of clubs would eliminate one of your losers, and I have told you that I possess that card.

Surely this is clear, logical and sound, is it not?

With the King of Spades and Diamonds.

With these two kings, if the bidding went as before, you can only make exactly the same response as you would if you held the king of diamonds and no other king at all. Your bid over four clubs is four diamonds. This says:

1. I have not got the kings of both spades and clubs, otherwise I would have bid four spades.
2. I have not got the kings of both diamonds and of clubs or I would have bid five clubs, leaving you free to call for the diamond-king at the five level, still enabling me to deny it by five hearts.
3. I have not got the king of clubs, otherwise I would bid it either in combination with that of spades [four spades] or in combination with that of diamonds [five clubs] or, if it were my only king, I naturally would show it by a raise to five clubs in the ordinary, simple, question-and-answer manner.
4. I have got the king of diamonds; I may or may not have the king of spades.

With Only One King.

With only the king of clubs, you bid five clubs, a plain answer to the probe. This denies the king of spades. With only the king of diamonds, you bid four diamonds, as explained above. This denies the king of clubs, but neither denies nor affirms the king of spades.

With only the king of spades, you cannot drive your partner beyond the four level as this card may be useless. Your bid over four clubs is therefore four hearts. This obviously denies both minor suit kings, but neither denies nor affirms the spade king.

WITH ALL THREE KINGS as already explained, you bid four spades. If partner now probes for the king of diamonds, show it, and he can then bid the limit. Do not volunteer information about the diamond king as it is a useless card unless your partner inquires about it. You have enabled him to put that question at an absolutely safe, gratuitous level. You do not know what aces are out against you—but your partner does.

Girl Has Rival for Affections of Boy Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Rea's heartache of the moment is trying the difficult job of keeping two girls dangling at the same time. Rea is one. The other is a girl the young man has known longer. Of her Rea says "She has him tied about her little finger so he is afraid to cross her." But he slips one over on her, at that. Rea sees him three or four times during the week—but the other girl has the preferred nights, Saturday and Sunday.

Rea's problem, of course, is how to have the Saturday and Sunday night program dedicated to her, also. The chap admits he is keen on her. He's man enough not to knock the other girl.

His is probably the predicament of a young man with two eager young women on his trail between whom he, himself, cannot decide. Indeed, he may be only enjoying the contest. He may not wish to be taken in permanently by either. But, I suppose it being the girl's business to get her man regardless of how he may balk, the contest will end fatally for him.

One or the other girl will have him altar tied. And Rea is out to do it. After all, she has four evenings a week as against two for the other girl. On second thought, there may be danger in that. Too close repetition. The Saturday and Sunday night one may have the edge on Rea. But we wonder how far either girl will get if each makes it obvious that said young man is the only gentleman on the horizon.

We don't know how you're going to do it, Rea, but if the youth means everything to your happiness we hope you prove the best woman, and the winner.

WONDERED WHAT IT WAS LIKE

"I used to wonder, but now I know what Midol tablets do for the woman who has a difficult time and really suffers with periodical pain. I am grateful beyond expression, simply because I get such relief from Midol that I don't even have to favor myself on those days."

Many could give Midol just such endorsement! It acts fast, is effective for several hours, but it's not a narcotic. It is a special medicine, for this special purpose, and specialists can tell you how well it works! You'll usually find it displayed on the druggist's counter—or just ask the clerk for Midol.

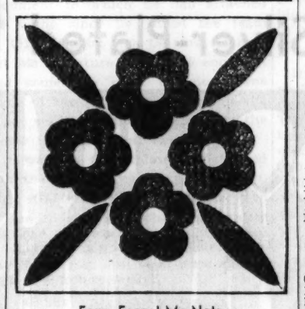
Floral Applique Patterns Create Beautiful Quilt



Four Forget-Me-Nots.

By NANCY CABOT.

Along about this season of the year my mail includes many requests for new and novel, old, and recently revived floral applique patterns. "Four Forget-me-nots," offered here, is a rather new quilt pattern, but the flower is the same one used by our foremothers. The quilt diagram accompanying the pattern is recommended, since the arrangement has the appearance of an all over design on a large comforter rather than applique blocks joined together.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Fraternity Meeting

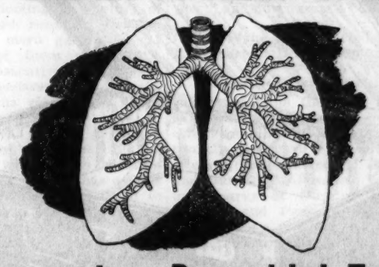
A VOLATILE RUB



that reaches Bronchial Tubes!

You can use this new pine penetrant to throw-off a cold without one drop of internal medicine.

As everybody knows, a "rub" is the most direct relief for any cold. But here's a new rub, with new speed—its action starts with the first breath. It's perfectly safe—it can be used full-strength on little children.

Pine Balm relieves a head cold in a few moments. A chest cold overnight. Its occasional use will be a comfort to you all through the winter.

A light cold will often disappear after a single application. A more deep-seated cold requires longer treatment. But actual relief of that congestion is begun and felt within a quarter hour.

For an irritated throat, you just swallow a small lump of this truly remarkable preparation.

An improvement on nature? It would almost seem to be! The pungency of this pine compound does what days in the woods may not accomplish for the nasal passages, the throat, and bronchial tubes. Its volatile vapors spread quickly through the affected area. Yet they are so harmless, so helpful, so soothing, that you may use Pine Balm on the baby!

This new formula offers you an entirely new cold treatment. It has been tested by physicians on a great many types of colds. As a result of this testing, it may safely be said that there is no more efficacious relief for adult or child use. Your druggist has it, now; ask today for Dr. Caldwell Pine Balm.

'Boarding Out' Often Has Bad Effect on Child

Mother Must Be Patient When He Comes Home.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

They are cruel circumstances which separate a child from its mother, even temporarily. Stories of many such separations come to us in the mail, but often with a happy ending.

The young mother perhaps was widowed, or left her husband, or was deserted by him, or was not married when her child was born. She was, perhaps, forced to go to work to support herself and her baby—or several young children. With what superb courage women meet these situations!

In these circumstances most of the mothers have been forced to board their babies or children out. Then, one happy day, they marry again, or some other happening makes it possible for them to have their children with them once more.

And it is at this point that they often write to me. Distress or even complete discouragement color their communications. They find that their child, whom they have been able to see only for short periods of time when he was being "boarded out," is disobedient, or defiant, or does not want to stay indoors, or has undesirable habits of one sort or another, or even shows more serious phases of misbehavior.

Now I admit that all this is distressing enough and must be corrected. But the things these parents must bear in mind and which will help them the most are the following:

First, that the child must not be held to blame for his condition. Although it is not the parents' fault it is the fault of circumstances, not of the child.

Second, that it is difficult for a child to be taken out of familiar surroundings and to be required to fit into different and strange ones.

Third, that when a child has been boarded in different homes he has had to adjust himself to different kinds of handling, and this frequently has an unfortunate effect upon him.

And fourth, that the parents must not expect quick results, even if their methods are wise and loving. These changes take time. They must be prepared to exercise unlimited patience.

We have fully written booklets on the behavior of children at all ages. In writing in, be sure to tell your child's age, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONSIDER FLAX ON AAA LAND TO REPLACE CORN

South Reduces Cotton; Plants North's Crops.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Corn belt farmers confront the necessity of giving southern planters "tit for tat" to protect themselves under the federal government's revolutionary agricultural adjustment program. In offsetting their losses in corn growing, which have been taken up on a fairly large scale by farmers in many of the cotton states, northern producers may find new crops and may devise some profitable production and marketing plan that will enable them to revive the growing of such old fiber crops as flax and hemp.

Thousands of farmers in the central west and northern states, heeding the arguments of the Agricultural Adjustment administration officials, produced 15,774,000 fewer acres of corn in 1934 than they cultivated the year before. But they did not realize that thousands of southern farmers, who reduced the 1934 cotton area 2,458,000 acres below the 1933 planting, would take advantage of the situation and plant corn on 1,340,000 acres of this "unused" land.

Huge Corn Output of South.

Statistics recently made public reveal how farmers north of the cotton belt have been caught in a new and complicated web. In 1934 seven cotton states—Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, and Arkansas—grew 1,340,000 more acres of corn than they did the year before. Despite the unfavorable season generally throughout the United States last year, these seven states produced 17,720,400 bushels of corn on these excess acres, according to estimates based on official figures. The seven states boosted their corn acreage last year to a total of 17,677,000 acres.

Under the 1935 agricultural adjustment program farmers of the corn belt may be faced with even greater competition from southern farmers, who have millions of idle acres of cotton land that might be planted to corn. The south grew approximately 27,574,000 acres of cotton in 1934, or 8,000,000 less than in 1932.

Seek to Replace Loss.

Under the 1935 corn-hog contract the AAA gives the farmers of the corn belt an opportunity to plant any crop other than corn and thereby to overcome some of the disadvantages that prevailed in 1934. The problem is to find cash crops that will replace the market lost since the south has begun to produce grain and live stock feed.

Increasing the growing of corn and other agricultural products on idle cotton acres may prove to be a boomerang to the entire southern cotton industry. For instance, the search for new cash crops lends encouragement to the flax revival and possibly may mean a great increase in the use of flax for fiber.

Development of new and higher yielding fiber flax varieties, machinery for field harvesting, retting, and breaking the fibers, and discovery that flax can be spun to advantage on cotton spinning machinery are some of the encouraging factors.

Greater Yield than Cotton.

One authority in the textile industry predicts that with lower costs and greater yields per acre of flax fiber as compared to cotton "in volume of manufacture it should in time reverse its position with cotton."

A new process developed in Germany for defibration of flax is being studied in this country by tire technicians. The new process does not make a yarn but instead separates the flax into individual fibers which may ultimately be used in tire construction in the place of cotton fabric. This would pave the way for an increased outlet and a better market for fiber flax.

The Attitude of Farmers.

A new tarif on foreign fibers met opposition in 1929. Some of this opposition came from grain sections, particularly the northwest. This attitude may have changed because at present farmers cannot raise any fiber crops such as flax and hemp for cordage purposes to compete in price with fibers that are now imported under a low rate of duty.

An indication of the need for a higher tarif on these imported fibers, if farmers are to grow fiber crops profitably, is found in recent quotations at seaboard markets.

Imported Mexican sisal was priced at 2⅞ cents a pound at New Orleans; Manila hemp at 3⅝ to 4 cents a pound at New Orleans and New York; and African sisal at less than 3½ cents a pound at New Orleans and New York.

SEEK INDICTMENT OF ALL MOVIE INDUSTRY ON MONOPOLY CHARGES

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The department of justice was reported today to be seeking criminal indictments charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law from a federal grand jury here which is investigating alleged monopolistic practices involving virtually the entire moving picture industry in this country.

Though an explanation of the inquiry was not forthcoming here, the justice department announced in Washington, D. C., that the grand jury analysis of the motion picture business was launched to see whether Warner Brothers had entered into a conspiracy to violate anti-trust laws. Department officers, however, declined to name concerns other than Warner Brothers that might be included in the supposedly sweeping investigation.

About 100 film corporations, executives and other representatives have been summoned by the jury, which has been in session for three days.

The grand jury action followed a complaint made by Allen L. Snyder, operator of three theaters here, that he has been unable to obtain Warner Brothers, First National, Paramount, and R-K-O films for first run showing.

It was said that some regard the investigation as partly motivated by a desire to circumvent a congressional inquiry into the moving picture business and its NRA code.

Divorcee Awarded $2,000 in Her Suit for $50,000

A jury in the court of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday returned a $2,000 verdict for Mrs. Leah Fergeson, 40 years old, a divorcée, in her $50,000 breach of promise suit against William Handel, a real estate man with offices at 107 North Dearborn street. She charged that Handel proposed marriage after their first meeting in 1930, when he called at the Fergeson home at 622 Buckingham place to engage a room for his daughter, Rose. She subsequently lent Handel $2,000, and he neither repaid her nor kept his promise of marriage, she testified.

LEADERS UPHOLD SCHOOL BUDGET OF 79 MILLIONS

Public Hearing Held; New Revenue Sources Urged

Representatives of educational organizations yesterday expressed approval of the tentative school budget of $79,182,081 for 1935. Their views were expressed at a public hearing in the board rooms. President James B. McCahey and the trustees of the school board will study the budget to prepare it for formal submission later this month.

Leaders of educational groups praised the board's work and asked that it seek new sources of revenue to restore facilities which were dropped as a result of the economy program adopted in 1933.

Expects Levy Peg Bill to Pass.

George Mahin, executive secretary of the Chicago High School Teachers' association, predicted the passage of the pegged levy bill now before the state legislature, and declared that it would erase $4,000,000 of a $7,000,000 deficit facing the $48,370,965 educational fund.

Attorney Thomas Mason, representing 8,800 teachers in the Chicago Teachers' federation, urged that the $13,940,000 balance owed by the educational fund to the working cash fund be spread over a period of years instead of keeping the amount on the books as a current liability.

Ask Departments' Restoration.

By securing legislative consent to consider this amount a long term debt the educational fund would be increased and money necessary for educational purposes would be available, he said.

Other speakers at the hearing asked the board to consider restoration of departments and services in the schools. Dora Wells, educational chairman of the Woman's City club, requested the return of handwork classes to grade schools. Mrs. Edward W. Jackson, vice president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, asked for a ten month school term.

Lawyer's Illness to Delay Irving Weitzman's Trial

The trial of Irving Weitzman, president of a south side bakery company, for the murder of Eli Daiches on March 3 will be continued when it is called Monday in the Sriminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller. Weitzman's attorney, Harold Levy, filed a petition requesting the continuance because of the illness of James M. Burke, his associate counsel. Assistant State's Attorney Richard Regan said the state would not contest the request.

TEACHERS WILL GET PAY ON TIME; FUNDS SHIFTED FOR SALARIES

The board of education will continue its regular payment of salaries to teachers and employés and will meet its $1,950,000 pay roll for the first two school weeks of January on or before Jan. 25, James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, said yesterday. The announcement answered the fears expressed by some teacher organizations that there would be a lapse in January, pending the passage of the 1935 budget, which will permit an issuance of tax warants to meet pay schedules.

The board yesterday authorized a transfer of $475,475 from the school's working cash fund to the educational fund. This money, together with funds on hand, will finance the January salary payments.

Pay checks totaling about $400,000, representing the salaries of the 4,000 county employés for the last half of December, were distributed by the county treasurer yesterday. The funds came from penalties on delinquent taxes and from the various fee offices.

SANITARY BOARD TO TELL PUBLIC WHERE TAXES GO

Woodhull Reveals Plan for Simplified Reports.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

"One of the principal troubles with government today is that citizens and taxpayers don't know what is going on and have no way of finding out."

President Ross A. Woodhull of the sanitary district said that yesterday as he outlined a plan under which the governmental unit which he heads will attempt to tell the taxpayers of Chicago, in understandable form, just what is being done with their money. His observation came from many years of experience in governmental finance, the last six as chairman of the district's finance committee and for nearly a decade before that as chairman of the city council finance committee.

A Completed Subject.

Governmental finance is a highly complicated subject, as any one can testify who has tried to dig information out of the average budget statement. Chicago governments handle sums annually which put them on a par with the large industrial corporations, and to put a statement of their financial operations in a reasonably complete form which is still understandable by the average taxpayer is no slight task.

A large corporation, in its annual report to stockholders, publishes two financial statements. One is a profit and loss statement, an analysis of its receipts and expenses so arranged as to show whether it operated at a profit or a loss during the period. The other is a balance sheet, which sets down on one side the assets, on the other the liabilities of the concern at the end of its business year.

Special Problems Faced.

Such a system of fiscal reporting cannot be adopted without change by a government. It is not designed to run at a profit, but merely to expend for the service of the public the money contributed by the public in the form of taxes or otherwise. Its balance sheet can rarely be made to balance as that of a private corporation does, for its assets consist largely of public works and a large proportion of its liabilities are bond issues which are to be redeemed out of tax collections, some of which may not be made for a decade or two.

Accordingly, the statements which Mr. Woodhull is having prepared of the sanitary district's financial operations and conditions will consist of modification of these two forms of reporting used in private business.

What Report Will Show.

A statement of income and expenditure will show for the period reported on, among other things, what cash the district had on hand at the beginning of the period, what it received in taxes, how much of these taxes had to be used to retire previous borrowings on tax warants, how much remained for current expenditures, other revenues received, expenditures for salaries, purchases and interest during the period, and the amount of cash left when it ended.

Instead of a balance sheet, the sanitary district will make periodical statements of its total debts. These will include not only funded debt, in the form of bond issues, but tax warant issues by which it has borrowed on the security of future and uncollected taxes, and any current obligations which it has incurred, in the form of unpaid bills, judgments and salaries.

Comparison to Be Possible.

A statement of debts at any one date is only of minor interest to the taxpayer. But when it is compared with a similar statement issued three months or a year earlier, a quick comparison will show whether the district has increased its borrowings and obligations—in short, whether within the period portrayed by the statements, it has lived within its income.

Mr. Woodhull is now having statements of income and expenditure and of debts of the sanitary district prepared for the year 1934. Hereafter, he said, the district will issue similar statements to the public every three months.

Blame Snow and Trafic Jams for Traction Service Delays

Street car passengers are required to change from one street car to another and wait in the rain or snow because of weather conditions and inadequate enforcement of trafic regulations, according to E. J. McIlraith, surface lines chief trafic engineer, who appeared yesterday before a local transportation subcommittee of the city council.

The council group was appointed to investigate numerous complaints of passengers against the practice of the street car lines of making them change cars in the course of the through run. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], whose resolution in the city council precipitated the hearing, was chairman of the group.

H. C. Lindeman, 2133 West 10th street, and Dr. L. J. Ross, 9013 South Laflin avenue, a physician, who is president of the Brainerd Business Men's association, appeared as witnesses against the company.

They told of passengers being inconvenienced by switch backs on lines such as Ashland avenue between 69th and 95th streets, and on Western avenue at 63d, 74th, and 79th streets.

Aldermen Arthur G. Lindell [9th] and O. E. Northrup [19th] told of having received many complaints on the South State, Racine, Halsted, and Vincennes, and the Clark-Wentworth lines. Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., consulting engineer for the committee, reported on a check he had made on loop bound Milwaukee avenue cars. He found that such cars were switched back before reaching the loop 7 times on Dec. 26, 14 on the next day, and 15 on the 28th.

Mr. McIlraith promised the committee to have the service on these runs surveyed in an effort to minimize the number of switchbacks. He was to transmit to the company management, in addition, the suggestion of Chairman Orlikoski to display posters in street cars requesting passengers to send complaints of inconveniences to the company.

"Heavy snows and weather conditions compelling all vehicular trafic to use the middle of the streets slows up our street car runs," said Mr. McIlraith. "Frequently a blockade or the slowing up bunches our street cars, so that it is necessary to switch some cars back to avert big gaps in the service in the opposite direction. Nonenforcement of other trafic regulations slows our cars up also."

Capt. David Flynn, in charge of the police trafic division, said there had been a temporary lull in rigid enforcement of loop parking because of clogging the trafic court. A stricter enforcement is to be resumed, he told the committee.

PROMISE REPAIRS FOR FT. DEARBORN SCHOOLHOUSES

Immediate repairs to the Fort Dearborn portable schools, 86th and Wood street, were promised by the board of education yesterday after a tour of inspection by city and civic representatives. The investigators found the buildings "in such terrible condition as to endanger the health of 175 children of the first to sixth grades."

The tour was arranged by Mrs. W. F. Dorl, president of the Fort Dearborn Parent-Teacher association, and Mrs. D. E. Mitchell, chairman of the local citizens' committee.

The five ancient buildings were in dilapidated condition. Water leaked through the roofs, reducing the floors to spongy masses. Ceilings and walls were warped and discolored. Pianos and other furniture have been ruined by water. Blackboards bulged outward.

ARMY AND NAVY URGED TO PLAY 1935 GAME HERE

Chicago Last Had Contest in 1926.

Central west members of congress, both senators and representatives, feel that the 1935 Army-Navy game should be played in Soldiers' field next fall.

Residents of the Mississippi valley have had only one opportunity to see this famous football game between West Point and Annapolis without journeying to the Atlantic seaboard. That was in 1926. Soldiers' field was being dedicated and the cadets and the middies played to a 21-21 tie before more than 110,000 persons.

Since then, as before 1926, the annual service school game, when played, has been either in New York or Philadelphia. This year the central west members of congress believe it should come to their section of the country.

Queries Sent to Eighty-two.

THE TRIBUNE ascertained the attitude of the senators and representatives. Communications were sent the 82 congressmen who represent Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan at Washington and a majority of them have replied. Each is wholeheartedly in favor of the Chicago game and each is willing to use all his influence to bring it here.

Many have already written or wired Secretary of War Dern and Secretary of the Navy Swanson. The commandants of both the United States Military academy at West Point and the United States Naval academy at Annapolis will also be deluged with appeals to agree on Chicago as the game site.

Among the United States senators answering, William H. Dieterich of Illinois wired that he would do all he could to bring the game here and had written the academy superintendents of this feeling.

James Hamilton Lewis, the senior Illinois senator, pledged his support, saying that he would speak to Secretary of the Navy Swanson and Secretary of War Dern at once.

Minton Will Lend Aid.

Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana wired that he was "delighted" to have an opportunity to help bring the game here. His colleague, Senator Frederick Van Nuys, will "do everything I can in the matter."

"Please count on me for any assistance," wired Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Senator James Couzens of the same state "would be glad" to see the game come to Chicago if his home city, Detroit, did not want to try for it.

The Iowa senators were also unanimous. Louis Murphy "will be glad to coöperate." His colleague, L. J. Dickinson, wrote that "it will be a pleasure to render every possible cooperation." Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin said: "Representing one of the midwest states, I naturally would very much like to see this game played at Chicago, where adequate seating capacity is to be had for a football game of such prominence. Will be glad to lend whatever assistance I can."

Comment from the congressmen was just as enthusiastic. Typical replies follow:

ILLINOIS.

Michael L. Igoe—I will do everything possible.

Harry P. Beam—In thorough sympathy. Will do all in my power.

A. J. Sabath—I shall endeavor to take the matter up personally with the secretaries of war and the navy.

Scott W. Lucas—Reasons why this game should be played in Chicago are many, the most important one is woven in with the national defense program of this country.

Everett M. Dirksen—It will be a pleasure to assist. I think the middle west and the west are as much entitled to have some of the service games within the reach of their citizens as are the seaboard states.

Arthur W. Mitchell—I shall be very happy to do all in my power.

William W. Arnold—I am hopeful we will succeed.

Chester Thompson—I honestly feel that the middle west is entitled to this game at least every five or six years and my efforts will be directed accordingly.

Leo Kocialkowski—I will do anything I can to help push this movement.

Chauncey W. Reed—Depend upon it that I will do all in my power.

Edward A. Kelly—Shall be glad to do all in my power to bring game to Chicago and middle west.

R. S. McKeough—Will gladly coöperate in effort to bring game to Chicago. Holding this classic in Soldiers' field would permit thousands of citizens to see these splendid service teams in action.

James McAndrews—I have already contacted the appropriate officials regarding the possibility of playing the game in Chicago. I shall continue my efforts in this direction.

H. H. Mason—You may depend on my fullest support.

INDIANA.

Finly H. Gray—Will coöperate to the fullest extent.

William T. Schulte—Will enlist aid of my colleagues to back the movement.

Eugene B. Crowe—Glad to lend my support to this good cause.

William H. Larrabee—Happy to use any influence I may have in the coming year in securing this favor for the citizens of the middle west.

Samuel B. Pettengill—Glad to coöperate

HO HUM, MORE HARD WORK FOR GABBY

Gabby Hartnett, who has seen more years of service with the Chicago Cubs than any other member of the present playing staf, commits himself for another season. The veteran catcher is shown here (seated at right) signing his 1935 contract. Charley Grimm, vice president and manager (seated at left), and two other club officials, John Seys and Boots Weber (standing, left to right), gave Gabby what little encouragement he needed to sign up for another year of hard work. Again he will be the head man of the catching staf with the expectation of playing in at least 130 games. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HARTNETT SIGNS WITH CUBS FOR ANOTHER SEASON

Catcher Is First Player to Close Deal.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Gabby Hartnett, the National league's workingest catcher, yesterday afternoon signed his 1935 contract with the Cubs, the fourteenth such document to which he has attached his name since he joined the team in 1922. Gabby was the first Cub to put his signature on a 1935 contract, and something of a ceremony was made of the process inasmuch as the noisy vet is the oldest player on the roster in point of service.

It was no fat athlete who busted into the Cub offices for pen flourishing. Gabby's winter work to keep in fine physical shape has been widely heralded and when his employers got a look at their catcher yesterday a half dozen fountain pens were shoved at him simultaneously.

Gabby Faces Busy Season.

It appears up to Gabby to do most of the catching next season, as usual. Three other fellows, whose names evade us just now, have been listed on the roster as catchers. Probably all three are fine, ambitious young men, and one or two of them may step in and catch eight or ten games, but the Hartnett 1935 quota seems higher than his last year's total of 129, now that the veteran Bob O'Farrell, who helped out in double-headers, has been sent away.

When Hartnett gets through catching 100 or more games in 1935 he will have further added to National league records he's been piling up ever since he passed George Gibson's old mark of appearing in 100 or more games six years. It will be the tenth year he will have been in 100 or more games.

In his career as a Cub, Gabby has appeared in 1,356 games. This places him quite a little behind Cracker Schalk, major league record holder, who caught 1,721 games and appeared in 1,755. Next season Gabby will have a chance to pass the most experienced of the major league catchers still working at it, Muddy Ruel of the White Sox, who has caught 1,471 games. Muddy, however, has sworn to catch 75 games himself next year, and in that event Gabby will have to wait a year, at least, to overtake Muddy. Steve O'Neill, runner up to Schalk with 1,458, was passed by Ruel last season as Muddy was about the business of catching 29 games for the Sox.

Aims at Record.

Hartnett is shooting at another of Schalk's standard records. Cracker caught 100 or more games for 12 years, eleven of them consecutive. Gabby's best consecutive string is five years but he declares he'll top the other part of the record, the dozen year one.

Gabby has a lead in total games on Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers, who also is shooting at Schalk's marks. Mickey has caught 1,291 games, and never has failed to catch in fewer than 120 games in his ten years in the majors, and therefore is ahead of Hartnett in total seasons over 100 games, and only one away from tying Schalk's record for consecutive years of such performance.

President P. K. Wrigley of the Cubs yesterday announced that the club lost $200,000 last year and that the organization had dropped $500,000 in three years. It is said an adjustment in the appraisal of the stock value for tax purposes is being sought.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

GATHERING INFORMATION.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan 9.—While waiting for our fateful appearance tomorrow in Dante's "Inferno" we devoted our time to perusal of a sort of screen "Who's Who" of movie notables.

Perhaps it would be better in some respects if our inaugural appearance were being chaperoned by Producer Sam Wurtzel, but we didn't like to ask favors of him because he was the chap who made it possible for Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California's All-American guard, to go east for THE TRIBUNE'S college All-Star-Bears football game last August. Of course, Aaron hurt his knee and couldn't play, but Mr. Wurtzel was not to blame for that. Rosenberg is now a second assistant director on the Fox lot.

Anyway, Mr. Wurtzel is held responsible for the $800,000 being spent to produce this picture because it was his recommendation, and that ought to be enough worry for any one without The Wake's screen career.

Harry Lachman, under whose wing we'll appear, is a director noted for rhythm and artistry in production. That's what we're told. We don't know yet exactly what those terms mean, but we'll inform readers if we find out.

Mr. Lachman is a fellow Illinoisan, which may help us some, born in La Salle about 48 years ago. Attended University of Michigan and later was a pupil, then an instructor in Carl Werntz's Chicago academy. We knew Carl when he was in newspaper work, which also may help.

Well, as we understand it, Lachman took up commercial drawing, with photography as a side line. He made a number of special photographs for THE TRIBUNE in 1904. He specialized in children's views. He also kept up his sketching and supplied cover designs for the Saturday Evening Post.

He must be a versatile chap, for our biography next finds him in Paris for a period of twelve years. There he was painting in oils. Furthermore he sold his paintings, which is quite a triumph for Paris artists, we've always heard. At one exhibition purchasers took forty of fifty-five canvases exhibited. He must have been good, because he was decorated as a chevalier in the Legion of Honor.

Our sketch at this point became cloudy as to just what happened, for he returned to photography. Perhaps the picture market went blooey, although his works are in the collections of Mary Garden, Anne Morgan, and Herbert Satterlee. Anyway, he became associated with Rex Ingram, director, and co-directed several pictures in Nice, produced for Paramount in Paris, and several more in London.

While in Paris Mr. Lachman was married to a Chinese lady of culture, who is one of the well known hostesses of this sector, according to those who attend such functions.

Estimates of Lachman's present salary with Fox range from $50,000 to $150,000 annually. That seems like a lot of money to The Wake, but big money is the watchword in this film business. He has produced "George White's Scandals," "Baby, Take a Bow," and now Dante's "Inferno."

Backfire from Rose Bowl.

Backfire from the Rose Bowl football game is beginning to sound. Right after the contest experts were extremely conservative in comment lest it appear as criticism of Stanford or underrating of Alabama. We noted it in remarks of Howard Jones, Bob Zuppke, and Paul Schissler, former Oregon State coach now here in the same capacity with the Chicago Cardinals, who meet the Bears in an exhibition Sunday.

Outsiders, however, freely voice opinion that Alabama should not have scored two of its four touchdowns, those gained on long passes by Howell and Joe Riley over the heads of the Stanford secondary to Don Hutson, who raced for touchdowns. These free lance critics call Stanford's defense inadequate and stupid

TILDEN, VINES WIN 5 SET MATCH IN THREE HOURS

Chicagoan Beaten in Singles.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The world's premier doubles team of 1934, invincible in amateur competition, met its master at Madison Square Garden tonight under its first baptism of professional fire.

In as thrilling and prolonged a tennis match as a New York gallery has watched in many a day, the 42 year old iron man of the courts, William Tilden, and the youthful Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena welcomed George Lott of Chicago and Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles into the professional fold by defeating them, 3-6, 14-16, 13-11, 8-6, 6-4.

A crowd of 14,618, who paid in a gross of $24,682 at the gate, saw the American and British amateur champions of 1934 lose to the two former world's singles title holders after almost three hours of continuous play.

It's Second Largest Crowd.

This was the second largest gathering in the history of American tennis, being exceeded only by the crowd of 16,000 that saw Vines make his professional debut against Tilden in 1934.

The show put on by the professionals, the first of a nationwide tour, was well worth the huge turnout and it was the battle scarred Tilden who carried off most of the honors as the crowd made the rafters roar with its cheers.

This amazing veteran, who was winning the national championship almost before Stoefen was big enough to swing a racquet, first went out on the court to defeat Lott in the opening singles engagement, 6-4, 7-5. With hardly more than ten minutes to rest up, Tilden came back and for two hours and 50 minutes he stood off the best that Lott and Stoefen could offer.

In the end it was his younger rivals who faltered under the strain and the 42 year old campaigner stood forth as the most formidable man on the court. Even Vines, whose terrorizing exploits in the second set had the crowd wild, had to yield the palm to his partner in the final two chapters, which were played without intermission.

Lott Nearly Wins Set.

Lott was twice within a point of winning the second set, when he led at 5-4 and 40-15, but Tilden's cannonball service came to his aid and he took the next two games also with the loss of one point.

One break through service decided each set, Tilden effecting the break in the seventh game of the first and in the eleventh of the second. Lott's inability to return service and the veteran's more steadfast length and beautiful backhand passing shots were big factors in the verdict.

This was the first meeting between Tilden and Lott on the courts since 1930.

The other scheduled singles match between Stoefen and Vines was canceled by Promoter Bill O'Brien, owing to the lateness of the hour and the fatigued condition of the performers following the long doubles duel.

Crowd Gets a Thrill.

The doubles match was a whole evening's entertainment in itself, keeping the crowd in a continuous uproar. The speed of Vines, the thundering drives of Stoefen at the net, the ingenuousness of Lott's thrusts and the brilliance of the 42 year old Tilden in carrying the fight to the enemy in the closing stages provided a stirring show.

This was decidedly an enthusiastic crowd. It stayed on, although there was enough tennis in that second set alone to satisfy the most exacting fan.

When Tilden and Vines pulled out the third set after 24 more games the spectators were determined to see the battle through to the end and very few left their seats until Umpire Benjamin Dwight had called the final score.

In behalf of Lott and Stoefen it might be said that they were laboring under a handicap in that Tilden and Vines have had previous experience at the Garden, so different from the turf courts. However, both Lott and Stoefen, after working out at the Garden in the afternoon, said that they found the canvas covered court to their liking and were not bothered by the artificial lighting.

Ball Bounds Higher.

They found that the ball came off the canvas court approximately as it does off grass, except that the bound is a trifle higher because of the cement floor beneath the covering.

It was not the strangeness of the conditions that defeated the 1934 Davis cup team so much as it was the lasting powers of Tilden and the ferocity of Vines. In the lanky youth from Pasadena Lott and Stoefen met one of the most indefatigable antagonists they ever have faced.

Against his returns of service from both the backhand and forehand, his smashing and serving, his lightning interceptions at the net and from the back of the court, all their stratagems, shading, and fencing, as well as their speed, were unavailing.

See Record in Early Entry of Golden Gloves

BY WILFRID SMITH.

More than 300 boys sent in their entries for the eighth annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament in the first three days after the announcement of the meet. This interest indicates that the entry list for the Chicago sectional tournament in the open and novice divisions will break all records, if it is maintained.

The first medical examination will be held at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street, the latter part of next week. Letters of instruction will be mailed to all boys who have entered on Monday and Tuesday, giving complete details of the time to report for the examination.

Two Divisions in Meet.

The entry blank is for either Novice or Open division. When the boys report for their medical examinations they will be classified as novices or experienced boxers on the basis of their records. The general rule is that a boxer who has won two or more matches in last year's Novice tournament, or any preceding tournament, will be classified as an experienced boxer. However, this rule will not be strictly enforced. Rather, the clerks will decide after questioning each boy on his record and a review of last year's tournament results.

Only those boys who compete in the Open division will be eligible to win places in the Tournament of Champions, Feb. 25, 26, and 27, in which teams from 11 states will compete.

The Novice boxing tournament is limited to Chicago and adjacent territory. Thirty-two boys will qualify for the semi-finals of this tournament from the Chicago sectionals. The semi-finals will be held in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 25. The finals of the Chicago Novice tournament then will be decided on Feb. 26 as part of the Tournament of Champions.

Baer to Fight Impellettiere at Stadium

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Ray Impellettiere, a bigger but less publicized pugilist than Primo Carnera, was taken off Madison Square Garden's doorstep today for a ten round exhibition bout with Champion Max Baer at the Chicago Stadium on March 18.

Impellettiere, 24 year old son of a barber at the United States Military academy at West Point, who weighs 275 pounds and stands 6 feet 7½ inches high, has pleaded for nearly a year with Jimmy Johnston of the Garden to give him a match.

Fails to Interest Garden.

But the New York boxing promoter couldn't see Impellettiere, so the giant's manager, Harry Lenny, did business with Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis when they came here from Chicago and Detroit to raid the Garden's cauliflower beds for fistic fodder for Baer.

"The Garden's loss is our gain," grinned Lewis as he signed Impellittiere to a contract. "If Johnston can't use his own fighters, we can. Baer needs some big, tough guys to peg punches at, and this Imp looks like the goods. We'll do $50,000 or $75,000 with him—and the Garden wouldn't give him 50 cents."

Ambers Vs. Dublinsky.

While the midwesterners were raiding his mitt ménage, Johnston concerned himself with preparations for his Lew Ambers-Harry Dublinsky show Friday evening. Both boys worked out here today and neither looked too impressive. Ambers has never fought a main bout on the big time before.

COURT DECISION ON STADIUM PLAN IS POSTPONED

Judge Wilkerson Sets Jan. 28 for Verdict.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson has postponed decision on the approval of the Chicago Stadium corporation's reorganization plan until Jan. 28, it was learned yesterday. The Stadium has been in the hands of a federal receiver, Fred E. Hummel, since Jan. 20, 1933. Plans were launched July 17 to reorganize it under the new bankruptcy act.

In Judge Wilkerson's order he referred the reorganization plan and hearing of objections to a proposal for modification of all matters in connection with the case to Special Master Henry P. Chandler.

During a hearing last month the court expressed the opinion the plan in question was not fair since it appeared those advancing money for the reorganization would reap too much in return. They would have strong security in addition to control of the Stadium. The special master's report is expected to be heard in conjunction with the next hearing of the case in federal court.

Arthur M. Wirtz and James Norris Sr., Chicago sportsmen, are heading the group which plans to take over the west side building.

Orville Drouillard, Windsor, Ont., featherweight, and Paul Lee of Indianapolis, Ind., were signed yesterday to meet in the eight round main event at Marigold Gardens Monday. Walter [Puggy] Weinert, Brighton Park welterweight, and Mickey O'Shea of the north side will clash in the six round semi-final. O'Shea postponed a trip to Florida for a few days in order to go through with the match. Other encounters will envolve Syl Saliski and Ed Schiller, Rudy Sterben and Biff Bennett, and Bob Tigney and Gary Baldwin. Each is at four rounds.

Holman Williams, Detroit lightweight, pal of Joe Louis, will meet Harry Boker in six rounds at Midway arena Monday. . . . Philadelphia promoters are seeking a contest between Louis and Al Ettore for Jan. 21 or Jan. 28. . . . Louis boxes Hans Birkie at Pittsburgh tomorrow and Lee Ramage at Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21. . . . Pep Kerwin has arranged two supporting encounters for his ten round windup between Young Geno, La Salle, Ill., junior lightweight, and Johnny Fitzpatrick, Chicago, at Peoria Monday. . . . Le Roy [Sailor] Born will oppose Art Donovan and Lou Vine is paired with Frank Keevil at six rounds.

Frank Battaglia, south side middleweight, will go to Pittsburgh Saturday for a ten round conflict there Jan. 17 against Lou Brouillard of Worcester, Mass. . . . Lou Jallos, Cleveland junior welter weight, is back in town after a short visit to his home. . . . Jimmy Cummings, 1933 Golden Gloves middleweight runner-up to Freddy Caserio, has returned after vacationing a month at London, Ont. . . . Cummings put on seven pounds while at London, where he spent considerable time chopping wood.

Frank Sagilio, Cicero 140 pound fighter, expects to be able to open drills today for a topline engagement with Young Joe Firpo of Philadelphia at Cicero stadium Jan. 18. . . . He has been suffering from a cold for several days. . . . Eddie Stanton, manager of Hayden [Young] Stuhley of Kewanee, Ill., plans to meet Co-Matchmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis at La Salle street station this morning upon their return from New York in an attempt to arrange a contest for Stuhley against Eddie [Babe] Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., at the Stadium, Jan. 25.

Verne Patterson, Central A. A. U. bantamweight champion, and Harold Brown, 1934 Golden Gloves lightweight alternate, won the features bouts in the amateur show presented by the Mastro Boxing club last night at Community Recreation center. Patterson knocked out Sam DePasquale in the second round. Brown, now competing as a welterweight, whipped Dennis Jones, Evanston, in five rounds. Other results:

Jerry Matthieu beat Jesse Robinson [3].
Sammy Girshbein beat Tony Cataloni [3].
George Nelson beat Walter Lewis [3].
Otto Schwarck beat Oscar Shubers [3].
John Knash stopped Ed Luebker [1].
Roy Rickenbacker threw Gerald Lauth, 6:35 [wrestling].

K. S. [Pop] Hubley, Lee Ramage's representative, left last night for Los Angeles to supervise the training activities of Lee for his impending return bout there against Joe Louis. . . . Entries for the annual Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing championship tournament at the I. A. C. Jan. 29 and 30 will close with Johnny Behr Jan. 26. F. M.

HOLLYWOOD RAIN (CORRECT) FAILS TO STOP BEARS

Lyman Joins Drill for the Cardinal Game.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—To the amazement of that large portion of Los Angeles which stops doing things whenever it rains, the Chicago Bears slipped into their old white practice jerseys and cavorted through a driving downpour for two hours this morning.

Link Lyman, the giant tackle who had rejoined the team after being delayed by snow in the mountains on his motor trip from Nebraska, took his accustomed place in the line. Meanwhile, a handful of the local scribes and 100 per cent sport fans, huddled and shivered under umbrellas and rain slickers in sparse groups about the sheltered portion of Gilmore stadium in Hollywood.

Halas Likes It.

"Rain is our kind of weather," Coach George Halas said. "We've got to get in some practice before our game Sunday against the Chicago Cardinals. Those Cardinals are improving fast. It's going to be a hard game. It won't be any easier for us because of the fact that our last practice in suits prior to today was on Dec. 23 in Memphis. That's going a long time without practice, with three hard games in a row staring us in the face."

The Bears meet the Cardinals at Gilmore stadium Sunday in a game which Paul Schissler, Cardinal coach, describes as "one we both came 2,300 miles to play." Schissler thinks the Cardinals have a fine chance to win their first game over their city rivals since 1929, when the Cards crushed the Bears, 40 to 6.

Bears Question Two Players.

Halas' first conference with Schissler after arriving in Los Angeles was a phone dialogue in which he questioned the Cards' right to sign up Joe Keeble, full back from the University of California at Los Angeles, and Brick Bright, blocking back and running guard from the University of Southern California. Halas told Schissler he came west to play the Chicago Cardinals team, not a lot of "added players."

Schissler told Halas that if the Bears' owner-coach felt that way, the Cards would object to the Bears using Big Jim McMullen, ex-Illinois star. The argument closed with both waiving objections.

After the Cardinal game the Bears will prepare for the Jan. 20 game here against Ernie Pinckert's coast all-stars and the subsequent important rematch between Bears and New York Giants.

Bears Out to Win.

"That's the game that's going to be the hard one," Halas said today, speaking of the Giant game. "We'll give the Giants all we got. The boys are determined to win."

Halas and Schissler conferred tonight with Harry Meyers of the American Legion, which is promoting the Sunday game. Both coaches expressed some question over the officials for Sunday and Halas said it was possible they may want to fly some pro league officials here from the central states.

Educator Says College Sport Is Mercenary

Oberlin, O., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. C. W. Savage, who has guided Oberlin college athletics for 29 years and has served 22 years on the national football rules committee, today said he "never felt so blue as right now" about the future of intercollegiate football in connection with subsidizing and recruiting.

Dr. Savage does not think anything will be done about the situation.

"As long as football is built around a background purely financial, with a paid coach and everything dependent on gate receipts, nothing will be done," he said, "The great stadia and the ballyhoo will continue and the smaller colleges will do the best they can. And I don't blame the coach."

Dr. Savage retires late this month from the post at Oberlin that he has held since 1906.

Because football is educational, Oberlin "stands ready," he said, "to arrange games with other Ohio colleges without gate receipts. Or, we would charge just enough to keep away the rabble. The college would foot the bill. If football is educational we should pay for it."

AMERICANS END ALLIANCE WITH HAVANA TRACK

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—American racing interests, headed by Albert Sabath, Chicago lawyer, tonight severed connections with this season's projected race meeting at Oriental Park. The meeting was suspended Sunday due to the shortage of suitable horses and financial conditions.

The racing will be in the hands of Amleto Battisti, Uruguayan sportsman, and Gen. Matias Betancourt, a Cuban, who also are associated in the management of the Gran Casino Nacional.

In announcing the withdrawal Sabath said:

"I have disposed of my interest in the meeting because I could not agree with Mr. Battisti and Gen. Betancourt on the caliber of the meeting. They favored a two day a week affair with maximum purses of $250, and I could not see my way clear to becoming identified with that kind of horse racing.

"I certainly would not ask American horsemen to come to Havana and participate in such a meeting, so I decided to step out. Judge C. W. Hay, presiding steward, as well as Judge W. H. Shelley and other American officials, are leaving with me.

"Starting next Saturday, races will be held only on Saturdays and Sundays with an extra day of racing on special holidays."

JACKSON SIGNS WITH GIANTS AT $10,000 SALARY

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Travis Jackson of the New York Giants today signed his contract for 1935. It is reported he will receive $10,000 for his labors—$9,500 for playing and $500 for being captain.

Only one other member of the Giants' infield is unsigned. But the remaining member, Dick Bartell, recently acquired from the Phillies to replace Jackson at shortstop when Jackson shifts to third base, is expected to sign shortly.

Blackhawks Meet Maroon Six Tonight

Games Tonight

Chicago at Montreal.
Boston at St. Louis.
Toronto at New York Americans.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The world's champion Blackhawks arrived this afternoon to meet the Montreal Maroons for the second time this season at the Forum tomorrow night.

Hawks Hold Edge.

In the teams first meeting here, the Hawks won, 4 to 3. The champions have defeated the Maroons in two of the three games played to date at home and away this season. All of the games were either lost or won by one goal, indicating that no two teams in the National Hocky league are more evenly matched.

To date, the Maroons, considered one of the most powerful scoring units in the league, have made fifty-two goals. The Hawks, not considered a great scoring aggregation, are only four goals behind. Almost the same margin that divides the teams in the offensive part of the game represents the difference in the defensive end. Lorne Chabot, Hawk goalie, has been scored on only thirty-three times to lead the league and Fireman Connell, Maroon doorman, has failed to stop the puck thirty-six times.

Face Hard Program.

The Blackhawks again are faced with another difficult schedule. After tomorrow's game they proceed to Toronto to play the league leaders Saturday. After the Maple Leaf game they hie immediately for Chicago for a battle Sunday night for the American division leadership with the Boston Bruins. With only one day of rest, they are scheduled to tackle the high scoring Leafs again next Tuesday at the Chicago Stadium.

The Maroons have lost only one game in the last seven played. Because of the presence of Howie Morenz and Marty Burke on the Hawks' lineup, a huge crowd is expected for the game. Both were Montreal favorites for the many seasons when they played with the Canadiens.

SELL CANADIENS TODAY

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Storm clouds on the professional ice hocky horizon lifted enough today to reveal these pending changes:

1. The Montreal Canadiens will be sold to an American syndicate in a deal to be closed here tomorrow.

2. The financially unsuccessful St. Louis Eagles team will be split up, with players going to Toronto and Chicago after the remaining games on the Eagle schedule have been played on the home ice of those two clubs. St Louis will be at Chicago Jan. 27 and at Toronto Jan. 19.

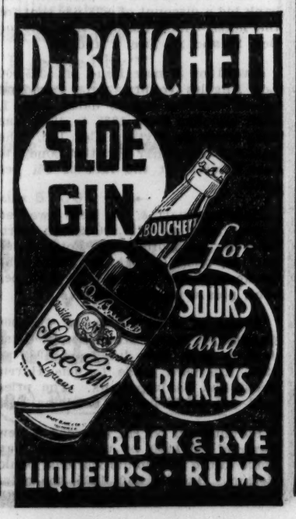
3. Col. John S. Hammond, owner of the New York Rangers and chairman of Madison Square Garden's board of directors, is putting the final touches on a rental contract he hopes will be satisfactory to Bill Dwyer, proprietor of the New York Americans.

An offer of $200,000 cash has been made for the Canadiens by a group of American sportsmen reputedly headed by Walter O'Hara, young millionaire promoter of the Narragansett Park race track in Rhode Island. Leo Dandurand, executive of the club, was en route here from Montreal tonight to close negotiations with the bidders.

Montreal Group Bids.

"We've been offered a price for our players and franchise," Dandurand declared in Montreal today, speaking for himself and Joe Cattarinich, majority stockholder of the Canadiens, "and I will conclude the deal in New York tomorrow." A Montreal syndicate, headed by J. U. Gratton, turfman and former hocky magnate, also is seeking the Canadiens, Dandurand said. He did not say whether Gratton is still in the bidding for the outfit.

Details of the doling out of the St. Louis players will be settled at a meeting of National hocky league officials here this week. Dwyer's aids reported today they have been assured that Col. Hammond is polishing up a new rental contract that will be acceptable to the Americans' owner.



Failure to Take Children Golfing Is Cited in Suit

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Her husband's failure to take their 6 and 7 year old daughters to the golf links was advanced in court here today by socially prominent Mrs. Helen Moran Fahnestock as one reason why he should not have their custody.

"Would you expect your husband to play golf with them?" counsel for the father, Snowden A. Fahnestock, asked.

"Perhaps they are a little young to play, but I would expect him to take them out on the green with a putter and play around with them," Mrs. Fahnestock replied.

The hearing was on a suit in the District of Columbia Supreme court for custody of the two little girls, Claire and Mary Lee.

Two Games on Road Worry Iowa Quintet

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Although the University of Iowa basketball team now stands first in the Big Ten by virtue of victories over Ohio State and Chicago, Coach Rollie Williams today was willing to accept an even break in the two road games Saturday and Monday.

The Hawkeyes meet Northwestern at Evanston Saturday night and Minnesota at Minneapolis 48 hours later. "If we could stay at home this weekend and add one victory and one defeat to our record I would be perfectly willing to do it," said Coach Williams.

Williams expects to find the Wildcat quintet primed for Saturday's game as the result of the 16 to 9 defeat administered the Purple by Wisconsin. He is anticipating no less difficulty at Minneapolis.

While the Iowa team showed marked improvement in the two Western conference contests, it has not yet demonstrated a championship brand of basketball for an entire game. The flashes of first rate basket shooting and ball handling have been offset by lapses into ragged play.

Ivan Blackmer, center, has a big lead in scoring with 67 points in the eight games played so far. Sid Rosenthal, forward, who was used as a reserve at the start of the season, now is second with 50 points.

EDELWEISS WINS TWO GAMES FROM CLASSIC LEADERS

Edelweiss took two games from the leading Baby Ruth in the Classic Bowling league matches at the Windy City alleys last night. Louie Levine of the Budweisers shot high individual series of 704. Scores:

GLENVIEW PILOT GOES 237 M. P. H. IN LIGHT PLANE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Art Chester, racing pilot from Glenview, Ill., today flashed around a 100-kilometer closed course here for an average speed of 237.033 miles an hour, an unofficial world record for planes weighing less than 992 pounds, the timers announced tonight.

The Glenview pilot flew an 802 pound plane of his own design, powered by an engine of 363 cubic inches displacement.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The San Francisco unit of the Shriners' hospital for crippled children will receive more than $35,000 net profit from the tenth annual East-West All-Star football game here New Year's, William M. Coffman, managing director of the event, announced today.

Norge Ski Club to Import Snow for Title Meet

There will be plenty of snow for the Norge Ski club's 29th annual tournament Jan. 20 at Fox River Grove, Ill.

Snowbound towns throughout Michigan and Wisconsin, hearing of Chicago's thaw, are vying for the opportunity of furnishing snow for the event. In past years, when lack of snow here necessitated importation, there always has been more than enough sent from Escanaba, Mich., but this year rivalry has sprung up. Wisconsin boosters have entered the competition.

Entries for the meet are coming in from all sections of the country. Outstanding thus far is the entry of Roy Mikkelson of California. Mikkelson, who lost his national championship last year to Casper Oimen, has been training in the California mountains since Thanksgiving. He is one of the outstanding competitors for the United States Olympic team, which will be chosen at the conclusion of the season.

Another leading jumper coming from the coast is Earl Wigaard, Mikkelson's teammate, who ranked sixth in an all-American rating before going to California.

BLUEBIRD SAILS FOR NEW RACING EFFORTS JAN. 19

Campbell Shows Famed Car to Britons.

BROOKLANDS, England, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A great new squat Bluebird, which Sir Malcolm Campbell hopes to send singing down the sand at Daytona Beach, Fla., at more than 300 miles per hour, a little over a month hence, emerged from its cocoon today. It will be shipped Jan. 19.

Product of 18 months of research and labor, the famous racing monster presented a vastly altered appearance and surprised even those closest to its equally famous pilot. Completely redesigned, from its broad snout to the tip of its tail fin, over 28 feet away, the glistening new Juggernaut now is so flattened out it looks almost like a bobsled on wheels.

Body Is Widened.

The great blue body has been widened to where it is in line with the outside edges of the wheels, affording an unbroken sweep down either side.

Instead of the former tail fin, which flared upward behind Campbell's head, the new stabilizer sweeps out gradually, rising only about a foot at the tip.

Viewed from the front, there is a distinct resemblance to a flathead shark, with an air intake shutter across the front making a realistic mouth.

Sir Malcolm, who bustled about for more than an hour in the bitter cold, posing for photographers and explaining various features, seemed prouder of this shutter than anything else.

Adds 15 Miles an Hour.

"When I close it at top speed I should get 15 more miles per hour," he said.

After being exhibited in a Bond street showroom for two days, the Bluebird will be rolled into a giant crate and shipped to New York on the Berengaria, accompanied by eight mechanics.

Campbell and his wife, who will sail on the Aquitania a week later, intend barely to hesitate in New York before hurrying to Daytona Beach.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Heavy buying of United States government bonds, with resultant gains in prices of from 1-32d to 16-32ds point, featured dealings in bonds today. Transactions in the government issues reached $4,372,500, the second heaviest daily volume for the year this far. Total trading amounted to $15,273,000, compared with $13,671,000 the day before.

Reports from Washington claiming to tell something of the government's intention in respect to long term financing acted as a mild restraint upon federal issues for a time, but aggressive buying later appeared and the entire group finished higher, including the treasury 3s and home owners loan 3s.

Corporation Issues Irregular.

Domestic corporation bonds moved irregularly higher. Extremes in price changes ranged from up 5⅛ to down 4 points on the day. The major gain for the day was recorded by Kelly Springfield Tire 6s, due 1942. In general, utility and industrial bonds showed better average strength than did the rails. The low priced rails, however, were not without their usual speculative following.

Fractional advances in a number of gilt edged railroad and utility bonds were sufficient to carry them through the old 1934-'35 highs.

Low Priced Bonds Weaken.

Accumulation of lower priced bonds of all types was not so much in evidence today and declines up to a point were well scattered through these issues. Alleghany 5s lost 1¼ points, Chicago and North Western refunding 5s were 1⅝ lower, and International Telephone 4½s yielded nearly a point.

German loans showed about the best strength in the foreign group, with the government 7s and 5½s both climbing 2 points, and other German issues up fractionally to more than 2 points. French and Italian government loans were strong. In the Latin American list, Brazilian issues were the weakest.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Loose-Wiles.—E. B. C.

Answer: Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, one of the two largest organizations in the cracker and biscuit field, turns out about 350 varieties. A minor portion of its business is the sale of candies, but otherwise there is no diversification of products. A nation-wide distribution is effected through its major plants in about a dozen large cities. Expansion prior to 1927 was mainly through pioneering in new fields, but the growth since then has been mostly through taking over of going concerns.

Volume of sales, it is believed, has held relatively steady through the last five years, but shift in buying demand to products on which the profit margin is low has cut into earnings.

Profits in 1933 were stimulated by generally increased business activity plus a well stocked inventory acquired at low prices. Any increase during 1934, however, was checked by necessity of replacing inventories with higher priced goods and the difficulty of passing on to the public higher labor costs and higher taxes, while competition was keen.

As a result net income for the first nine months of 1934 was $1,044,000, or $1.64 per common share, against net of $1,219,000, or $1.96 per common share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

Net income of $1,680,000 in 1933 equaled $2.74 per common share. This compared with net of $1,323,000, or $2.04 per common share, in 1932. Net income in 1931 was $1,988,000, and in 1930, $3,457,000.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1933, totaled $7,703,000 and current liabilities were $1,144,000. There is no funded debt. Capitalization is represented by 35,419 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 522,600 shares of $25 par common. The common currently pays 50 cents a quarter.

Both the preferred and common are high grade.

National Income.

Investors' Guide: For certain statistical information we would appreciate very much, if possible, for you to send us a report showing the national income for each individual year from 1924 to 1933 inclusive.—D. L. F.

Answer: The following estimates of national income were arrived at by National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., 247 Park avenue, New York City [last six zeros omitted]:

1932	*38,300	1927	77,200

STEEL OUTPUT RISES 3½ POINTS TO 44½% LEVEL

Auto and Implement Plants Buy More.

National production of steel has risen 3½ points to 44½ per cent of capacity during the last week, giving the market a buoyancy that has been missing since the beginning of 1934, according to the Iron Age. Regional gains ranged from 1 to 10 points with Chicago output soaring 5 points to 50 per cent.

Scrap prices also advanced during the week, the journal's composite for heavy melting steel rising from $11.75 to $12.33 a ton, the highest level since April, 1934.

"Although the accelerating pace of automobile production accounts in large part for the current expansion of steel mill operations," says the review, "the farm equipment industry continues to take more steel, tin plate specifications have improved and sizable inquiries from the railroads have brightened prospects for more active demand for heavier rolled products."

Labor Outlook Only Cloud.

A disturbing outlook in industrial relations appears to be the only cloud on the horizon, the journal says. The decision of the steel labor board ordering employé elections at two plants of the Carnegie Steel company has been challenged in petitions of employé representatives filed with federal courts.

"One effect of this move will be to block the elections at least during the court proceedings," the review continues, "which will probably take two to three months, and it may eventually lead to a test of the constitutionality of the labor tribunal's decision. Meanwhile, the labor board has ordered elections at several other steel company plants."

Conservative estimates compiled by the journal place American and Canadian production of automobiles this year at 3,300,000 cars, or 275,000 a month. On the basis of ten months of active production the average would be well over 300,000 monthly.

Ford Motor Boosts Output.

Ford Motor company's output this month promises to be the largest for any January since the model "T" days, with schedules calling for an increase from 5,000 to 6,000 units daily at the River Rouge plants.

Farm equipment and tractor manufacturers look for the heaviest spring trade since 1930, and a probable gain of 40 per cent over last year, the magazine asserts. Tin plate production has reached 45 per cent of capacity, or 10 points above holiday schedules, through heavier releases from can makers. Fabricated structural steel awards of 28,200 tons for the week compare with 16,525 tons a week ago.

Gains in various steel centers during the week included a sharp rise of 10 points to 90 per cent in the Wheeling district, 6 to 56 in the valleys, 4 to 69 at Cleveland, 2 to 27 in Pittsburgh, and 1 to 28 at Philadelphia.

The journal's composite prices for pig iron and finished steel are unchanged at $17.90 a ton, and 2.124 cents a pound, respectively.

Two Inventors Predict Great Change in Auto

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—Two inventors, here for the annual automobile show this week, met in a room of one of Manhattan's skyscraper hotels not far from the motor exhibition in the Grand Central palace.

In the palace, crowds milled about mechanical demonstrations and polished cars and heard salesmen describe the 1935 models as perfections in art and in engineering. And the public bought, and is still buying, in volume that promises to make new sales records for automobile shows held during the depression.

In the hotel room, today's mass production automobiles were described as being behind the developments of science and far behind the developments that will be available to the public in the near future. But, before canceling your order for a 1935 automobile, listen to some other opinions of these inventors.

"World Is Out of Date."

"The entire world is out of date," said William B. Stout of Detroit. "Cities like these [pointing to the towers visible from his window], are due to fall. Public buildings and private residences must be replaced.

"All of the railroad rolling stock must be replaced with equipment of the automotive type. New trains can't be financed on a twenty year life basis because they'll all be obsolete in much less than two decades. All machines used in your heating plants, lighting, dishwashers, means of travel—all will be different in three years.

"Industry, finance, politics, and insurance must be revised to fit the new era. The world of the future will change more in five years than did the world of the last in five centuries."

Favors Three Year House.

"The greatest mistake I ever made was to buy a stone house that will last fifty years," said J. W. Smith of Philadelphia. "I should have bought a house that would last about three years, a house that I could trade in for a new one every three years as it becomes outmoded, just as you trade in an automobile for a new car."

These men aren't fanatics devoting their lives to a study of perpetual motion. They are dreamers who have seen many of their dreams come true.

Mr. Stout, for example, designed Henry Ford's tri-motored airplane. He did research work for the Pullman Car and Manufacturing company on streamlined trains. Mr. Clark collects royalties from patents on automobile wheel manufacturing equipment. He was a pioneer in developing the variable pitch propeller and steel tubular construction for airplanes.

"Today's automobile wastes all of the power dissipated in applying the brakes, in idling the engine in trafic and in stops for loading and unloading," Mr. Stout continued. "In the west, on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, electric trains going down a mountain are braked by having them drive generators. Two descents generate enough power for one ascent.

Storage Problem Unsolved.

"On the trains the power is transmitted by wire. On automobiles it will have to be stored in a battery or spring or some other means not as yet devised. To get a storage agency of low weight is the problem. It hasn't been solved.

"Until we have this solution the additional weight for the storage facility is not worth the energy it can store.

"For the automobile, with our present knowledge, the greatest advantages can be obtained by lower weights that reduce the amount of inertia that must be overcome to accelerate and the amount of momentum that we must overcome to decelerate."

Next month Mr. Stout is to announce that his Detroit laboratory will market a lightweight, tear drop automobile with power plant mounted in the rear.

Hoover Made Director of New York Life

Former President Herbert Hoover, who is in Chicago on business, was informed yesterday that he has been elected a member of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance company. The former President was placed in nomination by the man whom he defeated so decisively in 1928, former Gov. Al Smith of New York.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Mr. Hoover, who accepted the position, thus became the second ex-President to have served on the board of the insurance company, the late Calvin Coolidge having been a member of the board from 1929 until his death in 1933.

The former chief executive, through his secretary, declined either to be interviewed or to be photographed. However, he did issue a formal statement.

Accepts Second Invitation.

"About two years ago the board of the New York Life Insurance company invited me to accept the vacancy created by the death of Mr. Coolidge," said the statement. "Recently, upon the occurrence of another vacancy, the western organization of the institution urgently supported a renewed invitation of the board, and I have accepted.

"Like most other great mutual institutions the service is without remuneration. I have accepted in the hope of contributing something to the protection and advancement of the interests of millions of policyholders, for in these great insurance trusts lies one of the most vital of the personal securities to the women and children of our country."

Hoover Election Unanimous.

The installation of Mr. Hoover in the board will take place at the next monthly meeting of that body in New York on Feb. 13. Former Gov. Al Smith placed the name of his former political foe before the board by moving the adoption of a resolution by the nominating committee. The adoption of the resolution and, therefore, the election of Mr. Hoover, was by unanimous vote.

The place on the board which Mr. Hoover will fill was made vacant by the recent death of John E. Andrus, known as "the millionaire strap-hanger."

Since the former President's home is in California, it is expected that the company will give him transportation to and from New York, as well as maintenance for the trip. This was done in the case of Mr. Coolidge, who lived in Northampton, Mass.

Mr. Hoover has been in Chicago for several days as the guest of Arch W. Shaw, long a personal friend. The former President has made frequent visits to Mr. Shaw, former publisher, who has largely retired from his business activities.

OIL STOCKS HELD BY J. D. ROCKEFELLER JR. WORTH 245 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Stocks valued at about $245,000,000 in three oil companies were held by John D. Rockefeller Jr. as of the end of November, records of the Securities and Exchange commission disclosed today.

His total holdings of capital stock amounted to 10,181,020 shares distributed as follows: Standard Oil of California, 1,872,528 shares; Standard Oil of New Jersey, 2,743,122 shares; and Socony-Vacuum, 5,565,370 shares.

On Dec. 12, however, Mr. Rockefeller "transferred" a total of 1,592,400 shares of stock in the three companies, his report said. It did not specify the nature of this transaction. Transfers were in the following amounts: Standard Oil of California, 540,700; Standard Oil of New Jersey, 600,700 shares, and Socony-Vacuum, 451,000 shares.

The report was made under the provisions of the securities act forcing all companies listed on stock exchanges to report the holdings of all officers and of all those holding beneficial ownership of more than 10 per cent of the outstanding stock of the company.

The securities commission announced today that they would not impose any penalties on exchanges that did not make all such reports public by the end of this month.

FORD ADDS 10,000 MEN; TOTAL IS BEST SINCE 1929

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—More than 10,000 men have been added to the Ford Motor company pay roll since its new car was introduced Dec. 29. According to officials, approximately 70,000 men are now at work at the Rouge plant, the best employment mark since 1929.

Production is running at the rate of 3,000 cars daily, with an output of 5,000 per day expected before the end of the month.

AM. TELEPHONE'S PROFITS RISE TO ABOUT $5.75 SHARE

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The American Telephone and Telegraph system will show earnings of approximately $5.75 a share for 1934, it was indicated by preliminary estimates made today. In 1933 the company earned $5.38 a share on the 18,662,375 shares outstanding. Although the company has another large deficit to absorb from its subsidiary, Western Electric, it will not be as large as in 1933.

Earnings of the system in the first nine months of 1934 amounted to $4.32 a share. Earnings in the last quarter of the year registered some improvement over the preceding three months but were about equal to the rate of earnings for the first nine months, it is understood.

Plymouth Reports Week's Sales Set New Record

The Plymouth Motor Car corporation reported yesterday that retail sales of its new 1935 models during the first week of January aggregated 3,976 cars, compared with 1,690 units delivered by dealers in the same period in 1933. President D. S. Eddins said the first week of the New Year was "the biggest January week in our history."

EDISON SAVES MILLION IN COAL COSTS IN YEAR

Revision of its coal purchasing contract with the Peabody Coal company in May, 1933, saved Commonwealth Edison company a million dollars in operating costs for the year ended Oct. 31, 1934, witnesses for the company testified in the Edison rate hearing before Charles E. Byrne, commissioner of the Illinois commerce commission yesterday. The revision brought the cost down to $1.52 a ton, excluding freight, from $1.85.

James R. Henderson, executive secretary of the coal code committee of Illinois, said that the average production cost of Illinois coal is $1.53 a ton, on which a 25 cent a ton profit would be reasonable. The hearing will be continued today.

GAIN IN POWER OUTPUT IS MORE THAN SEASONAL

Production 6.7 Pct. Over Year Ago.

Production of electricity in the United States last week showed a greater than seasonal gain of 1.1 per cent over the preceding week and was 6.7 per cent higher than a year ago. In the Chicago area power output dipped 1.4 per cent below the preceding week but was 2.8 per cent above the corresponding week of 1934.

The national total was 1,668,731,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,650,467,000 in the preceding week and 1,563,678,000 in the corresponding week of last year, the Edison Electric institute announced yesterday. In the preceding week there was a gain of 7.2 per cent over a year ago, while in the 1934 week output showed the best percentage gain in three months, rising 9.7 per cent over the 1933 period.

Chicago Area Shows Decline.

Output in the Chicago district totaled 102,730,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 104,207,000 in the preceding week and 99,950,000 in the corresponding week of 1934, according to the Commonwealth Edison company. Although the total for the week was slightly below the preceding week, the percentage of increase over last year maintained the level established a week ago, when the gain was 2.5 per cent.

Unfavorable weather during the week prevented a better showing, since it was very bright this year and abnormally dark in the corresponding week of 1934. Following are the output and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago district:

Week Ended	1935	1934	Per Cent Increase
Jan. 5	102,730,000	99,950,000	2.8
Dec. 29	104,207,000	101,659,000	2.5
Dec. 22	111,927,000	105,136,000	6.5
Dec. 15	111,463,000	105,191,000	6.0

South Makes Better Showing.

In the south there was a better showing over a year ago than in the preceding week, with a gain of 15.9 per cent, against 13.8. Improved percentage increases were also shown in the Rocky mountain district with a gain of 10.6 per cent, against 9.6, and on the Pacific coast, where output was 4 per cent higher, against 2.9 per cent in the preceding week.

Other regional gains for the week with comparisons of the preceding week over a year ago were: New England 5.9 per cent, against 6.4 per cent; middle Atlantic 2.9, against 4.7; central industrial 6.9, against 7.5; and the west central region 1 per cent, against 5.3 per cent.

Electric output of the Standard Gas and Electric company for the week totaled 81,877,264 kilowatt hours, an increase of 4.3 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

Rise in U. S. Debt as Shown by Taxes 600% in Six Years

BY HOWARD WOOD.

If President Roosevelts estimate of an increase in the government debt to more than 34 billion dollars by June, 1936, materializes, it will mean, as far as the impact on the taxpayer is concerned, a 600 per cent increase in the debt burden in six years.

Tabulations show that the debt was 16 billions in 1930 and will be 34 billions in 1936. This would indicate only a doubling of the load over the six year period. But that is only part of the story. Up to 1930, 11 billions of the national debt were offset by war debts owed to the United States by European nations. Since then practically all of these war debts have been defeaulted and the debtor nations demonstrate little inclination to resume payments.

If the United States cannot collect an appreciable amount of the war debts it will mean that instead of meeting interest and amortization charges on about 5 billions the citizens of this country will have to pay service on a debt about seven times that amount. And if the budget isn't balanced in 1936 it will be more than that.

World Money Stability May Depend on French Action.

Doings in France indicate definite changes in that nation's monetary policies. Clement Moret, staunch conservative, has resigned from the governorship of the Bank of France and Jean Tannery, a comparative liberal, has been appointed in his place.

This week Sir Henry Strakosch, eminent British economist, startled the financial world with the declaration that international monetary stability will not be achieved until France and the other nations still on the gold standard "set their house in order," meaning that they, like Great Britain and the United States, will have to debase their currencies.

Coming on the heels of the recent statement by Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, that Britain cannot stabilize the pound "until there is such a change in the price level as will bring the dollar and the franc into greater harmony with one another," Strakosch's statement has aroused world-wide interest.

France has already moved in the direction of "credit inflation" of the New Deal type by beginning to load up the Bank of France with short term government paper. France's bitter recollections of the post-war currency inflation which cut the value of her money 80 per cent are expected to prevent her going in for a "managed currency," but she may be preparing to get her currency in line with the debased pound and dollar by a single devaluation act, thereby laying the groundwork for world-wide revaluation of gold and general return to some sort of fixed gold standard by principal nations.

With this uncertainty in France neither Britain nor the United States is likely to adopt a fixed monetary policy until a program which includes France can be agreed upon.

Politics Now Is Guiding Bank Examiner Selections.

Circumstances surrounding the appointment of Nugent R. Oberwortmann as the new chief national bank examiner for the Chicago district as related in Washington dispatches have been an eye opener for middle west bankers.

According to Washington information, W. T. Kemper, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri, and a prominent Missouri and Kansas banker, sponsored Oberwortmann's appointment. J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency, who names the bank examiners, is understood to have been indebted to Kemper for supporting him against attempts on the part of Leo T. Crowley, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and others to oust him.

Several weeks ago it was reported that Oberwortmann was slated for the chief examiner's job in the Kansas City district and that Irwin Wright, chief examiner there, would be transferred to Chicago. Apparently, however, naming Oberwortmann to the district in which his sponsor had substantial banking interests would have been embarrassing.

Prior to two years ago the bank examiners' jobs were recognized as being out of politics and appointments were almost invariably made on the basis of merit. With the inauguration of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, however, the bank examiners began to get into politics. When employés were being chosen by the FDIC to supervise the banks candidates were instructed to get the sponsorship of their local politicians.

Gradually this new method of selecting appointees has crept into the controler's department.

COURT BLOCKS PWA LOANS TO 14 ALABAMA TOWNS

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Fourteen northern Alabama municipalities today were enjoined from negotiating loans with the Public Works administration to construct their own electric distribution systems, shortly after mayors of three of them had announced receipt of signed contracts for loans totaling nearly $300,000.

The injunction was issued by Judge W. I. Grubb in United States District court here on the application of Forney Johnston, attorney for a group of preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company.

PWA to Join in Appeal.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Public Works administration announced tonight it would associate itself immediately in an appeal from the decision of a federal judge at Birmingham, Ala., holding up PWA allotments to 14 Alabama towns for construction of electrical distribution systems. The PWA has joined with towns in every case where a municipal power project has been challenged.

CARRIERS CITE GROWING LOSS FOR RATE BOOST

Start Final Pleas Before I. C. C.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of American Railroads, today declared the class 1 carriers had an operating loss of about $53,000,000 in 1934 and faced even larger losses in 1935. The occasion was the opening of final oral arguments before the interstate commerce commission on the plea of the roads for higher freight rates.

In support of the roads' contentions, Fletcher said that the lines were not even asking a fair return on their investment, but were seeking the increase to give them a return sufficient to pay operating expenses and fixed charges.

Face Larger Costs.

In 1935 the roads face larger costs because of the raising of wages and the increased expenses resulting from the NRA, he said. As an example, average coal costs were $1.92 per ton in September of 1933 and had increased to $2.25 in September of 1934, due to price fixing in the NRA coal code.

The increase asked by the roads constituted reasonable rates under law, Fletcher said, adding that increased operating efficiency had cut operating costs from $10.66 per 1,000 revenue ton miles in 1920 to $6.40 in 1933.

Demands of the roads for a freight rate rise augmenting their operating revenue by about 170 million dollars brought opposition arguments by representatives of state railroad and utilities commissions that the increase was unjustified and would either throttle trafic or drive it from the rails to the highways.

Argues Against Rise.

Issue was first taken when John E. Benton, counsel for the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, first of a long line of protesters who will appear against the increase, declared that the higher rates would not be reasonable and that they would close to the public "highways" in which the public had an interest and which the commissioners were there to protect.

Benton declared that the existence of a depression was cause enough for a reduction of freight rates and that the roads had no right to ask for a rise simply "by showing that they are suffering from the depression."

Supporting these views were F. P. Aughnay and N. E. Williams, representing railroad commissioners of North Dakota, and H. L. Bode, commissioner of South Dakota.

New York, Jan. 9.—Traders in equities spent five monotonous hours today as the stock market droned along in low gear, largely on account of lack of speculative enthusiasm. Price movements were rather narrow, but price quotations showed declines exceeding advances. The turnover fell to 896,470 shares.

The financial community had before it additional favorable trade reports in the shape of a gain in steel companies to 44½ per cent of the country's operating capacity and a rise of 6.7 per cent in the electric power output last week. Traders, however, continued to relegate such business news to the background while keeping an eye on activities in Washington, particularly in connection with important decisions expected from the Supreme court within the next few weeks.

Rail Equipments Active.

A feature of the market was a drive in the rail equipment section of the list in contrast to the performance of the carriers which were mostly sluggish. The activity in this section was said to be based on hopes that some government money would go into the make-work programs by way of railroads. Westinghouse Air Brake, New York Air Brake, and American Locomotive were fractionally higher at the close, while Pullman held to its previous finishing price.

The heaviness of the carriers was taken as reflecting the unfavorable earning estimates for December and also the exposition of the weakness of many of the railroad positions as made in the freight rate case. Atchison opened off at point, came back to recover part of its loss and then slipped down again, ending the day with a minus ¾ after its closing quotation. New York Central picked up a fraction but was heavy near the close as was Pennsylvania.

U. S. Steel Eases.

Despite the optimism of the steel review United States Steel was fractionally lower. Bethlehem after ruling weak throughout most of the session closed at its best price of the day.

Reports to the effect the production of "hot" oil had started in east Texas forced the oil shares to seek lower levels. Standard of New Jersey, Sun, and Consolidated Oil all lost fractions.

Among the individual performers, Commercial Credit reached its best level since 1929, winding up the day with a 2 point gain. Hershey Chocolate rose more than three points to the best price level in three years.

The motors, after sailing along smoothly through most of the session, showed heaviness at the close. Chrysler was off a fraction after appearing on the tape in thousand share lots.

Profit taking weighed the tobaccos down. There was little to attract attention to the building or alcohol section. Utility shares were inclined to seek lower levels.

ALL DIRECTORS ARE RE-ELECTED BY HARRIS TRUST

Bank Carries U. S. Bonds at Par on Its Books.

All directors of the Harris Trust and Savings bank were reëlected yesterday at the annual meeting of the stockholders. The vacancy created by the resignation last June of John J. O'Brien, president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., in conformance with the banking act which prohibits bankers from being in the investment business, was not filled.

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the board, explained a change made in the presentation of the bank's financial statement. The statement for 1934 discloses that a contingency fund of $1,500,000 is used to bring down the value of government securities held in the bank's portfolio to par, while that part of the fund remaining after this has been done is used to bring down the stated value of other securities and investments carried in the portfolio .

Market Value Is Higher.

Actually, Mr. Harris said, the market value of the government and other securities carried in the portfolio is above the stated amounts. He added that the action was taken in the interest of conservatism.

Mr. Harris, in asking the stockholders to approve the actions of the board of directors during the year, said perhaps they would feel a little bit better about doing this when it was recalled that the bank's capital, surplus and undivided profits now stand at $14,465,722 as compared with $13,012,052 at the end of 1929. Thus, he added with a smile, the bank was able to add to its capital structure during the severe depression and at the same time continue dividend payments to the stockholders.

Changes Made in Staf.

Following the meeting of the stockholders, which was not attended by any "outsiders," the board of directors made several changes in the official staf. George H. Rigler was made assistant cashier; T. S. Kiley, trust counsel; W. L. Fellingham, assistant secretary, and Burton A. Brannon, assistant auditor.

All directors of the Mid-City National Bank of Chicago, 801 West Madison street, were reëlected at the annual meeting of the stockholders yesterday. The directors reëlected all old officers and made Rudolph G. Had, manager of the new business department, an assistant cashier.

Stockholders of the Winnetka Trust and Savings bank reëlected all members of the board of directors and the directors in turn reëlected all officers.

Directors and officers of the Howard Avenue Trust and Savings bank were reëlected yesterday. The position of vice chairman was created which will be filled by Raymond W. Beach, now a vice president.

All officers and directors of the Merchandise Bank and Trust company were reëlected at the annual meetings yesterday.

Directors and officers of the Mutual National bank also were reëlected.

DOLLAR WEAKER AGAINST CHIEF FOREIGN MONEYS

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The pendulum swung against the dollar again today in the foreign exchange markets, following its swing in favor of American currency yesterday. Its gold value dropped to $1.0020 as computed from French francs, against $1.0027 yesterday. Based on the old par of the franc the dollar was worth 59.18 cents, against 59.19 yesterday.

European gold currencies started lower in the early trading but rallied before noon and recovered all the day's losses. French francs went to 6.62, up ½ point, and net gains for the other gold units were small.

Strength of sterling was a feature with a gain of 1 cent to 4.92¾. Canadian funds moved up ¼ point to $1.00⅜.

Gold imports of $3,501,800, offset by a loss through carmarking of gold for foreign account of $2,042,500, were reported today by the New York Federal Reserve bank. The net result was a gain of $1,459,300.

GRAIN PRICES SAG AS TRADE INTEREST LAGS

Decline Despite Bullish Developments.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The inability of the grain market to attract any important volume of speculative trading was again demonstrated yesterday when prices of the principal grain futures declined moderately on extremely light trading. The weakness developed in the face of an advance in prices in foreign centers and a continued steady commercial demand for grain in the principal domestic markets.

Another 100,000 bushels of wheat were sold for shipment out of the Chicago market, and receipts of grain at the principal markets continued light, but this situation failed to inspire speculators to bull wheat futures.

Final Prices Lower.

After a moderate upturn early in the day which lifted May wheat to the best price in the last three weeks, the market in all grains relapsed and final quotations were slightly below Tuesday's last prices.

Losses in wheat extended up to ¾ cent a bushel with the July and September contracts showing the largest losses. Corn, oats, and rye were similarly weak, with corn declining up to ¾ cent a bushel.

Final prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	..$1.01⅛	$1.01⅜	$0.99⅞
Corn	.90⅞	.91¾	.90
Oats	.54⅝	.54¾	.53¾
Rye	.75	.75¾	.76⅛

In Liverpool, wheat advanced ¾ cent a bushel. Strength in the foreign markets was attributed to the cold wave experienced in the European wheat areas, which caught the crop without snow protection, and the probable stimulant of the low temperatures to consumption.

Cash Grain Active.

The activity in the cash grain markets provided the principal feature of the day's developments here, but failed to stimulate interest in futures. Cash grain prices were firm with the steady demand credited to milling interests.

The inflation incentive seems to have lost force as a market factor for the time being. With the President's message out, the inflationary possibility of the government's current policies is again being pushed into the background.

LARD RESPONDS SLIGHTLY TO ADVANCE IN HOG PRICES

Provisions made only a moderate response yesterday to the advance in hog prices to a new high since July, 1931, and an early bulge of around 12½ points in lard met with fairly good profit taking sales, a reaction quickly following. Packing interests were credited with buying May lard on the decline, with final trades unchanged to 10 points higher and January showing the most strength. Bellies closed unchanged to 10 points higher. Green meats continue in fair demand, while leaf lard has gained sharply on the cash and loose article. Cash lard was quoted at 12.92 cents; loose, 12.57 cents; leaf, 13 cents, and bellies at 16.45 cents per pound. Prices follow:

UPSET IN HOG PRICE RATIOS CURTAILS TRADE

High Levels in West Rejected by Packers.

An unprecedented price relationship between the hog markets of the country yesterday tied up trading in the Chicago yards for more than three hours.

5,000 Remain Unsold.

Buyers and sellers came to grips when packers refused to bid more than 5 to 10 cents above the Tuesday level which left the Chicago range 5 to 20 cents below western points. As a result about 5,000 hogs remained unsold at the close.

However, on sales made, the market averaged 5 cents higher on the day at $10.05, including the processing tax, and top sales were pushed up to $10.45. The average was the highest since October, 1930.

Other Classes Higher.

Other live stock also advanced. Top steers soared to $11.85, the highest since December, 1931. Gains of 15 to 25 cents were general in both steers and yearlings, while most classes of butcher stock ruled strong to slightly higher.

Packers and city butchers paid up to $9.50 for lambs, the highest since June of last year, and highest for January in four years. Advances for the day amounted to 10 to 15 cents, but as fleeces were not as watersoaked as they were Tuesday some buyers said their purchases were regarded as about steady. Current lamb prices are $3.00 to $3.25 over the low time of last November.

MAY PAY GRAIN, NOT CASH, FOR CROP REDUCTION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace said today that provision might be made in proposed amendments to the farm act for paying farmers in commodities instead of cash for reducing production. Farm groups now meeting in Washington "seem to favor" inclusion of this provision, he said.

The administration would hold stocks of grain accumulated under loans on stored crops during surplus years and, in return for more drastic reductions in the following year, would return ownership of the stocks to farmers instead of paying them cash.

The theory is that prices of commodities would rise in response to the new reductions, giving the farmer a higher return on the stocks returned to him, which would constitute part of his crop in the new year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable closed easy today, 8 to 15 points net lower on sales of 75 contracts. Scattered liquidation in advance of the government census bureau report on cottonseed products, combined with selling by houses with cotton connections and less tendency to support on the part of refiners were the depressing factors. Crude oil was firm at 9½c, and lard, while closing under the highs of the day, averaged steady. Bleachable spot nominal; January closed 10.01c per lb.; March, 10.00c; May, 10.01c; July, 10.02c.
